PAY BOOST, 7-HOUR DAY WON BY MINERS

Otto H. Kahn Is Dead.
Gold, Three Quadrillions.
Wise Mr. Bankhead.
A Dole for Bankers.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

OTTO H. KAHN, New York banker is dead, and undoubtedly the depression killed him, with its losses, worries and appeals of friends.

Mr. Kahn probably found his fortune diminished by forty or fifty millions when 1929 broke prices. He was safe personally, with many millions left, but what you lose, not what you have left, is what counts.

MR. KAHN rendered public service throughout his life. He financed and rescued the Metropolitan Opera House, when it was in straits and for sale. He had in mind, not those in the "diamond horse-shoe," but the students standing or straining for a sight of the stage from badly built top galleries. He would have given the Metropolitan an opera house for musicians in place of the house for diamonds. But those that ruled would not have it so. His efforts in that direction, cost Mr. Kahn several millions.

AND MR. KAHN'S firm, Kuhn, Loeb and Company, never started any get rich quick "investment trust," of the kind that said to the little man, "send us your money and we'll gamble with it for you, and give you part, if we win."

THIS MIGHT BE the most important news in the world, some day. The Chemical Foundation of America is working seriously at the problem of recovering gold, floating in solution, "ionized particles" in the waters of the ocean. The greatest amount of gold per cubic yard of salt water is found in San Francisco Bay, washed down from the hills in past ages, probably and in the fjords of Norway. There are in all the oceans about three hundred million cubic miles of sea water. One cubic mile average contains ten million dollars' worth of gold, at present prices. If you could get all the gold out of all the oceans, you would own three quadrillions of dollars' worth of gold, expressed thus in figures: $3,000,000,000,000,000. But all your gold would be worth practically nothing, because you would have too much. Such are life's disappointments.

Innumerable other metals are afloat in the oceans in "ionized form," or otherwise, silver, radium, tin, iron, nickel, lead, mercury, many more. Science will find a way to tap this source of wealth. Already two big corporations extract bromine, used in ethyl gasoline, about $1,000,000 worth, from 25,000 gallons of sea water.

P. S.—the salt water gold ionized electrically charged might be recovered electrically.

WILLIAM BROCKMAN BANKHEAD, Congressman from Alabama, succeeding his distinguished father, the late Senator Bankhead, in Congress sees no particular reason why the people should be taxed to pay interest on bonds, when currency, bearing no interest, would answer the purpose.

He can't see, either, why it need be necessary for the government to go on issuing currency indefinitely, as did the German government. Germany had its own good reasons, that included getting rid of its internal national debt without cost.

Mr. Bankhead, quoting a suggestion frequently made that "the debts can be paid and half the cost saved by issuing currency instead of bonds," says:

"There should be a controlled issuance of currency."

There should be, of course, and there will be probably.

THE PRESIDENT should know, and is here told, that one of the ablest bankers in the United States said to the writer:

"The government pays us bankers a dole every month. My little dole amounts to four or five thousand dollars a month. Not much, but acceptable. We buy bonds, and don't have to pay for them. We put up 5 per cent of the total amount. Then we keep the bonds, and can issue money against them.

"Thus, by paying fifty thousand dollars on account of a million dollars worth of bonds, I am allowed to keep the balance, nine hundred and fifty thousand dollars, without paying interest on it. Furthermore, I can issue a million dollars of my own currency against those bonds and lend it out for whatever the traffic will bear. If I do that, I pay the government one-half of one per cent and as I get six or seven per cent, within the legal limit, that is no hardship."

IS THERE any reason for taxing Americans, sufficiently taxed already, in order to go through the farce of issuing bonds that are really not bought by the banks, or paid for?

Why doesn't the government issue currency and pay its own bills, instead of allowing the banker to issue a million dollars worth of currency against a million dollars worth of bonds, for which he has not paid, and charging in some states as much as eight per cent legally?

THE GOVERNMENT will owe, before the end of the year, thirty-five thousand million dollars. If, in obedience to the pawnbroker style of financing, it foolishly insists on issuing bonds and paying interest, it will pay, before the debt is wiped out, SEVENTY thousand millions, instead of thirty-five thousand millions.

The nation is rich, but what good reason is there for waste of money?

THE HOUSE and the Senate, overruling the President's veto, and disregarding his request, voted $228,000,000 a year more to ex-soldiers, by a vote of 310

TURKS ORDER ARREST OF INSULL

Aged Fugitive Frantic As U. S. Acts for His Return

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP.)—The Turkish Government informed the State Department today that it would arrest and detain Samuel Insull for extradition proceedings.

Robert P. Skinner, American ambassador to Turkey, messaged the department that the Turkish Government had definitely promised formally to arrest Insull upon receipt of a certified copy of the warrant of arrest and a complete text of the "judicial record."

The department immediately cabled a copy of the warrant to Ankara, capital of Turkey, and arranged for a copy of the indictment to be delivered as quickly as possible.

Later Ambassador Skinner reported that the Turkish government proposed to refer the papers to the proper Turkish court.

When the Turkish government arrests the aged fugitive, he might be transferred either to the Istanbul jail or, more likely, held in a hotel under a police guard pending the arrival of American deputies to escort him to the United States. There are at present no American deputies here.

It was reported that Insull was prepared to protest any move to arrest him.

He was desperately sending

HOPE FOR FAIR EASTER DAY

Whether the sun will shine on the Easter parade or a drizzle will dampen the new bonnets and finery was puzzling Observer W. S. Brotzman today.

Fair weather with mild temperatures was predicted for tonight and tomorrow. But over in Illinois it was raining today and on the western fringe of the rain was snow.

The weather man was trying to decide whether the storm would pass over quickly or would move eastward slowly and arrive here at the wrong time.

He wound up with:

"Well, let's go in for fair weather Easter Sunday. It's better than hanging crepe and will make everybody feel good for a while, anyway."

Dogs and Cats Share 2 Million Bequest

CHICAGO, March 30.—(INS.)—Homeless dogs and cats today were the principal beneficiaries of the bulk of a $3,000,000 estate left by Mrs. Marion E. McConnell, late daughter of Horace Warren, a pioneer Chicagoan.

Seven first cousins who contested the will have dismissed their action before Judge Harry A. Lewis in the Superior Court and will divide $284,834. More than $2,235,000 will go for the benefit of dogs and cats.

Girl Slain, Guard Jilted Grid Star From Angry Mob

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Ind., March 30.—Rushed to the jail here to escape threats of mob violence, Ward Davis, 18-year-old college student, was held today on a charge of killing Annavieve France, 16, his former sweetheart, on an automobile ride near Petersburg, Ind.

Sheriff William Weathers said Davis had admitted that he shot and killed the girl because she had jilted him for a high school classmate, Donald Weber, 17.

A mob gathered about the jail at Petersburg immediately after Davis was arrested, and Sheriff Weathers, rather than risk the possibility of violence, escorted the youth here for safe keeping. The crowd had threatened to lynch the young prisoner.

STAR GRID PLAYER

Davis was a star athlete at Petersburg High School. After his graduation last year he attended the University of Alabama, where he played freshmen football.

Davis met the girl at the close of school yesterday and she drove away with him in a borrowed automobile on his promise to drive her home.

The youth instead drove three miles south of Petersburg, according to Sheriff Weathers, and there fired a bullet through her heart. He had borrowed the revolver.

They had been "engaged" for more than a year, Davis told authorities, but recently he learned she had transferred her affections to Weber, whom she had agreed to accompany to the annual junior class party last night.

DRIVES WITH BODY

Davis persuaded the girl to accompany him instead, but she told her friends that was to be their last engagement. The young athlete heard of her decision and began to brood.

After the shooting he drove to the home of his parents with the body of the dead girl in the seat beside him. He left the car in front of his home and sought out a messenger whom he instructed:

"Go tell my father to look in the automobile."

The father, Lucian Davis, discovering the body, called Sheriff Weathers.

The youth, meanwhile, went to the residence of his young rival, Weber, where he was disarmed and turned over to authorities.

Seek Settlement Of Hotel Strike

Striking employes and representatives of the William Penn Hotel went into conference in the Chamber of Commerce today in an attempt to reach a settlement of the strike which began several weeks ago. The Regional Labor Board has given both sides until Monday to settle their differences, at which time the case will be turned over to the National Labor Board.

Milkman to Play Role of St. Peter

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, March 30. — (INS.) — Herbert Meyr, 34, the town milkman, will play St. Peter in this year's revival of the famous Passion Play here, it was announced today.

With Meyr in the role made vacant by the death of Peter Rendl, St. Peter will have black hair for the first time in years. Previous actors in the part generally have been old and gray.

BRIBE LINKED IN POWER DEAL

New Expose Follows Charge Involving Legislator

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Evidence was placed in the record today by the Federal Trade Commission, in its inquiry into public utilities, that the Kentucky-Tennessee Light and Power Company bribed a city attorney in Paris, Tenn., to bring about the sale of a municipally-owned power plant.

The Kentucky-Tennessee Light and Power Company is a subsidiary of the Associated Gas and Electric Company, which yesterday was revealed as having paid "expenses" to State Senator W. T. Thayer (Rep.), in New York, while the Senator was acting as chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Utilities.

Evidence concerning the Kentucky-Tennessee incident was put in the record by A. M. McDermott, commissioner examiner, who said that in 1925, George L. Fryer, City Attorney in Paris, started negotiations with the power company for the sale of municipally-owned plants.

POWER FIRM AIDE

The evidence disclosed that J. Henry Byrd, posing as an independent investigator, aided these negotiations as a representative

THUG ATTACKS TENNIS STAR

Dr. John O'Loughlin, of 5655 Stanton avenue, tennis star, appeared in East End police station today and told of an attack in which he was robbed of $40.

Dr. O'Loughlin holds no local titles at present, but is the former Western Pennsylvania singles champion, and with his brother, Dr. David L. O'Loughlin, is a former West Penn doubles champion.

John Dugan, 40, of 6315 Broad street, was held over for further investigation in connection with the case by Magistrate Charles F. Papale on a charge of larceny.

Dr. O'Loughlin told the magistrate he was returning home from his office Wednesday night when at Broad street and Collins avenue a man struck him on the chin and took his wallet containing $40.

Dr. O'Loughlin said he was dazed by the punch and when he regained his senses the man had disappeared.

Police later picked up Dugan and said they found Dr. O'Loughlin's wallet with $23 in his possession.

Rich Moving Man Aids U. S. Foil Extortion Plot

Keenan Threatened With Death; Former Employe Held

James F. Keenan, prosperous 73-year-old businessman, today told the story of the extortion plot in which he was threatened with death unless he gave up $15,000.

The elderly president of Haugh and Keenan Storage and Transfer Company described how, with the money in a pocket, he walked lonely, dark streets of Squirrel Hill and East End to meet the extortionist, who failed to appear.

Meanwhile, in Federal Court, government authorities prepared their case against W. Walter Dolan, 45, former Keenan employe, who, they say, wrote Keenan four threatening letters.

Dolan today was charged with extortion in a complaint which accused him of threatening to take Mr. Keenan's life. He will be prosecuted under the Lindbergh kidnaping act, according to United States Assistant Attorney Fred G. Weir.

A preliminary hearing, scheduled before the United States Commissioner today, was postponed to next Thursday because of Mr. Keenan's absence.

ARRESTED IN HOME

Dolan was arrested late yesterday in his home at 1303 Denniston avenue, Squirrel Hill.

Mr. Keenan told of carrying out the extortionist's orders to insert an advertisement in the newspapers announcing the money was "ready." Then:

"I left my apartment (in the Schenley) at 6:10 p. m. last Fri-

PACT AVERTS STRIKE OF 350,000

Appalachian Leader Sees New Era for Entire Industry

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP.)—Miners and operators alike praised today the action of the general Appalachian bituminous coal conference in clipping the eight-hour day to seven and boosting wages to $5 daily.

An accord, reached shortly after midnight, averted a threatened strike of about 350,000 miners. It marked the first shortening of the eight-hour day by a basic industry of such magnitude.

John L. Lewis, international president of the victorious United Mine Workers, told the joint conference:

"I cannot but feel that with this magnificent start we are entering a new era of more rational relationships in our industry."

Charles O'Neill, one of the leading operators in the region, expressed belief the action of the conference, which ended six weeks of almost continuous negotiation, signalled the death of the eight-hour day in the entire industry. This hour scale had been in operation for 36 years.

SUCCESS SEEN

O'Neill told newsmen:

"It starts an experiment with the seven-hour day and the operators feel that with our pres-

Hitler Wants to Talk With Roosevelt

Nazi Leader Favors 'Man-to-Man' Parleys

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, March 30.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler told me today that he wished he might have man-to-man talks with the leaders of other nations—including President Roosevelt.

By such personal conversations, he said, the pitfalls of diplomacy might be avoided. He explained:

"The antiquated diplomatic method of exchanging notes finds a telling condemnation in the fact that, despite the efforts of diplomats, the nations in 19 slipped into the most gigantic war in history, although I am convinced the diplomats themselves were the most surprised when war broke out."

Herr Hitler talked to me for 50 minutes, explaining his personal ideas of international relations, describing how he keeps his hand on the pulse of the people, telling me that he desires objective criticism.

First and foremost was his explanation of his ideal of man-to-man and eye-to-eye conversations. He said:

"One thing that every representative of a foreign power will find in dealing with me is that I speak with absolute frankness and never place my demands higher with the idea of compromising for less.

"I declare only just what Germany is prepared to do. When I state that we need an army of 300,000 men, I don't propose afterward to come down to 250,000. I want Germany's signature to mean something again."

Here the chancellor's voice vibrated with emotion, his jaw became firmly set, his index finger pointed straight at me:

"Under no circumstances will I submit to dictation.

"When I am once convinced that a certain course is the only and the right one for my nation, I intend to pursue it, come what may."

Registration Returns Show Democratic Gain

Sweeping gains for the Democratic party in Pittsburgh were shown today with the disclosure of first returns from yesterday's registration.

The first 68 scattered districts in the city reported:

Republicans 3,242
Democrats 2,814

Party leaders were amazed at the returns, showing Democrats running almost even with the Republicans in early enrollments.

This ratio contrasted with an approximately five-to-one registration in favor of Republicans for last year's election.

In previous years the ratio had run anywhere from 15 to 20 to one in favor of the Republicans.

Even the so-called Republican "organization" districts felt the impact of the Democratic swing yesterday.

In the First District of the Second Ward, bailiwick of Republican Ward Chairman Pat O'Malley, 77 Democrats registered as against 29 Republicans.

In the First District of the First Ward, home of former Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, 45 Democrats registered as against 35 Republicans.

Yesterday's enrollment brought out few complaints and few difficulties—these mostly over naturalization papers. All naturalized citizens have to present credentials to prove their citizenship.

WALLACE, AGRICULTURE CHIEF, LINKED TO BRAIN TRUST 'PLOT'

DR. WIRT NAMES SECRETARY IN MESSAGE

Congressman Reveals 'Mystery' Contents Of Message

WASHINGTON, March 30 — (AP.)—The name of Secretary Wallace, the Roosevelt chief of agriculture, was injected into the House investigation of Dr. William A. Wirt's Communism charges today.

A telegram received from the Gary (Ind.) schoolmaster, quoted Wallace and several others, whose names were not disclosed.

Representative Foulkes (Dem.), of Michigan, who received the message, said Wirt listed Wallace as saying in effect that some presidential advisors had "not yet decided which way the country is going."

A summons was in preparation today for Wirt to come to Washington and tell the whole story. Representative Bulwinkle (Dem.) of North Carolina, whose resolution for an investigation was adopted late yesterday by the House, said Wirt would get an invitation to appear before a special committee probably late next week.

TELEGRAM GUARDED

Foulkes kept close possession of the Wirt telegram. It was in answer to Foulkes' demand that Wirt name "one of the five men foremost in the Democratic party" credited by the educator with having said President Roosevelt is only the 'Kerensky of this revolution."

Insisting that he must keep the detailed information for the special committee, which Speaker Rainey will name next week, Foulkes allowed reporters a glimpse at the message from Wirt.

The first two words were "Secretary Wallace."

The message read, in part:

"Secretary Wallace recently published the statement 'there can hardly be even a satisfactory tentative answer until we decide which way we want to go. It should be debated in Congress, in public forums in city and in country schoolhouse meetings in every state. The people must be let in on the problem.'

"The question is not a manhunt for a Communist. I (Wirt) congratulate you on your offer to assist in this effort to decide the way wew ant to go. I sincerely regret that owing to the limitations of time and physical strength, I cannot assit you."

Today, Foulkes declined to express himself on the "significanse" of the message from Wirt.

The Michigan Congressman added, however:

"Apparently Dr. Wirt came in like a lion and is going out like a lamb."

WALLACE SMILES

Efforts to reach Wallace for his reaction were unavailing. Close aides of the agriculture secretary, however, were inclined to minimize Wirt's latest action.

They pointed out that Wallace had said on numerous occasions that some of the plans under way were experiments and that it was too early to tell how they would end.

Prior to receipt of the Wirt telegram, Wallace smiled when newspapermen asked him his reaction to the Hoosier schoolmaster's statements that some members of the "Brain Trust" were planning a revolution.

Authoress Weds For Third Time

NEW YORK, March 30.—(AP.)—Ursula Parrott, author of "Ex-Wife" and other best sellers, was married yesterday to John J. Wildberg, attorney, of this city. It was her third marriage.

Some 50 figures in the literary and theatrical worlds witnessed the ceremony, performed in the bride's hotel apartment by Supreme Court Justice Aaron Steuer.

day with the package of money in my pocket. I walked on the right side of Forbes street past the Carnegie Library.

"I didn't know whether I was going to get hit over the head with a lead pipe, if bullets would start flying or if I would be dragged in an automobile. The police, however, told me they had me covered."

A young fellow at his storage company, he said, had offered to dress in his clothes, practice his manner of walking and go in his place. But he said:

"If I am an old man of 73 I told him that I had the gu and that I was going to go through with it. I wasn't the least bit scared. My wife happened to see the first two letters and she was the only one that was scared."

WALKS TWO MILES

Mr. Keenan walked more than two miles, finally winding up at Shady avenue. And he felt "a little disappointed" because nothing had happened.

A thousand feet ahead of him on his walk was a government operative. Another trailed him. Concealed in the shrubbery along Shady avenue lawns were other government men ready to act at the first appearance of the extortionist.

In Dolan's home when he was arrested Postoffice Inspectors D. H. Stephens and L. C. Kennedy and County Detective Walter Monahan reported finding the same kind of stationery used in the four letters sent Keenan.

3 DAYS—THEN A 'RIDE'

First of the letters reached Mr. Keenan in his apartment on March 17. All were mailed from the East Liberty section and printed in large block letters with pencil. One letter directed:

"Get 15,000 in small bills. Will let you know how to deliver it. Three days only. Then a ride. No police. E. D. W."

Another stated:

"Leave apartment 6.10. Walk right side Forbes-Shady-Fifth. Money in right hand pocket. We'll take it out. No police or you will be first to croak. Friday night. Don't take chances."

Two letters ordered Mr. Keenan to insert an advertisement announcing his readiness. On the advice of postal authorities Keenan published this ad:

"Edw: I have it ready."

HIS BEST FRIEND!

Dolan was discharged last July from the storage company. Presumably this led to the first suspicion of him. Yesterday, during a preliminary hearing before the United States Commissioner, Dolan asked to be allowed to telephone Mr. Keenan. He added:

"Mr. Keenan is one of the best friends I have. I was sick in bed the day one of the letters was placed in the mail—and for several days before * * * The charges against me are without foundation."

Mr. Keenan left Pittsburgh for New York, where he is to meet Mrs. Keenan. His wife knew of the threatening letters but Mr Keenan expects she'll be rather surprised to hear of his walk out Forbes street. He said:

"With Dolan arrested I think they got the brains of the scheme. I think perhaps he had several men hired to do the job."

When Mr. Keenan was asked whether he would retain a bodyguard, he replied:

"I'm not that childish."

Dolan spent several hours yesterday in the county jail, after which a sister posted $5,000 bond for him.

AIR LINES BALK AT SHAKEUPS

WASHINGTON, March 30. — (AP.)—Holders of annulled air mail contracts withheld decision today on whether they would reorganize, pending a glimpse of specifications for new contracts.

There were arguments on both sides of whether the air lines would shake up their organizations and seek new bids or continue as they are without air mail aid.

The Postoffice Department has ruled that companies cannot bid until they have ousted officers who participated in the 1930 conference on which collusion charges are based and until they have divorced themselves from holding companies and affiliated firms.

It is felt by some company executives that discharge of the officials might be interpreted as an admission of admin[illegible] charges the old contracts were obtained through collusion.

Will the government borrow the $228,000,000 annually, pay interest on it, and thus make the final cost $556,000,000? or will it have common sense enough to print currency, as bankers print their currency? Government money, with the government's promise to pay printed on green paper without gold back of it is exactly as good as a promise to pay, plus interest, printed on yellow bond paper, also without any gold back of it.

A green promise is as good as the yellow promise, and costs half.

ROOSEVELT'S PROGRAM GETS CLEAR TRACK

Revolt Ended Unless Foreign Controversy Is Injected

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 30. — After staging a dramatic revolt on government pay and veterans' legislation, Congress settled down today to prove its loyalty to President Roosevelt by promptly completing his legislative program.

There appeared little prospect of another serious revolt this session unless Mr. Roosevelt submits a controversial international issue. He cannot obtain power to slash the nation's foreign debts nor can he win ratification of the World Court this session, observers said.

TASTES POWER

The unexpected overriding of his veto on the independent offices appropriation bill gave the new Congress a taste of its power. The ice of revolt was broken, but the Democrats still have tremendous majorities in both House and Senate, ready to follow the President on other domestic legislation.

This was demonstrated when the House promptly enacted a bill granting Mr. Roosevelt's request for power to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements. It authorized him to increase or slash tariff duties. The vote was 273 to 111. A three-year limit was placed on the President's exercise of this power, as the only concession to the staunch opposition. The administration was in complete control.

TAX BILL LOOMS

The Senate meanwhile passed his cotton and cattle relief bills. Both measures drew heated censure from Republicans and some apologies from Democrats, but they were approved by comfortable majorities.

The new tax bill, already approved by the House, will be considered in the Senate next week. Its enactment was assured.

There have been rumors the Senate would revolt again on the tariff. But they were discounted by leaders on both sides.

HIT STOCK BILL

The House passed the soldiers' bonus by a tremendous majority. A week ago the Senate would have defeated it. Now it may pass the Senate by a small majority, but the inevitable presidential veto will be upheld by the Senate and very likely by the House, too. Capitol Hill veterans believe some of the votes to over-ride the President's veto of the disabled veterans' bill were cast that way in anticipation of sustaining his veto of the bonus bill.

The President's request for legislation, regulating the stock market, faces a rough path, according to indications. It, too, will be enacted into law, despite tremendous opposition, if the President insists upon it.

LEAGUE FAVORS SLIDING TARIFF

A large majority of its national council members, answering a questionnaire on the subject, favor the United States seeking foreign trade development by means of tariff flexibility, the National Economic League announced today.

The same group also favors giving the President authority to make treaty arrangements to increase the exchange of national products with specific countries, the report states.

The national council of the league numbers 5,000 representative men, including Andrew W. Mellon, Marcus Aaron, George E. Alter, Arthur E. Braun, Leon Falk, Jr., and Thomas Fitzgerald, all of the Pittsburgh district.

OFFICIALS RUSH NEW RELIEF JOB PLAN

26,000 CWA Men Here Wait Re-Employment Under Change

With 26,000 Civil Work employes discharged, local officials today began the work of preparing to launch the new Relief Work Division plan next week.

Returning from Harrisburg where he conferred with state officials of the RWD, Philip H. Lantz, deputy county administrator, declared that no projects have yet been approved for continuation under the RWD.

WORK OUT DETAILS

He said it was not likely that work would start up even by April 5, and that the number to be employed at first will be about one-half of the number on the CWA payroll in the county.

Lantz and other members of the staff of James L. Stuart, county administrator, conferred this morning with George P. Mills, relief director here. The conference was to work out details regarding the method of "certifying" those who will be re-hired by the RWD.

Lantz explained:

"All those originally from relief rolls—or approximately half of the CWA workers—will be re-employed at once. Others will be added as rapidly as possible."

PROBE APPLICANTS

Mills is investigating the economic status of all CWA workers and those not in want will not be re-hired. Regulations of the RWD provide no person is eligible for a job when any member of his household is otherwise gainfully employed. The rule does not apply to administrative or supervisory personnel.

Petitions signed by 12,000 Allegheny County CWA workers and their dependents were today before President Roosevelt and Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in Washington.

The petitions, pleading for continuation of CWA work, were presented by Arthur T. Fallon, Mrs. Anna Bonar and Edward Haas, all census enumerators.

A one-hour strike of CWA workers, said to have been promoted by Communists, failed yesterday to halt opertaions on a single project, according to reports today to W. N. McDermott, CWA personnel head.

TWO DIE IN FIRE RAZING HOTEL

LONGVIEW, Tex., March 30.—(AP.)—A spectacular fire early today razed the $250,000, 112-room Hotel Longview, taking two lives, injuring a score and leaving others unaccounted for.

So quickly did the flames sweep through the three-story building that 80-odd guests barely had time to escape. Many of them jumped to the street in their night clothes and others were rescued from precarious positions on windowsills by firemen.

D. F. Safford, 45, Dallas, Tex., an employe of an insurance company, was killed when he jumped head first from a third story window. The charred body of another person, whose identity could not be established was found in the ruins.

Mrs. Lewis Lacey, seeing every avenue of escape blocked, tossed her 14-month-old son out of a window. He landed on an awning protruding from a window on the floor below and firemen scrambled up ladders to rescue him and his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. George Downey of Cincinnati also jumped from a second story window but were unhurt.

Dead Financier

OTTO H. KAHN

KAHN'S WIDOW COLLAPSES

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 30. — Funeral arrangements for Otto H. Kahn, internationally known financier and patron of the arts, who died suddenly from a heart attack yesterday, will be completed today.

An announcement regarding funeral arrangements is expected to be made public at Kahn's home.

Mrs. Addie Wolff Kahn, the financier's widow, was reported last night to be prostrated and under the care of a physician.

The banker's death, coming with dramatic suddenness, provided a distinct shock for the metropolis, where he was a noted and familiar figure.

On Tuesday night he was seen for the last time in his box in the famous "Golden Horseshoe" of the Metropolitan Opera House, and appeared to be in excellent spirits.

According to Dr. H. T. Hyman, the financier's personal physician, his death was due to a blood clot on the heart. He collapsed and died instantly while at lunch in his office in the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Building in the financial district.

The news of his death was not made public until after the market closed at 3 p. m.

NASSAU HAILS ROOSEVELT

International News Service.

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 30. — Flying the four-star President's flag, the yacht Nourmahal, carrying President Roosevelt, arrived here at 8:30 o'clock today.

As President Roosevelt, for the second time since he took office, touched British territory, the British naval vessel Danae fired the presidential salute and the band struck up the Star Spangled Banner.

President Roosevelt received the salute from the quarterdeck of the Nourmahal.

The Astor yacht, aboard which the President is enjoying a vacation fishing and cruising in southern waters, steamed slowly up the harbor and came to anchor.

Newspaper men who sought an interview were informed by the President that he regretted he was unable to receive the press.

BATTLE WAGED ON GUARANTEE OF DEPOSITS

Financial Groups Seek To Delay Action For Year

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 30. — An intensive behind-the-scene battle to forestall postponement of the effective date of full insurance of bank deposits for one year was being waged in the House today.

Opposition to the proposed postponement from July 1, this year, until July 1, 1935, was so pronounced that President Roosevelt may be required to settle the row.

The postponement bill, approved by the Treasury and other governmental financial agencies, passed the Senate without much debate. But it has caused a spirited controversy in the House, where the bill for insurance of deposits originated.

UPSET FEARED

While the measure would continue guarantee of deposits up to $2,500, and this is estimated to include 90 per cent of all deposits, House opponents of the postponement proposal fear that it is the beginning of a drive to kill the entire guaranty scheme.

Chairman Steagall (Dem.), of the House Banking Committee, has taken no steps for consideration of the measure in committee, but has already been informed of strong opposition to it.

Treasury officials, in suggesting the postponement, pointed to the administrative difficulties of the Depositors Guaranty Corporation in preparing for full insurance.

SOME BANKS BARRED

Many banks have been unable to put their affairs in order, officials say. Mutual savings associations are barred by most state laws from joining the system.

The full insurance provisions of the Glass-Steagall Act, which would be effective July 1, fully insure deposits up to $10,000 and scale down the insurance over that amount.

The assessments to maintain the fund, however, would be levied against all deposits and would be an unlimited charge on the member banks. Big banking interests have assailed these provisions as unfair.

Insull, Held By Turkey, Collapses On Freighter

International News Service.

ISTANBUL, March 30.—Samuel Insull, halted abruptly in his flight from extradition to the United States, will be held aboard his chartered freighter in the harbor here for at least 48 hours, he was told by Turkish police today.

The fugitive American financier will be subjected to interrogation by a puolic prosecutor. Insull, told this, collapsed.

The American ambassador asked Turkey to arrest Insull and it appeared certain authorities would comply with the American request as a demonstration to please official America.

Officials were confident they would find some legal excuse for carrying out the American request. As it was they had detained the Maiotis apparently in violation of all international law by refusing to allow her to proceed as scheduled yesterday, with her sailing papers in order.

SOFIA, March 30.—(INS.)—Samuel Insull sent a wireless message to a friend here begging him to secure a haven for him in Bulgaria, the newspaper Outro said today.

Martin Insull, Free On Bond, May 'Roam' U. S.

CHICAGO, March 30.—(AP.)—Martin Insull, indicted former utilities official, is free to roam anywhere in the United States.

His right to leave the state was established yesterday when Judge James F. Fardy released him on $50,000 bond on charges of embezzlement.

A hearing of defense motions, including one to quash the charges, was set for April 6.

Insull said he would go to the Morocco (Ind.) home of his daughter, Mrs. William Rafferty.

Russ Recognition Halted New War, Robins Says

By ARTHUR KEATHLEY
International News Service.

BROOKSVILLE, Fla., March 30.—United States action in recognizing Soviet Russia has postponed indefinitely a world conflagration, compared to which the World War was just an afternoon tea party.

Unrecognized by the United States, the Russian nation was a world menace.

Recognized she has become a world asset.

The imminence of war in the Far East has been dissipated by America throwing its might's moral suasion on the side of the Soviets against ambitious, militaristic Japan.

It has served as a silent warning to Japanese and other nations, that were impatiently awaiting an opportunity to dismember the new Russian bear, to lay off.

These are some of the views of Col. Raymond Robins, noted social economist and authority on Russian affairs, which he told International News Service today in the first interview since his strange disappearance 18 months ago while en route from New York to the White House to confer with Herbert Hoover, then President.

Col. Robins termed President Roosevelt's action in recognizing the Soviets "the greatest stroke of statesmanship since 1918." He said:

"The Soviet nation was seething with the fires of a new international bonfire. Leaders of the old order expected to return to power, possibly restoring the czar's regime.

"Germany and Poland on the west and Japan on the east were anxiously awaiting the opportunity to dismember the Soviet nation. Germany and Poland wanted to divide the rich wheat producing Ukraine. Japan wanted Siberia."

U. S. Strikes at Rackets In Copeland Bills

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Racketeering and kidnaping were dealt drastic blows by the federal government today when it became known that the United States Senate passed several bills introduced by Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the committee on crime, to strengthen the government's attack on racketeering.

The bill provides a penalty of up to 99 years' imprisonment for racketeering in trade between the states.

Under this measure the federal government will be empowered to embark on a campaign to prevent extortion or intimidation in any line of business which is carried on in more than one state.

Heretofore, it was pointed out by Senator Copeland, the federal government was handicapped in this form of law enforcement by the inadequate penalties and the limitations of the anti-trust law.

Under the law passed by the Senate, whoever intimidates or threatens a person engaged in such a business, or whoever commits an act which is unlawful under the state law, or whoever extorts money from another or attempts to make such person join an association, or buy or rent from a particular source shall be subject to a punishment of from 1 to 99 years in the penitentiary.

The Lindbergh kidnaping law was strengthened by the Senate's adoption of a bill which makes a three-day absence of an abduction victim presumptive evidence of transportation of such victim from one state to another.

ROME IN MOURNING COMMEMORATES GOOD FRIDAY

PILGRIMS JOIN IN SOLEMN SERVICES

Like Dead City as Devout Observe Great Sacrifice

ROME, March 30.—(AP.)—Pope Pius aided personally today in the commemoration of Jesus Christ's crucifixion by assisting at a pre-sanctified mass in the Sistine Chapel.

The celebrant of the mass was Cardinal Pacelli and it was performed in the presence of 15 cardinals.

Elsewhere in Rome's many Catholic churches, black-vestmented priests prostrated themselves before bare altars and prayed long and earnestly in mournful commemoration of Christ's sacrifice by death for mankind.

The ceremony, which took place in all Roman churches, was called the "presanctified," because officiating priests partook in one kind only of a Eucharest which was consecrated yesterday. At that time two sacraments were blessed and one taken in procession to a so-called sepulchre, or altar of repose, so that the central altars might remain bare today.

PILGRIMS HEAR SERMONS

Adoration of the holy cross marked worships at the four great basilicas. There, the many thousand holy year pilgrims now crowding Rome, heard sermons based on Christ's reproaches to His crucifiers and saw relics of His passion and death.

Other devout pilgrimages went to the holy stairs, which are housed next to the basilica of St. John Lateran. There they ascended the stairs on their knees reciting a prayer at each step. At the top they knelt before a small chapel containing a likeness of Christ supposed to have been painted by St. Luke on wood.

The stairs are said to be the ones which Christ ascended in the house of Pontius Pilate after He had been crowned with thorns.

FEW PEOPLE ABROAD

Rome lay like a dead city between noon and 3 o'clock. Those were the hours that Christ hung on the cross. The people either stayed close at home or went to church.

The hour of the "Desolata" will be devoutly celebrated by Rome as the sun sets on this day of sorrow. It is an hour devoted in many churches to the grief of Mary at the cross, and is accompanied by the best of Roman choir singing.

Theaters, movies and dance halls throughout Italy will be closed tonight as further ceremonies of the night of Good Friday take place in church, chapel and home.

Special Rites in Churches Here Mark Good Friday

Services throughout the day in churches of the Pittsburgh district reflect the solemn significance of Good Friday.

In all Catholic churches the mass of the presanctified was celebrated this morning. Tonight there will be way of the Cross services.

At the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street, the 10 a. m. service was in German and that at 11 a. m. in English. Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Allentown; Christ Lutheran Church, Knoxville, and the Zion Lutheran Church, Mt. Washington, were holding simultaneous services from noon to 3 p. m. The noon service at St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Center and Morewood avenues, were to last one hour.

Music will feature the 4:45 p. m. service at the Third Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Negley avenues, when the choir, directed by Marshall Bidwell, will present "The Seven Last Words." Evening services in a number of churches will also include special music.

The Ben Avon United Presbyterian Church, the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian, Bellefield Presbyterian, Church of the Ascension, the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal, and St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Craft avenue, have all prepared music in accord with the Lenten season.

In the Lemington Presbyterian Church, Grotto street, and the Union Baptist Church, Brownsville and Hornaday roads, Good Friday will be observed with candle light services.

Insull Could Tell Plenty on Topic Of Being Vetoed

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Would be strange if Astor's yacht met Insull's boat. They could race for the America's cup.

Sam could give Franklin some data on vetoes. Sixty-three Senators have sprained necks from nodding in an unexpected direction.

There are times when a veto doesn't work. You can't hand hamburger to the butcher and say:

"Run this backward through the machine and make it dog again."

Historians will have a tough time figuring out the Senate's victory. All the President has to say is:

"How could they defeat me on land when I was at sea?"

Whatever sport writers think about it we still claim it was the administration's most exciting inning.

Awaits Money

DR. WYNEKOOP MAY GET JOB

DWIGHT, Ill., March 30.—(AP.)—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop may become a seamstress in the state's reformatory for women.

She was taken to a hospital room in the reformatory yesterday after her arrival from Chicago to serve a 25-year sentence for the operating table killing of her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

She will remain in isolation for at least two weeks and then be given an examination to determine whether she is able to join in the life of the other inmates and sew.

Her son, Earle, visited the institution yesterday to bid his mother goodby.

LINDBERGH AIDS ILL TEACHER

CHICAGO, March 30.—(AP.)—Virtually penniless and gravely ill, Ira O. Biffle has learned he still had friends—among them his former aviation pupil, Charles A. Lindbergh.

The first contribution to a fund pilots were raising for Biffle came from Lindbergh. The famous flier sent his donation in a note to hospital authorities. It read:

"Please accept this contribution to the fund for Biffle. Please tell him that I'm extremely sorry to hear he is not well and that I hope he makes a fast recovery."

The note was signed, "C. A. Lindbergh."

COURT ORDERS WIDOW'S $700 RETURNED

Aged Coal Lease Broker Fails as Big Profit Schemer

Mrs. Ruth Nicholas, of 2041 Wightman street, Squirrel Hill, has no more faith in miracle men who promise quick fortunes or in that Spanish word manana, which means tomorrow.

Husband dead, family fortunes depleted, Mrs. Nicholas had $700 tucked away to send her son, Raymond, 16-year-old Central Catholic High School student, to college.

Along came William B. Rath, venerable looking 77-year-old coal lease broker and one-time associate of the late John A. Bell, failed millionaire coal baron. Seven hundred dollars was all very nice, the sympathetic Mr. Rath told Widow Nicholas. But $10,000 was not only 10 times as much and as nice, but could be obtained within a week.

The particular goose that was to lay this basket full of golden eggs in the widow's $700 basket, had the shape of a new combustion process which would keep all those poor firemen in mills and factories from tiring themselves out shoveling so much coal, Mrs. Nicholas said.

When the promised week's incubation was over, and the promised eggs were not forthcoming, Mrs. Nicholas waited anxiously for news of her fortune. She waited three years. Several times her faith waivered in that goose and Mr. Rath. She wrote him a number f letters and telephoned him many times. His answer was invariably and consistently:

"Tomorrow. Tomorrow for sure."

Visiting Judge Ivan J. McKenrick yesterday gave Rath 30 days more to make good on that "tomorrow" promise to at least return the original $700. Rath was granted this opportunity to make restitution at the request of Mrs. Nicholas, she said. She continued:

"I could not bear to see that old man go to prison for 10 years. All I wanted was my money back so Raymond could go to school. I'll never let anyone else talk me out of a penny as long as I live."

Rath was also found guilty of giving a $1,000 "rubber" check to R. H. Bellman, of New Kensington, several years ago. He was released on $2,000 bond until the date set for his sentence.

INQUEST HOLDS EX-COWGIRL

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—A Coroner's jury today had returned a verdict holding Mrs. Nellie Madison, 39, former Montana cowgirl, for trial on a charge of murdering her husband, Eric Madison, film studio attache. Her preliminary hearing was scheduled for Monday.

Following the jury's verdict Mrs. Madison was taken under guard to the luxurious apartment in which police charge she shot and killed her husband last Saturday night.

Officers who accompanied her said that she displayed no emotion is she entered the disorderly and still blood-stained room where the bullet marks still are apparent on the walls.

Mrs. Madison was arrested while hiding in a closet on an isolated mountain ranch where she had fled in Madison's expensive automobile a few hours before Madison was found dead.

GRIEVING BRIDE ENDS LIFE

Apparently a suicide, the body of Mrs. Dorothy Shapiro, 26, a bride of three months, was found in her home, 2117 Bedford avenue, by her stepdaughter, Beatrice, 13, according to homicide detectives.

After an investigation, Detective Dennis Timpona and police expressed belief that the bullet wound in the young bride's temple was self-inflicted. Near her right hand lay a .32-caliber revolver, which her husband, Max Shapiro, who conducts a tailor shop at 1843 Bedford avenue, said he had never seen before.

Beatrice went to her father's tailor shop after she had tried for several hours to enter the locked house. Her father gave her the key and when she entered she found the body lying on a bed.

Police were told that Mrs. Shapiro was brooding over the death of her mother last July.

BODY OF SLAIN BOY FOUND

ROCKFORD, Ill., March 30.—(AP.)—Discovery of the body of Charles Backus, Jr., 8, came yesterday, less than 24 hours after his father was sentenced to prison on a manslaughter charge—the most serious complaint officials thought advisable because the body was missing.

Since Backus was sentenced on one charge he cannot be tried for murder in connection with this crime, officials said.

The body was found in Rock River, north of Rockford.

Charles Backus said he accidentally killed the boy two months ago and then shoved the body into a hole in the ice.

Judge Arthur E. Fisher sentenced Backus to one to 14 years for manslaughter and to 20 years on each of two statutary charges, growing out of complaints of two step-daughters. Sentences run concurrently making him eligible for parole in 13 years.

Easter School Holiday Leaves Strike 'In Air'

Teacher Reinstated After Students Yell Protest

BENTLEYVILLE, Pa., March 30.—With the Easter school holiday in force, status of the Bentleyville High School students' strike today was something of an "unknown factor."

The strike holiday was declared at noon yesterday, two and a half hours before the Easter holiday was to begin, because the contract of R. D. Roche, French and English teacher, was not renewed at a special meeting of the school board the preceding night.

Acting hastily while 425 students paraded and shouted outside the school, the board called another special meeting and rescinded all action taken at the previous meeting, thereby reinstating Prof. Roche and removing the cause of the strike.

SITUATION UP IN AIR

Meanwhile, the students clung to plans for another protest meeting Monday morning, and with two holidays under way it was not definitely known what was what.

While dismissing Roche, the school board announced employment of Mrs. I. N. South, wife of a former burgess of Bentleyville. She was not engaged to replace Roche, however, according to J. L. Brown, president of the board. Students pointed out that Roche was married and had a family, while Mrs. South, a relief investigator for Washington County, had adequate means of support.

In addition, it was declared, action requiring dismissal of all married women was taken by the board last year.

'GUESS IT'S POLITICS'

Asked why, in view of this action, the board decided to re-employ Mrs. South, who until last year had been a member of the high school staff, Brown said:

"Oh! I guess there's some politics here."

Roche was to have been dropped, Brown said, because the board had decided to discontinue the French course and substitute commercial studies. Miss Regina Kolonsky had been designated to teach the commercial course, Brown said. Mrs. South was to teach English, according to R. J. Hartzel, supervising principal.

Senior and junior students taught by Roche were thought to have promoted the strike, Hartzel said. Roche, a member of the faculty for five years, is very popular among the students.

CO-ED'S MOTHER BEGS RETURN

MANITOWOC, Wis., March 30.—(AP.)—Declaring she is ill and feels she will not live much longer, Mrs. John Pollock, mother of Miss Eunice Pollock, University of Wisconsin co-ed who has been missing 12 days, appealed to the press yesterday to help bring the girl home.

The message read:

"Dearest darling daughter: Since I learned of your disappearance your father and I have been praying day and night for your return. I am on my knees most of the time asking the Lord that you may come back. We will be willing to do anything if you will only come home. If you do not come soon you will never see me again, because I cannot last much longer. Come, come, please come home. Everything will be all right and we will all be happy again. If you see this, telegraph us at once that you are coming. Mother and father."

Miss Pollock disappeared after she was expelled by a "secret court" from a sorority at Madison.

TORTURE DEATH SUSPECTS HELD

A gruesome story of death in a Western Pennsylvania miner's shack flared to new life today as county detectives probed deeper into the torture slaying a year ago of Frank and Katherine Kuschulak, aged Champion Hill couple.

While detectives delved into the double killing, two men arrested in connection with the case were being held for examination. A bloodstained miner's pick and a butcher knife were the only clues to the identity of the slayers, detectives said.

The suspects are Kost Ostastensky and Alex Zugar, both former residents of the Champion Hiss district. Following several days' surveillance they were arrested Thursday night in a Forbes street rooming house.

Late yesterday the two were identified by Nickoden and Margaret Yojpieth, Noblestown, as the men who forced entrance into their home and tortured them in an attempt to extort money several days after the Kuschulak killings, detectives said.

FIFI 'WORKING' AT FARMING

International News Service.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Clad in rough dungarees and sweater, Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former Fifi Potter Stillman, of Eastern and continental society, today was sharing a farmer's life with her youthful millionaire husband.

While workmen are completing their low, rambling farmhouse Fifi and young McCormick are living in quarters in the upper part of a barn that was on the farm they recently purchased at Barrington, Ill. She explained:

"We really are just farm people. We're sincere. We're not check-book farmers, we really work at it. A farm is like any other business, and either you make it pay, or you pay for it. Ours is going to pay."

JEAN NASH SEES DEATH KNIFE AT SON'S TRIAL

'Best Dressed Woman' Calm as Prosecutor Waves Weapon

NEW YORK, March 30.—(AP.)—The federal government yesterday completed its case against Andrew Donaldson Kirwan, nerve-afflicted 23-year-old youth accused of slaying Gilliam Sessoms on the high seas.

Meanwhile, it was indicated the defense would be that the victim's fatal stab wounds were self-inflicted.

Technically, the government's case against Kirwan, son of Mme. Jean Nash DuBonnet, described as the "best dressed woman in Europe," will remain open until the trial resumes Monday, but Federal Judge Robert A. Inch said he expected the defense to open early that day.

As a climax witness to its charge that Kirwan mortally stabbed Sessoms aboard the S. S. President Garfield 600 miles off New York in a gin drinking-religious argument, the government called Dr. Mandell Jacobi, who performed an autopsy on Sessom's body after his death in the Staten Island Hospital.

KNIFE DISPLAYED

U. S. Attorney Martin Conboy, white-haired prosecutor, dramatically held before the witness the alleged murder weapon, a long-bladed knife with a deer's foot handle.

Through the hours of testimony Kirwan, face twitching, stared fixedly ahead, apparently paying little heed to witnesses, and manifesting no interest as the long knife was repeatedly displayed.

In contrast his mother, again fashionably attired, and her fifth husband, M. Paul DuBonnet, French vintner, followed the testimony with avid interest, frequently leaning forward in their chairs behind the defendant.

Capt. Gregory Cullen, master of the ship on which the tragedy occurred February 10, described Sessoms as "stupidly drunk" and the defendant, Kirwan, as "imbecile drunk."

TELLS OF ROUGH SEA

The captain testified also that, when the stabbing affray occurred, the ship was laboring against northwest swells, and pitching sharply, a fact that caused him to postpone a dance scheduled for that night.

It became increasingly apparent that the defense would rely on the thesis that Sessoms, found in his cabin opposite that of Kirwan, had carried the knife to his cabin and stabbed himself, due to his condition and the pitching of the boat.

Mrs. Blacklidge Wins Right to Post Bond

CHICAGO, March 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former internal revenue collector, hoped to celebrate her birthday today by winning release from jail on bond.

Discovery of an error in the bond was all that prevented her release yesterday, pending appeal of the case in which Mrs. Norman Nottingham had her jailed for failure to pay a $7,500 judgment for alienation of the affections of Mrs. Nottingham's husband.

HAWAIIAN SUGAR MEN ANSWER WALLACE

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—The sugar cauldron set boiling by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently in connection the Roosevelt administration's plans for sugar quotas aimed to aid the domestic growers, continued to bubble over yesterday as a result of fresh fuel added to the controversy by a conference in this city of Hawaiian sugar growers. The meeting was presided over by John Waterhouse president of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association.

CLAIMS STATE RIGHTS

Speaking for the Hawaiian planters after the conference today, Waterhouse reiterated the fact which the island sugar interests consider obvious that Hawaii cannot by any strength of the imagination be placed on a parity with our insular possessions.

Since 1900, he points out, the status of the islands has been that of our own western states when they, too, occupied the position of territories. Hawaii today, he declares, is an integral part of the United States and as bound up with our national economy as is any mainland state. Hawaii will be forced to defend her constitutional rights in the courts in the event of discriminating legislation.

Waterhouse declared:

"Hawaii is not insensitive to the plight of the Cuban sugar industry. But we insist that Hawaiian growers, who have maintained the highest wages and best living conditions in the entire sugar industry—domestic or foreign—should not be penalized in the process of helping a low-wage industry abroad.

CITES BOND

"In a statement issued by the administration recently, domestic producers were improperly defined as those within the continental limits of the United States—the high-cost growers. Hawaii is definitely a high-cost grower in the matter of equipment, mechanization, scientific development and labor costs.

"The Hawaiian standard of living is the American standard and the maintenance of this standard has made possible Hawaii's 75 million dollar trade with the American mainland.

"The 155,000 persons on Hawaii's industrial and commercial payroll are as dependent for their security upon the protection of the territory's chief industry from the competition of foreign low-cost producers as is the mainland American farmer in the beet sugar states."

FOUR CHILDREN HURT BY AUTOS

William Johnston, 7, of 424 South Fairmount avenue, was in Homeopathic Hospital today with a probable skull fracture and other injuries suffered when struck by an automobile while roller skating at Baum boulevard and Roup street, according to police. Police said the automobile was driven by Arthur Sharp, 27, of 4401 Penn avenue.

James Scott, 7, of 222 Second avenue, Laurel Gardens, Ross Township, suffered a probable skull fracture when struck by an automobile on the Perry highway near his home late yesterday. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Returning home from Bellefield School, late yesterday, Charlotte Dobies, 14, of 3032 Brereton avenue, was struck by an automobile. She was taken to Montefiore Hospital.

Mary Betters, 3, of 1237 Walnut street, McKeesport, suffered a skull fracture when, police said, she ran against the rear fender of a truck in front of her home yesterday. She was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

MRS. CHAPLIN RITES SET

Funeral services for Mrs. Fanny Campbell Chaplin, wife of the president of the Colonial Trust Company who died at her home on Frederick avenue, Sewickley, yesterday, will be held at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Sewickley, at 3 p. m. tomorrow. She had been ill since Saturday.

Mrs. Chaplin was born in old Allegheny, the daughter of the late Col. David Campbell, one of the founders and a commander of the old Duquesne Grays, famous Pittsburgh regiment in the Union Army during the Civil War. Her family moved to Sewickley when Mrs. Campbell was a small girl. She was a member of St. Stephen's Church and the Edgeworth and Allegheny Country Clubs.

Besides her husband she leaves two sons, James Corsan Chaplin III, and David Campbell Chaplin, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell Stewart.

Youth 3rd Victim In Boy Gang Feud

CHICAGO, March 30.—(INS.)—Joseph Garelli, 18, lay dead today with a .45 caliber bullet through his heart, the third victim of what police said was a feud among boy gangsters.

Three youths strode into a Sholto street saloon and, finding Garelli seated at a table with several companions, opened fire.

The dead boy's brother, Tony Garelli, 12, was shot to death last July. A similar death was meted out to Joseph Spinnato, 18, after a jury acquitted him of the murder of the 12-year-old Tony.

Salesman Kills Waitress and Self

DANVILLE, Ill., March 30.—(AP.)—William Reed, middle-aged auto salesman of Covington, Ind., and Letha Layton, 38, a waitress, were found shot to death in Mrs. Layton's apartment here by her parents.

A note found in the handwriting of Reed, directed to his wife and children, told that he was "planning an awful thing." Police said he apparently killed the woman and then himself.

Borough Employes Go On Welfare Lists

Two borough employes of West Homestead were placed on the welfare list yesterday and two more were expected to be added to the list today as a result of holding up of pay, it was learned today. Both men who yesterday applied for aid have families, and have been working for more than a month without pay. One received $16 weekly and the other $40 per month.

The pay has been held up due to a fight between the Burgess and Council over signing of the budget.

'Legs' Diamond Foe Held in Paris Death

PARIS, March 30.—(Universal.)—French police today held on a murder charge connected with the Stavisky swindle inquiry a Monacan gangster who is said to have slugged the late notorious Jack (Legs) Diamond in a Parisian nightlife resort.

The prisoner is Gaetan de l'Herbon de Lussats, self-styled "baron," known in the French underworld as the "toughest torpedo in Paris."

Hurls Telephone At Girl to Keep Same Number

CHICAGO, March 30.—(AP.)—Called to explain an accusation that he yanked a telephone from the wall and hurled it at the head of Miss Edna Brown, Charles Wilson said:

"Judge, I had to. You see we were moving and I wanted to keep the same telephone number."

Miss Brown was accused of shooting Wilson, and the case was dismissed.

COMMUNISTS IN U. S. WORK TO ESTABLISH SOVIET POWER

NATION PERILED BY 'HANDFUL' OF REDS

By RALPH M. EASLEY

Chairman Executive Council, the National Civic Federation.
As Told to EARL REEVES.

"Only the destruction of the capitalistic system, the establishment of a revolutionary workers' government, of the SOVIET POWER, can free the millions of toilers from the bondage and misery of the capitalistic system. There is no way out of the crisis except by taking the road pointed out by the victorious working class of the Soviet Union."

The above is from the final section of a resolution to be discussed and passed at the eighth convention of the Communist Party of America, opening IN CLEVELAND APRIL 3RD.

That resolution follows in significant parallel the recently published "thesis" of the Red International of Moscow, TO WHICH EVERY COMMUNIST PARTY MEMBER IN AMERICA PLEDGES FEALTY.

The resolution contains a report on party activities.

It says:

"It was instrumental in stimulating and organizing the outstanding strike struggles of the first crisis years (40,000 miners in Pennsylvania and Ohio, textile strikes in Lawrence, Patterson, etc.), stimulate the first important strikes of the workers in the A. F. of L., SET IN MOTION THE BIG STRIKE MOVEMENT OF LAST YEAR.

"During the course of last year the Communists participated in ALMOST EVERY IMPORTANT STRIKE, LED 200,000 WORKERS THROUGH THE REVOLUTIONARY UNIONS IN MILITANT BATTLE, and played an increasing role in the strikes of the A. F. of L. workers and independent unions.

PARTY IN U. S. MUST TREBLE MEMBERSHIP

From Communist sources come reports that C. P., U. S. A., must treble its membership within a year or suffer disciplinary reorganization by Moscow's Red International.

On Moscow's orders, and following an "extraordinary conference" held in New York last July, there has been accelerated Communist activity of all kinds during recent months. Significant gains:

Thousands of party members added. Ten thousand ex-service men organized by Communists. Three hundred Communist camps—for study and training—established in America. Young Communist League driving for 25,000 new members. Eight field organizers being sent out to expand the "revolutionary student movement," particularly in the high schools. Daily Worker circulation advanced FROM 26,000 TO 70,000 IN FOUR MONTHS.

Such figures, in a nation so big, seem insignificant. They seem to justify "a handful of Reds" as a typically disparaging phrase used to describe any Communist agitation, strike or riot.

'Handful of Reds' Held Grave Peril

And so we say, "Oh, just a handful of Reds," and thereby prove that WE FAIL COMPLETELY TO UNDERSTAND COMMUNISM, ITS TACTICS AND ITS DANGERS. It is necessary that we SHONLD understand. Therefore I wish to illustrate how little mass figures mean to Communism.

1. It was, relatively, only a "handful of Reds" who mastered Russia. Dr. P. Sorokin—who was secretary to Kerensky and is now a professor of sociology at Harvard University—estimates that during the Kerensky regime Communist Party membership in Russia was 30,000 to 60,000 only.

Even as late as 1929, party membership in Russia was only 1,400,000 out of a population of 160,000,000. This figure is official, from a Soviet year book.

2. In Germany in 1932 there were but 300,000 Communist party members, but in an election the vote for Communist candidates approached 6,000,000 — at the ratio of 20 Communist ticket voters for each party member.

3. When, in 1929, the Red International had completed the disciplining of Communist Party, U. S. A. —"by expulsion of the Rights," and retention of only the most militant revolutionists—membership in C. P., U. S. A. was REDUCED to 8,000.

4. The following year, however, "at the call of the Communist Party of America and the Trade Union Unity League (Communist), 1,250,000 workers in all industrial towns of U. S. A., came out on the streets on March 6, on the international day of struggle against unemployment."

The Communist Party of America has no concern with majorities. It is not a political party. IT IS A REVOLUTIONARY ARMY, IN ITS ORGANIZATION, TACTICS AND DISCIPLINE.

Those who are "theoretical," merely "pink," hesitant or squeamish—are either cast out, or they are demoted and given extra tasks, in the performance of which they may prove their militancy.

PITTSBURGHER 'ANGEL' REDUCED TO RANKS

Consider an example of Communist discipline:

A wealthy young man of Pittsburgh became the chief financial supporter and general secretary—chief executive officer—of the Young Communist League. The Young Communist International of Moscow found him 'too theatrical." He was removed in 1931.

Today he is reputed to be the "angel" behind the expansion of the Young Worker, in February, to eight-page weekly form. Nevertheless, this young man who had been a 'general" now remains only a 'corporal," Under an assumed name, he works as a "field organizer" — and whether he again advances in the party ranks depends on whether he proves his Red militancy.

Those disaffected elements of the population which are being used by Communists in "preparing the way" for "Soviet power" are duped not only by Communists but BY THEIR OWN THINKING. And those of us who have no traffic with Communism misjudge Communism because we are betrayed BY INHERITED HABITS OF THOUGHT.

Non-Communist "sympathizers"—who join strikes, or protests, or riotous demonstrations—think Communism means a wider, all-embracing democracy.

Other millions, who have no use for Communism, think that "it can never amount to anything in America," because it could never become a major party.

The truth is that while Communists now seek to bring about a "mass revolution"—an uprising of many disaffected, desperate, even Communistically inclined elements of the population—THEY HAVE NO INTENTION OF SHARING "SOVIET POWER."

DICTATORSHIP SOUGHT BY SMALL GROUP

The "dictatorship of the proletariat"—so-called — which Communists seek to establish in America would be a dictatorship of—relatively, as compared with the whole population—"a handful of Reds."

It would be a dictatorship of a relatively small group of professional revolutionists. Incidentally, of men who have not been "workers" for many years. (The professional revolutionists doesn't take employment; his "trade" is revolution.)

Finally, this dictatorship through a militant minority would be vassal to the Third International of Moscow, and Stalin, its head.

There are elements both of strength and of weakness in the form of this revolutionary plot. Its strength lies in its secrecy, in the tactics of "boring from within," in the strategy of concentration on vital points in our social, economic and industrial organization.

As for the weak spot:—the only thing Communists must fear is what they call "isolation."

Basically, isolation brought about by throwing the white light of day upon their maneuvers. They cannot retain control of their non-Communist allies in numbers sufficient for revolution IF THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN DUPED SEE THE WHOLE BOLSHEVIK PLOT CLEARLY.

The millions who have shown "sympathy," or "leanings," are NOT for Red October in America, or Moscow-rule, or dictatorship. Without these millions of 'tools of Communism," the Communist party cannot bring about revolution. Without the "dupes," the plot is puny—and doomed.

(This is the fifth of a series of articles on the startling progress of industrial Communism in the United States. The sixth will appear in an early issue of this newspaper, probably tomorrow.)

Beatrice Lillie Signs New Movie Contract

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—(AP.)—Beatrice Lillie, English musical comedy star, is returning to Hollywood to appear in a two-reel comedy for R. K. O. The studio said it has an option on her services for future films also.

STATE SURVEYS CROP LOSSES

HARRISBURG, March 30.—(AP.)—The State Department of Agriculture is taking stock of the damage done to Pennsylvania fields and orchards by the sub-zero temperatures and terrific winds of recent months.

Farmers in some parts of the state report that the winter just ended was the worst killer in 30 years. They estimated hundreds of thousands of dollars damage caused by blizzards, and fear that the winds and prolonged rains of the spring will cause further loss.

Pennsylvania's orchards are in no condition to withstand more punishment, they, assert. Early reports said the peach crop virtually was ruined. However, later surveys indicate that the damage was not as heavy as first feared.

LEAGUE FIGHTS ANNEXATION TO CITY

The League of Boroughs, Townships and Cities of the Third Class of Allegheny County today stood on record as opposed to forcible annexation to the City of Pittsburgh.

Meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last night, the organization passed a set of resolutions calling for vigorous opposition in the municipalities they represent to legislation that would effect a merger with Pittsburgh or a union of municipalities unless the voters involved agree to the change.

BEST LEADS FIGHT

William E. Best, former Dormont burgess and examiner for the Public Service Commission, denounced annexation, saying:

"After considering its ability to select political leaders, I haven't any desire to be connected with the City of Pittsburgh."

Other speakers included Joseph T. Miller, of Edgewood, president of the League; W. E. Armstrong, of Baldwin township, president of the Association of Township Commissioners, and Louis W. Hagmaier, burgess of Aspinwall, and chairman of the legislative committee of the State Borough Association.

GRAFT SPREAD SEEN

Declaring that an enlargement of the city would tend to spread political corruption, Armstrong called for a guarantee against forcible annexation. He asserted:

"Wide distribution of power and not centralization is the secret of good government."

The meeting was the first held by the League in three years. Formed in 1910, it has consistently fought what Mr. Miller termed "super-government" bills, aimed at consolidation of local powers.

HOOVER HEADS FOR IOWA

KANSAS CITY, March 30.—(AP.)—A smiling, sun-tanned Herbert Hoover headed for his boyhood state of Iowa today, leaving political tongues wagging.

The former President spent the night here—the scene of his nomination for the presidency—the latest stop of an automobile trip through the west that seems to swell in extent and significance with every mile.

He had as companion Lawrence Richey, one of his White House secretaries.

When Hoover left California last Saturday, the journey was described as a short vacation trip. There was no indication it was to carry him this far. He said he might drive to Chicago.

Although he says the trip is without political significance, leaders point out it is giving him a "grass root" survey of how the western and mid-western farmers feel about the "new deal."

CHARGES MATE SENT HER HOME

After a six months' honeymoon, her husband put her in a taxicab and sent her home and did not live with her after that, Eleanor M. Woolheater, pretty brunette of Oakland avenue, testified before Judge Elder W. Marshall in seeking a divorce from Charles A. Woolheater, machinist.

Mrs. Woolheater told Judge Marshall that her husband did not support her properly.

After the wedding they went to Buffalo to live. The libellant was only 15 when she was married in Pittsburgh in 1928, her husband at that time being 22. Mrs. Woolheater has one child. The libellant was represented by Attorney Leonard Shapiro.

Motorcycle Upsets Sidecar Rider Hurt

Riding in the sidecar of a motorcycle which upset while making a turn from Corliss street into West Carson street at midnight, Anthony Scholz, 26, of 716 Bucyrus street, was taken to Presbyterian Hospital with a concussion of the brain.

Gerard Werling, 26, 800 Steuben street, driver, was uninjured.

Jailed for Fighting, Woman Fires Clothes

SCRANTON, Pa., March 30.—(INS.)—Mrs. Marguerite Snedkar, 29, of Poyntelle, Pa., was confined to State Hospital here today with serious burns suffered when she set fire to herself while being held in a cell at police headquarters on a charge of fighting.

State Rum Stores Closed on Holiday

Caustic Drink Kills Harmarville Man

Score of Defectives Ordered Sterilized

HILDENSHEIM, Germany, March 30.—(INS.)—Twenty-two mental and physical defectives were ordered sterilized in sentences handed down by a local eugenics court today.

Saw Husband From a Cab

MRS. ELEANOR M. WOOLHEATER . . . SHE'S SUING FOR DIVORCE

Youthful Mrs. Woolheater, mother of a 4-year-old, 5110 Second avenue, who told Judge Elder Marshall in divorce court that she last saw her husband several years ago when at a Pittsburgh depot he put her into a taxicab, told her to go to her mother and that he'd go to his. She charges desertion. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Good Friday Sermonette

The Right Rev. Alexander Mann, Bishop of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, Protestant Episcopal Church, is the minister chosen by the Pittsburgh Council of the Churches of Christ to write the Good Friday Lenten Sermonette. He centers his address on the Crucifixion of Christ.

Those of us who are familiar with the medieval paintings of the crucifixion have observed, no doubt, that in those paintings the artists made not the slightest attempt at correct antiquarian detail, and we have smiled perhaps as we looked upon Roman soldiers clad in knightly armor, and Jewish priests masquerading in monkish robes.

But did it ever occur to us what a terrible irony underlies this seeming ignorance, and that those old paintings are really witnessing to the tragic truth that the Crucifixion of Jesus was not after all an exceptional bit of human history, that on the contrary it was just an episode which is being continually repeated, which is universal history writ large? That those actors in Our Lord's Passion, the Chief Priests, Pilate, Herod, the Jewish people are after all only the time embodiments of the beliefs, the prejudices, the ambitions, the lusts, the ignorance which are all alive and working in our day?

This, it seems to me, is the great and heart searching truth which Good Friday brings home to us—that everything in the world of His day combined to bring Jesus Christ to the Cross. Not only the wickedness of bad men, but the weakness and the failure of good men, every force in human society, pride of place, social respectability, professional privilege, political expediency, coarse sensuality, blind and heedless ignorance, all these together with the silence and the timidity of the best people wrought that supreme tragedy of the ages.

So the Cross that stood that day on Calvary stands today invisibly yet most really, along the highway of the world's life and thought. So Good Friday comes and in the searching light of that Cross bids us see ourselves as we really are, our inner lives, our secret desires, our controlling motives, and then asks us in what group about that Cross we find ourselves.

CITY OFFICER REINSTATED

Patrolman Earl McDonald, suspended during the investigation in which City Detective Edward McEntee was charged with compounding a felony in receiving stolen goods, had been reinstated today by Ralph E. Smith, Director of Public Safety.

In announcing the reinstatement, Smith said:

"I have lifted the bar and let McDonald out. He had nothing to do with the loot."

McEntee and City Detective James McCoy face charges in connection with the recovery of loot stolen from Louis Seibert, of 1672 Perrysville avenue.

BALDWIN BOARD OUSTER HINTED

Warring factions of Baldwin Township's Board of Commissioners today faced the possibility of being ousted and a new board being named by the court.

Judge W. Heber Dithrich at a hearing yesterday hinted that he would take such action unless the two groups on the present board settle their differences promptly.

The board is divided four to four. Hold-over members demand the right to name the more important township offices, it developed. The new members objected. The court will set a date for final arguments on ouster petitions filed by both sides.

THREE ACCUSED IN DEATH PLOT

BOSTON, March 29.—(AP.)—Marshall L. Cross, 24, Boston lawyer, was arrested today on a warrant charging conspiracy to murder his father-in-law, a wealthy retired rubber manufacturer. He denied the charges.

An alleged plot to have his father-in-law, Francis W. Vaughn, now of Daytona, Fla., slain in a faked holdup was charged by police against Cross, while Ernest W. Pollister, 19, of Lynn, who allegedly was to have carried out the plot, was held on the same charge.

On information furnished by Pollister, Lynn officers later arrested Thomas Karydis, 27, on a similar charge. Police said Karydis was the "contact" man, who introduced Cross and Pollister.

Cross married Vaughn's daughter, Mabel, last August. They became estranged in December. Cross, police claimed, blamed his father-in-law for the estrangement.

Pollister, police said, was hired for $400 by Cross to go to Florida, stage a fake holdup and kill Vaughn.

Lincoln's Relative Dies at Age of 72

BRISTOL, Conn., March 30.—(INS.)—Abraham F. Lincoln, 72, a fourth cousin of Abraham Lincoln, who conducted a painting contract business here for more than 40 years, was dead today following a sudden heart attack.

Loses Cash, Watch In Street Holdup

Police today sought two Negro robbers who held up Ben Shapiro, of 5517 Hays street, at Tacoma and Oakwood streets, early today and robbed him of $6 and a wrist watch.

INSANE BEATEN, GUARD REVEALS

MADISON, Wis., March 30.—(AP.)—Previous testimony of the choking, beating and abuse of inmates at the Mendota State Hospital for the Insane was substantiated today by Roy Hulse, University of Wisconsin student who has been working at the institution as a night attendant.

Hulse told of the enforced feeding of a patient in this manner:

A wet towel was twisted around the patient's neck until his wind was shut off. When the towel was released and the patient opened his mouth to gasp for air, food was forced down his throat.

He related another instance where an attendant sewed up a long gash in the head of a patient without knowledge of hospital doctors.

of the power company. The sale was consummated.

Later, the evidence showed, Yancy Caldwell succeeded Fryer as City Attorney in Paris. Becoming suspicious over the transaction which led to the sale of the municipal plant, he brought suit in the Federal District Court at Memphis to void the contract. The court upheld Caldwell's contention, declaring in its opinion that the contract "was obtained by bribery of Fryer as City Attorney of Paris through the agency of Byrd."

The opinion declared:

"The means therefor were provided by the defendant and by other corrupt and unethical practices."

Later the decision was reversed by the United States Circuit Court on the ground that the city waited too long to institute proceedings for redress.

'PRICE WAR' REVENGE

Evidence was also introduced by McDermott to show that the Kentucky-Tennessee Company lost a campaign of retaliation against J. T. Porter, a member of the City Council, who had led the fight against sale of the municipally-owned plant. According to this evidence, the utility company bought two locally-owned coal and ice plants and started a "price war", in an effort to destroy Porter's coal and ice business.

McDermott submitted a letter from H. D. Fitch, president of the Kentucky-Tennessee Company, to S. J. McGee, vice president of the Associated Gas and Electric Company, declaring:

"In the political mix-up, Jim Porter, the present owner of the opposition ice plant, is a dominant factor in the new Council.

"We have set up a very severe ice competition with his company, and he is beginning to squeal."

McDermott revealed that examination of the utility company's books showed it reduced the price of ice from 60 cents to 10 cents per hundredweight in its effort to apply pressure against Porter. The books showed that this price represented a loss to the company.

Testimony was offered earlier in the hearing showing that the Associated Gas and Electric Company spent $176,000,000 to maintain the price of its stock on the exchange, at the same time that its salesmen were offering this stock to the public.

ELECTION EXPENSES

Evidence of power ring payments of election expenses to a New York legislator instrumental in killing utility reform bills was presented before the Federal Trade Commission yesterday.

Four letters, discovered in the files of the J. G. White Management Corporation, exposed concrete examples of power trust influence over legislation, dramatically confirming recent charges by Republican State Chairman Macy against the old guard faction in his own party.

The letters were written to two utility executives by State Senator Warren T. Thayer, Franklin County Republican. For years prior to 1933 Thayer served as chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee which passes on all utility reform bills.

SUBMITTED BILLS

In two of the letters Thayer submitted bills for his expenses in local elections of 1927 and 1928 to S. J. Magee, vice president of the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation, mentioning a prior agreement for their payment by a subsidiary company.

At the same time, Senator Thayer remarked in his letter dated March 28, 1927:

"I hope my work during the past session was satisfactory to your company, not so much for the new legislation enacted, but from the fact that many detrimental bills which were introduced we were able to kill in my committee."

To this boast of his own effective efforts in behalf of the power companies, Thayer added in the other two letters reports of similar services by two of his Republican colleagues, former Assemblyman Willis Sargent and Senator Walter W. Westall, of Westchester County.

Westall, now under fire in his home district for his unremitting opposition to Gov. Lehman's utility program, amended a municipal water works bill to make it conform with the ideas of the private companies. Thayer wrote to Magee. This letter, dated March 17, 1927, concluded:

"When this bill is reprinted I will send you a copy of it for your consideration and to see if the objectionable features have been eliminated."

AMENDMENTS FIXED

Sargent fixed up amendments suggested by the International Paper Company to two other bills, Thayer advised C. A. Greenidge, of the White Company, in the last letter, dated March 15, 1928. The letter continued:

"After you have examined them (the amended bills) and if you feel that they should be held up in the Senate, you had better call me on the phone at Chateaugay either Friday or Saturday."

Because the letters referred to purely intra-state affairs, the Federal Trade Commission has no authority to delve further into the matter, it was indicated.

However, their publication, it was expected here, may lead to a legislative inquiry in New York.

chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee which handles utility legislation, had been satisfactory, have caused a stir in political circles such as the Capitol has not witnessed in years.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who is now battling for a 12-point program which would give the state more drastic control over utilities, refused to comment on the alleged linking of Senator Thayer with the utility interests, but he did say:

"I'm for letting in the light. Government should not be conducted in the dark."

Senator Thayer made it plain, however, from his home in Chateaugay, Franklin County, that he had no intention of asking the Senate to investigate in order to establish his vindication. He said:

"I don't see why I should. So far as I am concerned, I am not interested in an investigation by the Senate."

He said, however, he was ready to go to Washington and testify before the Federal Trade Commission.

N. Y. American Expose Of Power Trust Upheld

NEW YORK, March 30.—(Universal.)—The disclosures made in Washington before the Federal Trade Commission bore out revelations made in the New York American of power ring influence in legislation.

That the power trust has manipulated legislation and has been able for years to block passage of utility reform bills was established in the series of articles which emphasized its operations in Westchester County.

State Senator Walter W. Westall, of Westchester, whose name figured in the Thayer correspondence, is the whip of the Republican contingent of two Senators and four Assemblymen, in Albany.

He held this assembly group in line, despite the tremendous drive of citizens and civic organizations, during the Assembly fight over the redesignation of Fred W. Hammond as Assembly Clerk. Republican State Chairman Macy's charge that Hammond was a tool of the power trust impelled hundreds of Westchesterites to demand that their assemblymen oppose Hammond's choice. They voted, however, for his retention.

When the New York American's series was well under way, Westall made a statement declaring that he disapproved public ownership of utility plants. At that time, as now, there was pending a bill that would enable municipalities to vote for the ownership and operation of their own plants.

Albany Predicts Probe Of Power Combine

ALBANY, N. Y., March 30.—(INS.)—An investigation by the Senate of the alleged connection of Senator Warren T. Thayer, veteran Republican, with the power interests, as a result of the disclosures before the Federal Trade Commission at Washington, was predicted today at the Capitol.

Letters allegedly written by Senator Thayer to the Associated Gas and Electric Company, including one which asked if his services as

JOHNSON ACTS TO INCREASE PAYROLLS

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP.)—The government is determined to press its re-employment drive, and may branch out into new fields in so doing.

Two principal developments stimulated interest in the movement:

1—A letter from Hugh S. Johnson to all code authorities in the durable goods and consumer goods and service industries, asking immediate reports on how many more men they could employ—to which he added "and if not, why not."

2—A federal survey of possible new investment fields into which idle private capital could be poured to provide more work for the jobless.

APRIL 4 DEADLINE

The NRA chief minced no words in asking for possible re-employment statistics from the two big industry groups. Both were requested to report not later than April 4.

Johnson's action was taken after reading reports from the two special industrial committees created after the round-up of criticism here. The reports said it would be unwise to order a flat 10 per cent reduction in working hours while keeping wages at the same level.

PLAN STUDIED

The new investment survey plan is closely allied with this movement. A drive for home construction and modernization might play a part, although, in the words of Frank C. Walker, head of the President's emergency council, the project is still in the study stage.

Into the scheme could be fitted such projects already contemplated by the government as creation of subsistence homesteads, slum clearance and emergency housing.

One of the things not yet decided, however, is whether the government would step directly into the financing, or act as guide for investment of private capital.

Whipped by NRA, Thomas Tells Labor

CAMDEN, N. J., March 30.—(AP.)—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency in 1932, says labor has been "badly whipped" in the automobile industry controversy, which was settled by President Roosevelt.

Calling on them to fight to the finish, Thomas told striking employes of the New York Shipbuilding Company last night that "Gen. Johnson's interpretation of the NRA will soon make all of us serfs and ultimately lead us to Fascism if allowed to continue."

CWA Employes Send Demands to Hopkins

A resolution adopted by Civil Works employes of Chalfant Borough demanding a 24-hour week and a $15 minimum weekly wage has been mailed to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator. Other demands included recognition of a workers' grievance committee, payment of wages on the job site, and immediate relief for all discharged employes.

ent relationships it will prove just as great a success as the eight-hour day."

Two discordant notes marred the negotiations, however. Operators from the Fairmont region of Northern West Virginia withdrew from the conference, while negotiations between the United Mine Workers and the smokeless Appalachion operators of Southern West Virginia were disrupted.

'HOLDOUTS' MAY YIELD

Coal men generally said it was highly probable that both groups would end by accepting the terms of the agreement to which approximately 65 per cent of the area's tonnage already had been committed.

There was a possibility, however, that failure of the "holdout" operators to effect an agreement before Monday would precipitate a strike among their employes which would involve between 50,000 and 60,000 miners.

The new wage scale increases the basic daily wage of the miners in the north from $4.60 to $5 and that of the southern workers from $4.20 to $4.60.

SCHEDULE OF RATES

The schedule of basic wage rates follows:

Schedule A.

Tonnage rates per 2,000 pounds run of mine coal:

Western Pennsylvania—Pick mining, twin vein, 80 cents; pick mining, thick vein, 75 cents; machine loading, thin vein, 60 cents; machine loading, thick vein, 56 cents; cutting shortwall machine, thin vein, 9 cents; cutting shortwall machine, thick vein, 8 cents.

Westmoreland — Greensburg, Pennsylvania—Pick mining, 75 cents; machine loading, 56 cents; cutting, shortwall machine, 8 cents.

Ohio and Panhandle District of Northern West Virginia—Pick mining, 80 cents; machine loading, 60 cents; cutting, shortwall machine, 9 cents.

The accord means increased production costs for the operators, which, they predicted, would ultimately have to be borne by the consumers.

Operators estimated additional coal costs of more than $25,000,000 would be levied upon consumers during the coming year.

COMMISSION STUDY

The agreement provided for a joint commission of eight operators and eight miners to investigate the differentials on tonnage and day wage rates between the northern and southern districts with instructions to make recommendations to a joint conference in Washington, February 18, 1935.

Resumption of the bituminous coal code conference, called to consider proposed revision of the code, was scheduled for today and operators considered it likely the question would be discussed of making the code for the entire industry conform to the terms of the Appalachian agreement on wages and hours.

STRIKE SETTLED AT BUDD PLANT

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—(AP.)—The four-month strike at the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company's automobile body plant has been settled, with the basis of settlement President Roosevelt's plan for governing labor policies of the automobile industry.

Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, announced the agreement in Washington last night, after a series of conferences with Budd and representatives of the men who went on strike last November in a dispute between a company union and the American Federation of Labor affiliate.

The Budd plant agreement provides that in the production and shipping departments, where the strike occurred, the company will rehire at least one of the strikers out of every two men hired during the next 90 days and that in laying off men the company will do so in accordance with the agreement settling the recent automobile strike.

Tinplate Workers Get Pay Increase

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 30.—Notice of a 10 per cent increase in wages, effective April 1, on all hourly, tonnage, piece and combination rates will be posted shortly at the Monessen plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company. Verbal notice has also been received by Pittsburgh Steel Company employes in Monessen of a 10 per cent increase effective April 1, affecting 6,000 employes.

NRA ADJUSTERS STATIONED HERE

Edward N. Jones, state National Recovery Administration director, today announced two field adjusters have been added to the force of the Pittsburgh office to handle complaints against NRA violators in this district.

Investigations are also being made through the co-operation of the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, which has 100 field men working out of the state Factory Inspection Bureau. They are assisting the Pittsburgh NRA branch in covering 29 counties of Western Pennsylvania.

NRA headquarters here were recently transferred to the Law and Finance Building. Wilson K. Ray is district manager, and Charles T. Douds is the director of inquiries into code violations.

Steel Subsidary Grants 10 Pct. Rise

900 Steel Workers Get Pay Increase

Johnson Removes 'Censorship' On NRA

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP.)—Restoration of press conferences at NRA was promised by Hugh S. Johnson last night after publication of an order forbidding subordinate officials from giving out news.

Johnson has not received newsmen for nearly a month during the high pressure period of code revision conferences and strike negotiations. He made known his irritation at the way some news had been handled, but aides maintained pressure of work was his chief cause.

Last week, however, he had Alvin Brown, executive officer, inform all divisions that they should give out no news except through the NRA publicity division. The key officers received a written memorandum with a request that the information be passed on verbally to subordinates.

Labor Board Curbs Action on Elections

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP.)—The National Labor Board today had established a rule that it will not conduct employe elections in any plan unless there is a genuine dispute between workers' groups or between workers and the management. Senator Wagner announced:

"The board should not permit itself to be used merely as an agency to put its stamp of approval upon something to which the parties have already agreed."

BOARD TAKES UP AUTO CASES

DETROIT, March 30.—(AP.)—Six hundred cases wherein union officials say their members suffered discrimination at the hands of automobile manufacturers were laid before the President's automobile labor board today.

The board turned to these cases after having spent its first day in conference with manufacturers and union leaders.

An order prohibiting any solicitation for membership in unions or company representation plans during working hours was the first official action of the board. This ruling, the board explained last night, was made "to avoid friction."

The charges of discrimination have been collected by union leaders from employes in factories at Detroit, Lansing, Pontiac and Flint.

STUDENTS OF 3 COLLEGES SEEK TEXT PRIZE

Pittsburgh's three universities were completing arrangements today for active participation in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition—that nationwide quest in which every man, woman and child is invited to contribute a text for the possible basis of the historical message that will be carved in the South Dakota's black hills.

The completed details will be announced Tuesday when the students of the three institutions have returned from their Easter vacations.

The action of the three universities is but a further example of the interest being expressed by educational institutions throughout the country. Every university, college and private school in Eastern Ohio, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania is invited to arrange for active participation through the Sun-Telegraph, which is sponsoring the competition in the tri-state district. Associated Hearst newspapers are conducting the quest over the nation.

The purpose of the competition is to find a 600-word text to guide the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission in selecting the final inscription that is to be graven in the more than hundred foot square smoothed out on the western slope of Mount Rushmore. The text must be written on the nine specific episodes of the country's growth selected by the national commission. These episodes are published several times weekly in the Sun-Telegraph.

As President Roosevelt, who is chairman of the national committee of judges in this competition, has said:

"The human urge which populated those areas denominated in the rules should be emphasized. It is not the fact that we purchased the land we did in the Louisiana Territory that was important. It was the uses to which that land was put by our free people afterward that really is America's epic!"

Entrants in the competition are urged to watch the Sun-Telegraph each day for helpful suggestions and articles. The fourth of a series of articles that explain the nine-episode text-basis appears in an adjoining column. The rules, list of awards and news of the competition will be repeated in the Sunday edition. But don't miss reading Mount Rushmore competition information every day. There is plenty of time for every person to write a text and the news of the competition will prove of assistance.

HILL RUM CASE POSTPONED

Arraignment of Mrs. Sarah Schwartz, of 1900 Center avenue, on a liquor violation charge, which resulted in the arrest of two men on extortion charges, was postponed last night until Monday night by Justice of the Peace Ira F. Edmundson.

The two men, held for court yesterday on charges of extortion, are Frank Starr, 33, and Jake Bonn, 24, of 17 Mercer street.

Starr and Bonn were arrested after the woman's husband had informed District Attorney Andrew T. Park that he had been told by Bonn the case against Mrs. Schwartz could be "settled" for $150.

FLORIDA CESSION REALIZED

Victory of Jackson Hastened Sale of Spanish Rights

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles by Mr. Woodhouse on the nine episodes in American history that are to be recounted in the Mount Rushmore Memorial.)

By HENRY WOODHOUSE

The cession of the Floridas to the United States, by Spain, in 1819, in consideration for a payment of $5,000,000, brought to the United States the realization of a nation-wide hope.

The records show that long before the cession took place Americans had been settling in Florida—moved by what President Roosevelt has called:

"The pioneer spirit, the creative urge which led our people to populate the various areas which from time to time came into their nation."

Thirteen years before the Florida purchase took place, in 1806, Thomas Jefferson wrote to James Bowdoin, United States minister to Spain:

"If you can succeed in procuring us Florida, and a good western boundary, it will fill the American mind with joy.

"It will secure to our fellow citizens one of their most ardent wishes, a long peace with Spain and France. For be assured, the object of war with them and alliance with England, which, at the last session of Congress, drew off from the Republican band about half a dozen of its members, is universally reprobated by our NATIVE citizens from North to South.

"I have never seen the nation stand more firmly to its principles, or rally so firmly to its constituted authorities, and in reprobation of the opposition to them."

PIONEER SPIRIT

Following the purchase of the Louisiana territory by the United States, in 1803, Americans were moved by their pioneer spirit to go to settle beyond that territory, on Florida soil.

In 1811 a petition to Congress, signed by George Patterson and 410 others, asked that the United States annex West Florida to the Mississippi territory. Their petition stated:

"Our only hope of participating with the rest of our brethen on the continent, in the rights and blessings of state sovereignty, is built upon the pleasing anticipation of becoming a part of the Mississippi territory. By that means, independent of our own individual interests, the Mississippi territory will derive the advantage of an extensive seacoast, of which she will otherwise be deprived.

"For the foregoing reasons, we humbly trust that your honorable body will grant our request, by adding all that tract of country, now in possession, by virtue of the President's proclamation of 1810, to the Mississippi territory.

IMMIGRANTS TO U. S.

"There is also another subject in which your petitioners are deeply interested, to which we beg leave to call your attention. Your petitioners have generally emigrated to this country since the cession of Louisiana to the United States.

"When possession of New Orleans, and that of the country west of the Mississippi was taken, and the province of West Florida left in possession, and under the exclusive jurisdiction of Spain, we took it for granted that the government of the United States either did not claim, or, if they did, meant not to insist upon their claim to West Florida; we, therefore, have made settlements on lands, under the rules and forms of the Spanish government, expecting to hold our lands to ourselves and our heirs forever.

"We, therefore, pray your honorable body to confirm to us our settlement right, made between the time of the cession of Louisiana, until the time of taking possession of West Florida, wherever they have been made BONA FIDE, and not with an intention to monopolize unreasonable quantities of lands, under such regulations as may best comport with the wisdom and justice of Congress.

"We humbly trust that your enlightened body will grant this request, when you take into view all the circumstances which it involves. The consequences to us and our families are all important. If we are deprived of our possessions, we are deprived of our property; and, consequently, will be reduced to the extremes of want and wretchedness."

JACKSON'S VICTORY

During the War of 1812 the British fleet took possession of Pensacola. Gen. Andrew Jackson and his Tennessee volunteers came to the rescue. His decisive victory at the battle of New Orleans and his energetic actions against the Seminole Indians in 1817-18, made it clear that the United States would be able to protect the entire territory, and hastened the sale of Spanish rights in Florida to the United States.

The treaty of sale of Florida by Spain was signed February 22, 1819, possession was taken by the United States in 1821. The creation of the territory of Florida by the Congress of the United States was by Act of March 30, 1822.

Florida was admitted to statehood March 3, 1845.

The purchase of Florida from Spain perfected the seaboard line of the United States from Maine to the Mississippi River, on the Atlantic and on the Gulf, and added 72,100 square miles of territory rich in natural wealth, endowed with a climate equal to the best Riviera.

A glance at a map with Florida blocked out shows clearly that Florida was and is an indispensible part of the United States.

SAILOR ROBBED, LEFT IN STREET

Found unconscious in the middle of the Boulevard of the Allies, near Brady street, early today, a man who said he was H. D. Howell, 20, of Everett, Mass., a gunners' mate on a United States warship, the Ajax, was being held in Central Police Station for investigation.

Missing, according to Howell, were his two companions—one an orderly in a marine hospital at Chelsea, Mass.—and $65, part of $120 he had when he left Boston several weeks ago on a 90-day leave.

Howell was taken to Montefiore Hospital, but an examination revealed no injuries. He told police he had accompanied his companions to a theater. Afterward they drank several glasses of beer. Then he lost consciousness, he said.

Police are searching for Howell's companions and an automobile bearing Massachusetts license plates in which he said they were riding.

Howell had no papers of identification when found and was not in uniform.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver and bowel poisons before breakfast

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish tang which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

GEN. MEHARD RAPS FOREIGN 'MEDDLING'

By building up the Army, the Navy and the air force and by keeping out of any foreign entanglements are two of the best ways to insure peace for the citizens of the United States, Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, of the Pennsylvania National Guard, declared in an address before members of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday.

Gen. Mehard, World War veteran, recommended raising the personnel of the country's defense to the full authorized numbers agreed upon as adequate by the general staffs. He further recommended purchase of modern weapons, machinery and airplanes. His other recommendation was to "mind our own business."

Regarding the latter recommendation, Gen. Mehard said:

"We in the United States should attend strictly to our own business and not attempt to meddle with the affairs of other powers, whether in Europe or in the Far East. Personally, I have little faith in the efficacy of disarmament agreements. Such agreements are much like the pistol laws existing in the United States. The good citizen obeys the law, but the criminal evades it. By adequate preparedness we prevent the aggression of any foreign power and our own policy of hands off will prevent the possibility or the probability that we ever again will have to send millions of men and spend billions of dollars in a war which affairs was none of our own."

Gen. Mehard pointed out the handicaps of unpreparedness, giving the example of the millions spent in rushing about getting men, equipment and training after the United States had entered the last war. He said it was time for this country to immediately build up its forces so as to be prepared in any emergency to defend this country from invasion.

He deplored the action of Congress in curtailing appropriations to the point where it was impossible to adequately train the reserve forces and the National Guard units. He said:

"When a man talks in this country on the subject of preparedness, he is charged with being a 'jingo' and an alarmist. Yet is if only honest to point out potentialities."

Attacking insidious propaganda which he said is being spread throughout the United States, Gen. Mehard declared:

"There is at present in this country a campaign of insidious propaganda which some of you know has reached tremendous proportions and which is a real menace. Also we have a great mass of trained lawless gunmen ready to join in any movement which would give them an opportunity for loot and power."

PATTERSON SEES PERIL IN LEAGUE

Judge Warns U. S. Must Keep Free of Foreign Intrigue

Declaring that by entering the League of Nations and the World Court the United States would be putting its nose into trouble, Common Pleas Court Judge Frank P. Patterson, has issued a sharp warning against any foreign entanglements. He made a protest against foreign alliances in a radio address delivered over station WCAE last night.

The Pittsburgh jurist declared that to enter the League of Nations, with or without reservations, was to project this country into the wars of others, just as was done in 1918, to the subsequent regret.

In an appeal to the patriotism of the American citizen, Judge Patterson said that the American who stands idly by and sees this country drawn into participation in foreign intrigue, will be held responsible for the consequences of such disaster.

In his address, Judge Patterson said in part:

"This is not a political speech. It is an expression of opinion by an American citizen against the proposal to involve the American government and American institutions in the unceasing contentions among other nations of the world and particularly in those jealous antipathies which constantly engage the nations of continental Europe, because of their territorial contiguity.

"With millions of other Americans, I am an advocate of international peace. Like other Americans, I want our country to keep out of war. We yield to no individual in our earnest protestation in the cause of pacifism, but the best way to insure peace is to keep out of war—to keep from the waging of war in our own behalf if, with honor, we can; and, most certainly we can keep out of all war that is of another or other nation's making. To enter into the League of Nations, with or without reservation, is to project ourselves into the wars of others as we did in 1918, to our subsequent embarrassment with these nations who were most urgent in soliciting our aid, and to our own internal and vain regret over the sacrificed lives, the maimed bodies and the tragic, ruined destinies of the budding flower of our finest youth. Shall we seek a repetition of this cataclysmic disaster? Shall we offer a new generation to be slain in a foreign imbroglio which was not and is not and never will be any of our business?

"It seems to me to enter the League of Nations has its apt parable in the story of the cowboy who arrived in town for a holiday. Looking for excitement, he plunged through the door of the gaudiest saloon and observed a highly diverting brawl in progress, involving everybody but the bartender. He stopped long enough to inquire: 'Is this a private fight or can anyone get in?'"

PRECEDENT SET BY TRIAL ON GOOD FRIDAY

For the first time probably in the history of Allegheny County, a jury trial was being held on Good Friday today in Criminal Court.

Confronted with the necessity of locking the jury up or continuing the trial of an arson case before him, Visiting Judge E. Orrin Waite, of Erie County, decided in favor of holding court on Good Friday.

The case results from an alleged attempt to set fire to Matty's theater, Wilmerding, July 4, last.

FOUR ON TRIAL

Four men, Joseph Tonti and Tony Cerese, of McKeesport; John Rule, manager of the theater, and Robert (Red) Crystol, owner, are charged with the alleged conspiracy.

At the beginning of the case last Tuesday, Assistant District Attorney Jacob Kalson has asked that the jury be locked up each night, as in murder cases.

Although both sides attempted to push the case through, it could not be concluded last night.

POLICE TESTIFY

Wilmerding police testified they found Tonti and Cerese acting "suspiciously" near the theater on July 4, and later found two goatskins filled with gasoline under seats in the theater.

Without putting the defendants on the stand, the defense concluded its testimony this morning with evidence that the theater equipment was worth $5,000 and the insurance was only for $4,500.

The case is expected to reach the jury today.

LANDLORDS ASK FOR RELIEF

The petition of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League asking the state relief board to aid in payments of taxes and water rents for landlords who have tenants on welfare, will be considered at the next meeting of the state board, Eric H. Biddle, executive secretary of the board, yesterday notified the league.

The petition asking for aid was adopted, the league announced, to enable property owners to find it unnecessary to lose their property through unpaid taxes that result from having tenants unable to pay even part rent. The delegates adopting the resolution referred to by Director Biddle represented approximately 1,000,000 home owners and realty taxpayers of Pennsylvania.

The head of the Commonwealth Relief Board expressed interest in the plan as outlined by the tax league delegates.

ON BROADWAY

The Private Papers of a Reporter

Among other startling items encountered in a day is discovering how to kill a person without being found out—or how the victim died . . . The medical books, it appears, only recently included it—and it is so new that not many doctors, physicians or surgeons are acquainted with it . . . It is done by using a food (which most of us eat daily)—and it may be eaten with impunity—but if injected intravenously—will cause instant death . . . It coagulates the blood and stops the heart . . . The only clue, perhaps, to how the victim perished, might be the skin puncture, where the hypodermic needle entered—but many injection punctures heal and close almost immediately . . . And, so goes the fantastic tale, no autopsy would reveal what caused death . . . Therefore, don't get on my nerves and jab me in the nose—because now I can jab in the arm.

Several weeks ago there was a shooting near Fifty-second street . . . A man was found dead on the pavement in front of a restaurant . . . The police found no bullet wounds and assumed he died from fright . . . While they still were on the scene they were informed that a man who had been shot had entered Polyclinic Hospital nearby—asking for aid . . . A detective was assigned—and I kibitzed along . . . In the operating room that 2:45 a. m. I saw the fellow while Detective Jacobs tried to get him to talk . . . "Who are you?" asked the target, who was calm, as the doctor removed the bullets . . . "I'm an officer," said Jacobs . . . "Don't think me rude," said the victim, "but only that doctor can help me, you can't help me at all" . . . In response to the sleuth's queries he said he was Harry Brown, of a fictitious address in The Bronx. That he had been to a movie midnight show. That when it ended he walked up Broadway to Fifty-fourth street, where he dined. Then he walked east to Seventh avenue and south . . . He thought he heard backfire from a passing car near Fifty-second street, he said, and not until he got to Fiftieth street and Broadway, where he bought a paper—did he notice blood trickling down 'is sleeve . . . "I got into a cab and came to Polyclinic," he added . . . He said he had no idea how he got shot, he didn't belong around Broadway.

I returned to the group of reporters and relayed what I heard . . . Not until the next morning was it discovered how the dead man died—from bullets which entered under his right arm pit! . . . What a marksman was the killer in the passing machine! . . . Probably got him while he lifted his arm to arrange his hat as he left the restaurant . . . An anonymous letter came the other day . . . It said: "Thought you'd like to know you were heard telling the reporters what the guy in the hospital said to the cops. And because he didn't blow a whistle—he's got nothing to worry about any more" . . . The police, however, learned that "Brown" was not his real name, and that the dead man and himself were colleagues of Gerald Chapman and once escaped with the "master mind" from a Federal jail . . . I saw Detective Jacobs the other midnight . . . "Remember that night at the Polyclinic?" he said . . . "Here's that guy's record"—and it revealed plenty . . . "The reason," continued Jacobs, "he wouldn't tell me his right name was that the nurse had whispered that you were standing at the door. And it seems that he went to school with you on 116th St.—and he didn't want you to know what he was — he said he was ashamed."

Film Owing To Studio By Star

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—Hello! The last Hollywood weekend was indeed a hectic one. Curt Rehfeld, Warner assistant director, died of heart failure. The shock of this hits me more than many others. Curt was helping Rex Ingram in the direction of "The Four Horsemen" when I was the office boy at the old Metro Studio and he was one of the few that were nice to me. That DOES linger in one's memory . . .

George Bancroft owes Paramount one more production on an old deal, and the studio has decided that George will star in "Ladies First," in which Dorothy Stickney, wife of Howard Lindsay, the playwright, makes her movie debut as a leading woman.

* * *

Betty Compson returns to the marquee lights, as it were, with a featured role in "The Broadway Virgin," to be directed by Lou Collins for Major Productions. Dorothy Grainger, who is making rapid strides in the cinema world, gets her biggest break with the lead.

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Phyllis Barry, the brunette leading gal, is getting ready to call it QUITS with her marital affairs . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ben Frank TOSSED an elaborate party adjoining the little club Saturday night. FUNNIEST moment was when Orry-Kelly, the Warner gown designer, stepped on Louise Fazenda's train—and she went around with a safety-pin on the back of the gown from then on! Ethel Merman dropped in with Bobby Crawford. Bennie Fields and Blossom Seeley. George Burns, Ray Mayer and Edith Evans did tricks at the table, while Mack Gordon and Harry Revel contributed a couple of their latest and hottest tunes. Art Jarret, Elinor Holm (oh, so suntanned), the Ray Blumenthals, Major Parkin (the flying gent), the Russell Simpsons and many others made it QUITE gay, no less! Ned Sparks will carry his "cold pan," (meaning face), over to RKO for a sour-lipped role in "Down to Their Last Yacht" . . . Sidney Fox was a-dancing at the Cocoanut Grove with Erwin Gelsey.

* * *

Film folks would like to see Majorie King, George Raft's exsweetie, and Virginia Pine Lehman, said to be his current flame, get together for a hair-pulling episode. It seems that Majorie promised such a scene.

Last Sunday Marjorie airplaned it to New York to join George (at his command, of course), and it may be now that battle will never take place—unless Virginia wants to stage it.

* * *

Cupid's Dept.—W. S. Van Dyke, the director, is very much ABLAZE over pretty Ruth Mannix, Eddie's niece, and the gab artists have it that wedding bells would ring out—but there's a BIG "IF" in the way. You figure it out.

* * *

Economical note—Ralph Morgan brings a lunch-box to the studio every day.

Comedy

Rose King is the queen of the Yorke and King team in "Greenwich Village Follies," stage show in the Penn, the screen feature being Anna Stan in "Nana."

Theater Bills New Today

The new picture in the Penn is "Nana," with Anna Sten in the title role. Suggested by the Emile Zola novel of the same title, it has Lionel Atwill, Phillips Holmes, Richard Bennett and Mae Clarke in the supporting cast. "Greenwich Village Follies," with Yorke and King, comedans, featured, is the stage attraction.

* * *

Clarke Gable plays a newspaperman who befriends Claudette Colbert, a rich man's runaway daughter in "It Happened One Night," lively comedy now showing in the Stanley.

* * *

"I Believed In You," with John Boles in the featured role, is the screen feature now in the Pitt. Joe Laurie, Jr.'s "Memory Lane" is the stage revue with several oldtime stars in the cast.

* * *

"Harold Teen," with Hal LeRoy and Rochelle Hudson in the leading roles, is the film in the Warner. LeRoy is seen as a cub reporter in a juvenile comedy the cast of which includes Patricia Ellis and Guy Kibbee.

* * *

Paul Lukas and Fay Wray in the featured roles in "The Countess of Monte Cristo" and Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in "Love Birds" comprise the double bill today in the Davis and Regent.

* * *

Al Jolson, Dick Powell, Ricardo Cortez, Delores Del Rio and Kay Francis have the featured roles in "Wonder Bar," now showing in the Sheridan Square.

* * *

"George White's Scandals" with Rudy Vallee, Alice Faye, George White and Jimmy Durante in the principal roles will come to the Fulton screen tomorrow.

* * *

"All of Me," with Fredric March and Miriam Hopkins will open tomorrow in the Enright.

Thumber

Claudette Colbert is a rich girl who becomes a ride-thumber—Clark Gable, too—in "It Happened One Night," photoplay feature in the Stanley Theater.

Golden Triangle Play Listed April 7

"The Little Redheaded Princess" will be staged by the Golden Triangle Players in the Twentieth Century Club April 7. It is by Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit and Sophie G. Keenan, from a story by Darius Butterworth Martin. There will be dances, directed by Mme. Suzanne Karpova, a puppet show, incidental to the play, by the Mason Marionettes, and music by the Fulton School Orchestra, directed by Mae Belle Ferrall.

Junior Dramatic Group To Present Plays

The Scitdamard Dramatic Club, junior dramatic group at Kingsley House, will present three one-act plays in the Larimer School auditorium April 4 and 6, at 8 o'clock. There will be a seventeenth century comedy, "Charming Leandre;" a drama, "The Giant's Stair," and a travesty, "The Grand Cham's Diamond." Miss Lauramae Hamilton is director.

Design for Giving

GEORGE WILSON had a young and pretty wife, and a job that kept him away from home every night. That's a bad combination in any household. If he hadn't been so preoccupied with his job as night engineer in a large plant and so busy acquiring his full quota of sleep during the day, he might have noticed that his fair spouse was growing a trifle discontented.

George was a good husband. Bessie had to admit that. He turned in most of his pay every week and helped her with the dishes now and then. But Bessie wanted something more than that from life. She wanted a little fun, a little excitement. Something more to do than sit around and wait for George to come home from work and go to sleep. Or wait for him to wake up and go to work.

Now, if he were only a little more like Fred. Fred, too, was an engineer, and, strangely enough, he worked for the same firm that employed George. But whereas George went to work at six o'clock each evening, Fred's duties were over at that hour. Which made things just about perfect—because Fred had a yen to carry out the same arrangements in George's home.

Bessie wasn't in love with Fred. She had never encouraged him. It was, however, extremely gratifying to know that she was still attractive enough to keep him hanging around.

Into the Wilsons' flat marched Fred one evening at a moment when Bessie was feeling very sorry for herself. It happened to be her birthday, and no one had so much as sent her a pleasant greeting. And for that reason Fred received a welcome that was a trifle warmer than usual.

"For you," he told her. "Happy birthday!"

Bessie gasped when she saw the diamond bracelet that lay inside. She had never owned anything so beautiful before. For a moment she debated whether or not to accept the gift. Still, she was touched by Fred's thoughtfulness—and by the glitter of diamonds on her arm.

"Why, it's lovely," she enthused.

"That's nothing," said Fred. "Nothing at all. It's only a little something to let you know how much I think of you. Listen. I'm gonna go away. If you'll come with me—"

Bessie's eyes widened.

"Why, Fred, where are you going?"

"I got a job offered me out in Chicago," he explained. "If I take it, I'll have to leave in the morning. What do you say, baby, will you come with me? We'd have a swell time together, you and me."

Bessie did not reply at once. Fred's proposal sounded attractive. He was offering her all the things that she had missed. But then there was George. Bessie was sure that she loved her husband, although when she gazed at the glittering jewels on her wrist she found that fact no longer so important.

With George she would have respectability—and dullness. And with Fred, excitement, thrills and—perhaps—more diamond bracelets. She was tired of staying home and waiting for George. He had grown indifferent. His failure to remember her birthday had proved that conclusively. Fred, on the other hand, was sweet and thoughtful and unselfish. She took another look at the bracelet.

"I'll go with you," she decided. "I'll get ready right away. I'll leave a note for George so he won't have the police hunting for me, but I'm not going to tell him much."

And that night, Bessie closed the door on her life with George and everything that it represented, and set out with Fred on what she was entirely confident was to be a thrilling adventure . . .

Scarcely a week had passed, however, before she discovered that everything wasn't quite so rosy as she had anticipated. For one thing, she was lonely. She missed George. Fred left her alone more than her husband ever had. Then, too, he wasn't quite as generous with his money as she had been led to expect.

So she sat in her hotel room, alone and a trifle disturbed. She told herself over and over that she had made a mistake. She had only to look at the bracelet that Fred had given her and she would immediately be reassured.

She went to the dresser and drew out the blue velvet box. She picked up the bracelet, fitted it over her arm, and she was happy again.

When she had finished admiring it, she removed it, but she did not place it in the drawer at once. For she discovered that Fred, in changing his clothes hastily, had left things in something of a mess. There was a heap of old letters and keys and half-empty boxes of matches strewn about. For want of something else to do, she began to sort them out.

One scrap of paper was crumbled into a ball. Bessie smoothed it out, glanced down curiously, and her eyes grew round. The handwriting on the scrap of paper was George's.

The date was "Wednesday," and Bessie had reason to remember Wednesday. That was the night that she had eloped with Fred.

"Bess, darling," George had written, "I hope you won't be angry because I came so near to forgetting your birthday. The first chance I had to get your present was on my way to work. But it is beautiful, isn't it? I've been saving for it for a long, long time.

"I did want you to have the bracelet before your birthday was completely over. That's why I made Fred promise to bring it down to you just as soon as he got off duty." . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Allan Jones, tenor in "Annina," coming to the Nixon next week, is from Scranton, and got his start as a singer when he won a national vocal contest in Philadelphia. He remained there to study music and sing in choirs and concerts until he won a scholarship in New York University. Later he studied and sang in Europe, and he has sung leading roles in the noted summer municipal outdoor opera in St. Louis.

* * *

Dennis King, who will be seen in the Nixon in "Richard of Bordeaux" the week of April 9, is an actor who has scored in musical as well as dramatic roles. In fact, he is remembered best here for his parts in "The Vagabond King" and the musical version of "The Three Muskateers." However, those who saw him as Mercutio in Jane Cowl's "Romeo and Juliet," do not forget the nobility of that characterization.

* * *

Joe Laurie, Jr., who has brought a number of old-time stars to the Pitt in "Memory Lane," is a young old-timer himself, a veteran of the theater even if he has no gray hairs—or very few. He has known vaudeville, comedy and musical comedy—remember him as star of "The Gingham Girl."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
— With — Patricia Pitt

Some of the members of the younger school set had been planning to arrange some sort of festive affair to furnish a bright spot in an otherwise rather dull Easter vacation. They had half planned to have a dance at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club.

But according to young Mary Blair, daughter of the William R. Blairs, of Sewickley Heights, this plan is now off. And all the group will go to the Easter Monday dance at the Edgeworth Club.

Pittsburghers Visit White Sulphur Springs

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., has been notably popular of late with Pittsburghers. And some of them will attend the Princeton Glee Club concert to be given there tonight.

During Easter time many will be attracted to the resort by the first annual wild flower show which will open Easter Sunday at the Greenbrier there.

Enjoying spring at White Sulphur are Mrs. James B. Eisaman, of South Pacific avenue, and the James Kenneth Eisamans, of New York, and Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Henry Wittmer.

The George W. Crawfords, who spent the late winter in Palm Springs, Cal., are expected shortly at White Sulphur, where they have leased again Casino cottage.

Military Academy Students Return Home

John M. Trainer, son of the William B. Trainers, a student at the Hun Preparatory School, Princeton, N. J., is spending his spring vacation at home.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Trends . . . whims . . . fashions! Call them what you will, but you have to acknowledge them! And this season . . . as always . . . there is a whole new gamut of rules to run if you're to know your fashion textbooks! To go into the dictionary for the moment we pop forth with . . .

The fabrics of the hour. They've taken to the tall timber, and literally. For is there not "Treebark" . . . "Cedarbark" . . . and just plain "bark"? Some inspired manufacturer of fabrics must have gone for a walk in the woods. But anyway . . . while we never thought much of "bark" before, anyone who has an iota of fashion-consciousness in their makeup today is pouncing upon the rough, slightly-scraggy surfaces which typify "bark" fabrics. In woolens . . . crepes . . . and even in the new summery fabrics like organdie and chiffons.

And as to that creature, the artist, who thinks up what's-to-be-what in the line of color . . . this time he must have fallen head-first into the paint pot. Else why the stripings and plaidings that we're undergoing this spring?

We, for one, say "hurrah for the bright splotches!" After all, there's nothing like a nice smear of rosey-orange on a grey-striped blouse to wear with your oxford-grey suit! After all there's little hope of anyone's overlooking you when you arrive at your luncheon date in one of the new brilliant tie-silk shirts or a scarf! And after all . . . times are looking up (we've been reading articles about it, so there's . . . crocuses are COMING up . . . and why not you!

* * *

The straight line between two points being the shortest line . . . it's the one fashion takes in cutting her clothes this spring. The front line from shoulder to waist . . . the back line from shoulder to waist! Here, mainly, is where you find the interesting things happening in new suits, coats, frocks.

For example . . . the way former shoulder bulkiness has moved downward! For instance the way blown-forward or blown-backward fullness happens somewhere between your chin and your midribs! The way the most recent fashion news sketches a suit with a little triangle of seemingly "left-over" fabric poking out all alone just below the waist in back (NOT a bustle, we assure you . . . just a little "tail" effect). And lastly the knowing manner in which very ultra-ultra decolletages drop down to amazing depths in the front, for formal and semi-formal occasions! Have one, or SOME of these, ladies, and you'll have a good "line."

* * *

One of the nicest things about it all being how one can really BE HERSELF these days. If you are Gainsborough in type . . . then get yourself a big hat! If you are a chic ragamuffin on whom little snitches of bonnets and violent scarfs are right at home . . . wear them, girl, wear them! Paint your toenails and poke them out for all to see if a Trilby . . . chop off your hair and ringlet it high, wide, and handsome with earrings dripping underneath if a Frenchy number. Or . . . coil it back to your ears and languish about in petal-pink with a rusty petticoat of turquoise. Any way you do it, it's "o. k." with Fashion! That's one of the nice things about this season. Goody, goody! . . . are we going to live up to our type!

MARION DAVIES ONE 'PERFECT BEAUTY'

By TED SMITS
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 30.—Does perfect beauty exist in Hollywood?

No composite of beauty selectors gives a satisfactory answer to the question.

And the best known beauty experts disagree.

It doesn't exist in Hollywood or elsewhere, says Earl Carroll, who has an enviable reputation as a picker of stage and screen beauties.

It does, says Mme. Helena Rubenstein, beauty expert.

NAMES SEVEN

And to prove her point, Mme. Rubenstein offhand named seven Hollywood actresses as examples of feminine perfection. They were Marion Davies, Kay Francis, Norma Shearer, Gloria Swanson, Irene Dunne, Joan Bennett and Constance Bennett.

Carroll argued:

"There can't be a perfect beauty, because everyone has different ideas of beauty, and no one woman could combine all the fine features admired by different people."

Mme. Rubenstein admitted that many of the famous actresses in Hollywood are not so much beautiful as interesting—possessors of "sparkling personalities" that overshadow imperfections in beauty. She said:

"Greta Garbo is neither interesting nor beautiful. She is merely artificial.

"Katherine Hepburn is not beautiful, but she is a most interesting personality.

CARROLL DISAGREES

"Loretta Young is interesting, and she may develop rare beauty through her intelligence.

"Marlene Dietrich has so vivid a personality that she creates the illusion of great beauty.

"Margaret Sullavan will bear watching.

"Helen Hayes is an example of a quite plain woman whose magnificent personality makes her most charming, almost beautiful.

"Myrna Loy is very interesting indeed."

Not altogether sharing Mme. Rubenstein's enthusiasm for the beauties of Hollywood, Earl Carroll remarked rather acidly that "Hollywood can't acquire perfect beauty because the place makes women too artificial—too much lipstick, rouge, and makeup."

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Who is the happiest boy in town? That's easy. It is Lester Gilbert, Atwood street. Eddie Cantor is his friend.

The dazzle-eyed radio and stage star received a poem from Lester and in Eddie's personal reply Lester was thanked and commended for his poetic effort.

Where was Lester when Eddie Cantor was in Pittsburgh? Right down in Row L, his letter in his hand.

* * *

Anybody who cares to practice actual globe trotting should join up with W. Roy Black of the Carnegie Museum. He takes Nature study walks in Frick Park along with his companions. The "talks while walking" are sponsored by the Board of Education.

One of the finest followers a radio person can have is Mrs. Sam Malt, of Larimer.

Mrs. Malt is 88 years of age and every afternoon meets the carrier boy at the gate to receive her Sun-Telegraph. Before that she keeps her ears tuned for the broadcasts.

She reads the Sun-Telegraph from beginning to end thoroughly, so I know she will be surprised to see in print:

"Hello, Grandma Malt!"

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million.

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are, you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver, which does not yield sufficient bile—causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets you will find that "something" which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Ben Williams' Story Scores Success

By AIRCASTER

After listening to Wednesday night's performance of "They Grind Exceeding Small," Ben Ames Williams' story of the Down East skinflint whose cussedness caused the loss of the one thing he treasured above all else, and Fred Allen's revue with the Troubadors, I turned to Lady Aircaster with a sense of finality and remarked:

"Well, we might as well turn off the radio after that, anything else will be a let-down."

I hope many others will join me in writing to the Columbia Broadcasting System, Madison avenue, New York, urging CBS to go farther with Ben Williams' stories.

* * *

A new radio serial, written by T. S. Stribling, particularly with the microphone in mind, is to be unfolded twice a week on the night schedule of WJAS.

It is called "Conflict" and deals with the industrial struggle between steamboat and railroad transportation in the 90's.

The first act is set for April 10, to run Tuesday and Thursday nights thereafter.

* * *

Today's story, from Donald Novis:

His long residence in Hollywood made him familiar with the favorite tunes of most of the movie stars, and from time to time, he has sung them in honor of the cinema celebs.

Last Wednesday, he sang "Charmaine," the favorite ditty of a famous screen lady, in reply to a request. But the star never heard the song, for she died just a few hours before the broadcast.

She was Lilyan Tashman.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Fran Eichler's Band features the new hit tune "Who Walks in When I Walk Out" during the half-hour program, starting at 6:15.

Paul Gannon offers another program of old and new tunes during his 6:45 'Eventide Songs.'

Eddie Peyton features his own arrangement of "Carioca" during the 11:30 Frivolities.

Martin Withdrawal Is Denied; May Stay In

By MARK SHIELDS

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin today denied reports that he had or would withdraw as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. He said:

Mr. Shields

"No one has any authority to say I will or will not withdraw from the race. What I do will be based on what I believe to be the best needs of the party."

And to this the state chairman added:

"We are progressing admirably in a campaign to reach an agreement."

In this optimistic belief the state chairman was alone among organization political leaders who have sought some way to emerge from the muddle caused by the filing of 18 candidates for Governor. One participant in the Philadelphia and Harrisburg conferences which have proceeded this week declared today he would not be surprised if Gen. Martin remained a candidate, despite reports he would withdraw in favor of Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon.

Former Senator Joseph R. Grundy intimated he had 32 out of 50 Philadelphia ward leaders ready to support the candidacy of Judge Robert E. Lamberton, and Philadelphia reports were that the Mellon influence would be joined to that of the Bristol leader behind the Philadelphia jurist.

Color was given to the theory that Grundy is earnestly for Lamberton by the statement of Judge Albert S. C. Millar that he would withdraw in the interest of harmony. This would cause no great commotion, few having known why Judge Millar, a former legislator, filed, were it not for the fact that in his Harrisburg service he was generally known as a Grundy lieutenant.

* * *

Majority May Stay In Governorship Fight

Another participant in the Philadelphia conferences said today that nearly all eighteen candidates might stay in. He observed that there were no organization leaders strong to force out any patriots who wished to continue.

Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh candidate, in a statement today said he believed there would be an organization choice. That belief may be predicated somewhat on the fact that semi-unity in the organization would give Mr. Margiotti the target he needs as a campaign issue. He said:

"The political bosses of the state have their heads together. In a day or two they will announce to the people whom they have selected, nominated and elected Governor. They will not be for me, and I have not asked them for any consideration. They know that if I am elected Governor I will use my power to the utmost to pass the legislation they have been opposing. They want to give the people as little as they can."

Grundy and former Gov. John S. Fisher conferred together yesterday over the gubernatorial situation, and a transcript of their conversation might have been interesting. Grundy supported the former Governor in 1926, but their ways parted during Mr. Fisher's administration. Mr. Fisher is reported to be interested in Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County.

Ellenbogen Scored By Leader of Veterans

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen's failure to vote on the question of over-riding the President's veto for increased benefits to veterans has drawn fire from Jack Watson, past department vice commander of the American Legion of Pennsylvania. Congressmen Dunn, Muldowney and Kelly voted to override the veto. Congressman Brooks to uphold it. Mr. Ellenbogen was excused because of illness.

In a letter to the Sun-Telegraph, Watson wrote in part:

"I would refresh Mr. Ellenbogen's memory if he does not remember where he was on Monday about midnight or all day Tuesday when he was so ill that he could not attend to his congressional duties. To the writer he appeared to be very healthy and did not look like a sick man. We appreciate the support of the three Congressmen mentioned above and we respect Mr. Brooks for his stand. At least, he faced the music. You cannot straddle the veteran issue, Mr. Ellenbogen."

The Allegheny County Democratic Club, an organization opposed to the Democratic organization state ticket headed by George H. Earle, of Philadelphia, and Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, will hold a mass meeting in Peabody High School Tuesday night. Among the speakers will be Senator Henry L. Snyder, of Lehigh County, anti-organization candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and Representative Norbert Fitzgerald, of Erie, candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs on the same ticket with Snyder, Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, for Governor, and Roland Morris, of Philadelphia, for the Senate.

Gregory Zatkovich, president of the Central Council of the Slavic and Allied Civic League of Allegheny County, announces that Republicans in his group have indorsed Gov. Gifford Pinchot as a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination. Republican and Democratic groups jointly have indorsed R. Rhody Brenlove for the State Senate in the Thirty-eighth district. Frank Kobelak for Legislature in the Sixth District and Anthony Lucas in the Eighth.

COUNCIL MOVES FOR TRACTION RENEWAL

Action Follows Plea Of Railways Head To 'Co-Operate'

City Council, after being assured by Pittsburgh Railways Company officials that the company is willing to "experiment" with lower fares, has taken the first step to renew the Traction Conference Board agreement for two years.

A resolution which would probably have had the effect of holding up the agreement was returned to Council with a negative recommendation yesterday from the Service and Surveys committee.

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, did not go into detail on the proposed fare reductions.

PASS MAY RETURN

Questioned by John J. Kane on whether the railways company would consider a reduction in its 8⅓-cent fare, Phillips replied:

"The railways are willing to undertake further experiments along that line within reason. But when it comes to extremes, then it's no use. We are not averse to the return of the weekly pass. It should be developed by experts not just picked out of the air. We have open minds on the problem."

UNDECIDED ON PRICE

Kane commented:

"That's encouraging."

Later Phillips suggested the possibility of a weekly pass to sell for $1.25, $1.35 or $1.50, the amount to be decided upon by experts of the railways company and the city.

A weekly pass selling for $1.50 was abandoned by the railways company in August, 1932.

Phillips refused directly to pay the city $250,000 this year on account, declaring the money would have to come out of service.

As to the introduction of a three months' cancellation clause in the contract, Phillips pleaded for time in which to attempt to negotiate an agreement with underlying security holders. The attempt is to be made, he said, to have them write down their holdings in view of the greatly reduced earnings of the company.

COUNCIL VETOES PLAN

Council voted, four to three, to reject the Walter R. Demmler resolution which contained the points to which the railways company objected.

Those who voted to turn it down were William A. Magee, Charles Anderson, Robert Garland and P. J. McArdle.

Had John M. Huston, of the Democratic bloc not left the room a short time previous, the Democrats would have been strong enough to have held up the trolley pact. William J. Soost was also absent.

When the resolution comes up for final action Monday, Huston will be on a business trip and Soost will have probably returned, so its doom seems sealed.

Claims of stock and bond-holders must be paid before the city can receive fees for the use of the streets.

Council agreed, on a motion by Magee, to request the Public Service Commission to fix a date for a hearing on the extension of the traction agreement.

COURT SPEEDS WEDDING TRIP

To enable Assistant City Solicitor James L. O'Toole to complete the city's defense in a damage suit and so allow him to leave on his wedding trip over the week-end, Judge Ralph H. Smith held court last night.

O'Toole had been seeking to hasten the presentation of the case, but the outlook was not so bright when the court came to his assistance.

His fellow employes in the city law department feted him yesterday noon. He plans to leave Sunday with his intended bride, Mrs. Martina Pack, of New Castle, Pa., for South Bend, Ind. The ceremony will be performed there in the chapel at Notre Dame University.

The damage suit was brought by the Westinghouse Airbrake Company, which is seeking an increase in a $135,000 award by a board of viewers for properties where streets were raised in the North Side flood district. The company claims damages of between $280,000 and $350,000. A verdict awarding the company $176,000 was returned.

Amen Corner Show To Be Held April 16

A minstrel show will be presented by the Amen Corner at the Nixon Theater Monday, April 16. Luke Barnett, comedian, will act as interlocutor and director, and a number of other vaudeville artists will participate.

McKeesport Youth Injured in Fall

Falling over a 10-foot cliff overlooking the Youghiogheny River at Evans avenue, McKeesport, Leonard Goldberg, 10, of 1800 Soles street, McKeesport, suffered severe bruises. He was treated at a nearby physician's office.

POLICE SHAKEUP DUE TOMORROW

The long-heralded shakeup in the police and fire bureaus is slated for tomorrow.

Seven police inspectors will be appointed in place of the present 14 captains. Wholesale transfers of lieutenants, sergeants and patrolmen is included in the long list on which Police Superintendent Ben R. Marshall has been working for weeks, according to rumors. It was predicted that there will be changes in the official personnel of the Fire Bureau. Transfer of firemen also is expected.

Superintendent Marshall is to have a free hand in the reorganization of the Police Bureau. Director Ralph E. Smith's influence in the department has decreased considerably since he attempted to fire Marshall and was overruled by the Mayor.

Smith Promotion Fails, McNair Tries Demotion

Council Still Frowns On Move to Shift Director

The Mayor's efforts to promote Safety Director Ralph E. Smith to a $12,000 a year Traction Conference Board chairman has been changed to an attempted demotion, but Council still frowns on it.

The Mayor, in a letter yesterday, withdrew the appointment of William E. Schoyer for the traction board and substituted Smith's name. He asked the dismissal of W. Edgar Reed, whose position pays $5,000.

Instead of acting at once, as the Mayor asked, Council, by a vote of five to three, sent his recommendation to the committee on service and surveys.

MATTER IS "SKIPPED"

Although that committee afterwards met to discuss traction board affairs, the Smith for Reed appointment did not come up.

As a result it holds over until next Tuesday. Some of the Democrats in Council are not averse to Director Smith in his present position, and if the Mayor continues in his effort to get the Director out of the department it seems that he will have to use a more direct method to get results.

RESULT IN DOUBT

Councilmen who voted to act on the appointment were: Walter R. Demmler, Robert Garland and John M. Huston. What the final action will be on the Reed dismissal and Smith appointment is difficult to forecast.

There is a possibility that Reed may be dismissed but that Smith may fail of confirmation. Huston, who has recently shown signs of becoming the Mayor's floor leader, will be absent next week on a business trip.

M'NAIR REFUSES TO CUT OWN PAY

Mayor McNair won't follow the lead of Council in voluntarily taking a pay cut, he made plain today.

Any slash in his salary check must be made by ordinance of Council he said, adding:

"They have full power to do it under the city charter. It reads not more than $15,000 a year, doesn't it?"

The Mayor originally offered to slice $5,000 a year from his pay, but Council refused to make the cut.

Councilman W. A. Magee has turned back one-sixth of his pay to date. Two of his colleagues, Charles Anderson and William J. Soost, have paid back a similar percentage. All other Councilmen have said they would return $1,000, or one-eighth of their salary to the city.

2d District Candidate Found to Live There

John J. Lardo, candidate for the Legislature from the Second District, lives in that district, it was revealed today by the Elections Bureau, and if elected can take his seat.

His residence at 717 Wylie avenue, which was considered and reported previously as a part of the First District, was found to be a corner of the Second District, and attaches of the County Elections Bureau today corrected their error.

BRITON CHIDES M'NAIR PLAN

Mayor McNair's single tax plan for Pittsburgh—to take taxes off buildings and put them on land—"would be a bit upsetting" in the belief of Hugh Dalton, of London, who spoke before the Economic Club of Pittsburgh last night at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club.

The former British Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs and author of "Principles of Public Finance," said:

"It's a nineteenth century conception. To put it in practice would be a bit upsetting, although it is always argued that it would bring a building boom on vacant lands."

Bringing up the gold standard in his address he said:

"In England we had to be pushed off the gold standard.

"I admired the elegance with which you walked off it. It was like stepping on a ballroom floor. There was no embarrassment."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

PASADENA, Cal., March 30. —To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph: They say the air mail will be flying commercially soon, they say Congress votes on greenbacks for bonus money soon, they say Dillinger is headed west (but I bet you not to Tucson, Arizona). They say the President is going to appoint a warden for Wall Street.

Will Rogers.

But all these don't mean a thing in the papers today. But when Rabbit Maranville breaks a leg right at the opening of the season that constitutes America's greatest crisis.

The office seeker and the humorists naturally look to Washington for news, but the youth of America look to "Rabbit" and "Babe," and if anybody reading this has to ask who "Rabbit" is, then you should be made to show your citizenship papers.

Yours,
WILL.

'EXTRAVAGANCE' CHARGED BY MRS. MILLER

Council, Overriding Veto, Faces Inquiry On Payroll

Facing a barrage of criticism from the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, City Council has overridden Mayor McNair's veto and enacted the 1934 salary ordinance.

But they are not through with Mrs. J. O. Miller, outspoken leader of the league, who yesterday told them what she thought of their deliberations on the city budget.

Mrs. Miller is coming back to tell them more and to inquire more deeply into the meaning of some of the statements made by the councilmen, she declared last night. She would like to know how many councilmen have relatives on the city payroll.

REMARK PAVES WAY

Councilman Robert Garland in the conversation with Mrs. Miller volunteered the information that he had no relatives in the city employ. He thus opened the door to further explorations by the league.

Mrs. Miller states:

"I am interested in that remark of Mr. Garland's. I think it is high time we knew how many of our 'city fathers' have relatives on the payroll."

TO WATCH ACTIONS

Mrs. Miller has not said when she will again address Council. But the responsibility for balancing the budget, she declared at the hearing, rests entirely on Council, and the eyes of the league are to be kept focussed on that body.

The annual payroll, which Council approved, amounts to approximately $8,500,000. With this sum definitely set up, little chance is seen for cutting city expenditures this year except by furloughs and dismissals through the Mayor and department heads.

The salary bill passed by a vote of 7 to 1, William A. Magee being the lone vote against it.

'SPAR' WITH ACCUSERS

Charges of extravagance made by Mrs. Miller were met by varied arguments from Councilmen.

President Garland declared that very few cities are balancing their budgets and ascribed the trouble to failure to collect taxes.

Mrs. Miller replied that she was talking about something altogether different—reducing expenditures, Councilman Magee agreed with her.

Garland pointed out that if people were cut off the payroll they would be forced on relief. Mrs. Miller replied:

'BETTER ON WELFARE'

"It would be a good deal better to put them on the welfare than to keep them on the payroll destroying the morale of the force."

Garland declared that the new directors had not yet learned their jobs and that they could economize later when they had learned more about city business. Garland said:

"If a director comes to Council and says that he doesn't need employes, I will vote to put them out."

Charles Anderson agreed with him, and P. J. McArdle declared there is no obligation on any director to keep inefficient or unnecessary employes.

Mrs. Miller also criticized Council's borrowing activities. She said:

"I still do not believe you can balance a budget by borrowing. It can only be done by spending less."

Armed Bandits Hit, Rob Holdup Victim

Henry Baycki, 2303 Lettico street, was attacked by three armed Negroes at Bedford avenue and Kirkpatrick street at midnight and robbed of $6 and his watch, he reported to police. One of the bandits slapped him in the face as they fled.

Jewels, Clothing Stolen in East End

Myrtle Smith, 585 South Negley avenue, reported to police last night that a thief broke into her apartment and stole jewelry and wearing apparel valued at $200. Entrance was gained by using a pass key to the front door, she said.

Bang! And the Forest Hills Hunt for Easter Eggs Was On!

SOME OF 800 FOREST HILLS SCHOOL PUPILS RACING TO FIND 160 PRIZES AMONG 3,000 EASTER ARTICLES . . . THEY STARTED WITH THE CRACK OF A GUN

Easter Egg Festivities Supplant May Day Fun

Mayor McNair's Easter egg party in Schenley Park Monday, patterned after the White House Easter egg roll in Washington, has started a new fad in suburban districts.

Instead of annual May Day exercises, pupils from the fifth through the ninth grades in Atlantic Elementary and Junior High School and Woodside Elementary School in Forest Hills Borough were treated yesterday to an Easter egg hunt on property back of the Municipal Building.

At the crack of a gun, 800 eager boys and girls scrambled up the steep hill side to search for 3,000 Easter articles, hidden in nooks and crannies of the field. In some of the Easter packages, slips of paper entitling the finder to a special prize were secreted. Mildred Baer, 13, of 18 Sylvan road, won first prize, a huge Easter basket.

The egg hunt was supervised by D. W. Houk, supervising principal of the Forest Hill schools; D. P. Jones, Junior High School principal; E. C. Mellott, industrial arts teacher; Dale Roose, W. D. Cecil and other grade school teachers. The prizes and hidden goodies were brought by student and teacher contributions.

MAIL BALLOT PLAN TO BE DISCUSSED

Persons interested in a plan of voting by mail proposed by Alonzo P. Ingram are to discuss the plan at a meeting Monday in the Empire Building.

Invitations have been received by many of the city's civic leaders from the committee in charge of the meeting. On the committee are Francis S. Guthrie, Edwin E. Tait, Harmar D. Denny, Jr., Alexander P. Lindsay and Grant Curry.

Ingram, a Pittsburgher, expects to organize a non-profit corporation to launch a national movement for the change of state election laws so that his plan of voting by mail could be used in the various states.

Under Ingram's plan of voting the Election Bureau would mail to voters a blank ballot, a postpaid return envelope and a specially designed ballot envelope in which to enclose and seal the recorded ballot.

Attached to the ballot envelope would be a card detailing any information required of the voter. After marking his ballot the voter would place it in the specially designed envelope. The information and signature would be recorded on the attached card and the ballot with card would be inclosed within the postpaid return envelope and mailed to the Election Bureau.

At the Election Bureau the validity of the ballot would be verified by detaching the card and checking it with the voter's signature already on record. The card would then be filed until the ballots had been counted. The filing of the card would act as a check against the possibility of a voter being voted a second time.

Ingram estimates the cost per vote by his plan would be 25 cents. He says the estimated cost per vote in Allegheny County is approximately $3.

Skyscrapers, Traffic, Careless Men 'Shock' Visiting Swedish Baroness

MRS. LOLA BUSKO — BARONESS CARMEN VON KNORRING

SWEDISH BARONESS VON KNORRING AND HER PITTSBURGH SISTER . . . 25 YEARS SEPARATED

The things that shocked Swedish Baroness Carmen von Knorring, former Pittsburgh girl who is visiting this country for the first time in 25 years, were:

Tall buildings, speedy traffic and the careless way American men dress.

At the home of her sister, Mrs. Lola Busko, 6351 Glenview place, she remarked today in uneasy English:

"I like New York very much. I like the Pittsburgh people, but I could never accustom myself to the Pittsburgh dirt."

Born in the Argentine, Baroness von Knorring lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Devin, in Pittsburgh until she was 12 years old. Her grandparents in Sweden, growing old, wanted one of the Devin children to live with them and be educated abroad.

Shortly after she had finished school, she met Baron von Knorring at her grandparents' home, and in the universal language of all youth, the baroness said:

"It was love at first sight."

The mother of two children, a girl, Ulla Britta, 13, and Lars Goran, 8, Baroness von Knorring plans to visit until June with her mother and brothers and sisters, five of whom she never saw until now. Then she will return to her beloved Appelviken, suburban "garden town" near Stockholm, where she says:

"There is nothing ugly. The buildings are not very tall. The men dress up to go to parties. They never wear street clothes when they take their girls to parties. Girls are more strictly supervised."

A family reunion of the 10 brothers and sisters is planned.

STEINBERG HITS POLITICS IN OUSTER

Attorney Benjamin L. Steinberg, former assistant city solicitor, has charged that he was dismissed by City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully for political reasons and that he was not asked to remain with the department to try the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse and Transfer Company case.

Steinberg, in a letter to Scully, has denied discussing the case with Judge Harry H. Rowand and states that when Scully said there must have been such a conference he cast a reflection on Judge Rowand, for which the city solicitor should apologize.

Scully had stated:

"Mr. Steinberg presumably made some kind of a statement to the court, because, when a request was made for a short continuance to give James L. O'Toole time to familiarize himself with the suit, Judge Harry H. Rowand in the assignment room made the statement that this department was wrecking itself by discharging its personnel—a statement which could only have been made on information."

LETTER OF DISMISSAL

Steinberg charges that Scully in discussing the events leading up to the dismissal has shown "either a wilful misstatement of the facts or an unusual lapse of memory."

According to Steinberg, Scully asked him to stay with the department for a couple weeks to break in new appointees. Steinberg refused, he stated, but offered to consider staying if he would be retained for six months or a year.

Scully then suggested his resignation, Steinberg said, and when he refused directed the chief clerk to give him a letter of dismissal.

POLITICS CHARGED

Steinberg stated:

"It is plain that I was dismissed on account of a political reorganization of the Department of Law."

Steinberg declared he offered the Assistant City Solicitor help on the terminal warehouse case, but that the offer was not accepted.

Scully has come stoutly to the defense of his newly appointed assistants, expressed resentment at the opinion of Judge Elder W. Marshall which suggested politics in the law department, and promised to move to have the judge's remarks stricken from the record as unfair.

HOMES PERILED UNDER TAX SYSTEM

If the tax collectors of Pennsylvania were to exercise the powers of confiscation allotted them under the law, thousands of persons in this state would be homeless and many other thousands would become dependent upon the charity of the commonwealth, the Rev. Howard T. Curtiss, executive director of the Real Estate Owners Association, Inc., of Pennsylvania, declared in a recent radio address.

The organization headed by the Rev. Mr. Curtiss, is active in the Monongahela Valley districts. Utilizing the radio stations and by holding regular mass meetings in all important communities of the valley, the organization has built up its membership so that today it represents a strong and forceful body.

HOMES PERILED

The executive director pointed out that this country would be in a serious state of affairs if the taxpayers were to begin selling the homes of the people who have not been able to pay their taxes, if they were to sell the stores, the farms and the small places of business which have not yielded sufficient return to enable their owners to pay the taxes.

The executive director of the association also pointed out that by having the state assume control of schools, there would be a huge saving in the cost of administration and that all children, whether residing in a city district or in the country, would be given an equal chance to obtain a good education.

STUDY APPROVED

At a recent meeting in Harrisburg, educators from all parts of the state approved appointment of a committee to study the problem of consolidation of school districts in the interests of economy.

H. J. Stockton, of Johnstown, was named chairman of the committee. J. Y. Shambach, of Harrisburg and H. E. Gayman, of Harrisburg, were named secretary and research secretary, respectively.

Attorney Evans To Make Plea For Sales Tax

RAYMOND D. EVANS

Henry George Club To Hear Second Talk on Levy

The favorable side of the argument for a manufacturers' sales tax was to be presented by Attorney Raymond D. Evans at the luncheon meeting of the Henry George Club today. Several weeks ago the club heard arguments against the proposal and Evans is expected to present the arguments in its favor. George Evans will be chairman of the meeting.

Attorney Evans is a prominent member of the Allegheny County bar and served for several years as assistant United States Attorney. The manufacturers' sales tax is being urged by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst papers in place of the income tax, believing that the sales tax is fundamental for permanent economic recovery.

DATA ON W. VA. SALES TAX SOUGHT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 29.—(AP.)—A host of inquiries about the new consumers' sales tax of 2 per cent is slowing up preparations of regulations for its collection.

By telephone, telegraph and letter the questions are pouring into the Tax Commissioner's office.

In addition dozens of persons are calling on Tax Commissioner Fox daily with requests for explanations of the tax as applied to their particular business. Fox said:

"We're getting so many questions that we just can't get anything done."

But nevertheless he and his staff are endeavoring to complete regulations before the tax becomes effective Sunday.

Until they can be drawn the general situation is:

Every retail sale will be taxed 2 per cent beginning April 1.

The tax must be paid by consumers and any steps by merchants to absorb it will be punishable by a fine.

Sales of less than 5 cents will be exempt.

The tax will be collected on a basis of 1 cent on sales from 6 cents to 50 cents; 2 cents on sales between 51 cents and 100 cents and 1 cent for each additional fraction of a dollar.

The amount of tax may be computed on the aggregate of sales in any one transaction. In other words, several articles selling for a total of less than a dollar, but more than 50 cents will be taxed on their total value rather than on the value of each article. Two or more 5-cent articles may be taxed on the total value.

Sales of school books, gasoline and materials sold to the state and sub-divisions will be exempt. Exemptions also will be accorded sales of utility service taxed at a higher rate under other laws.

PULITZER POET WRITES RAIL BALLET

NEW YORK, March 30.—(AP.)—An American ballet based on the building of the first transcontinental railroad, with music reminiscent of old cowboy and railroad songs, will have its premiere next month.

Archibald MacLeish, winner of last year's Pulitzer prize for poetry, conceived the ballet and wrote the libretto. The music is by Nicholas Nabokoff, a native of Russia who has lived in the United States for many years.

The background of the ballet is the construction of the Union Pacific west from Omaha, beginning in 1863, and the Central Pacific east from California, beginning three years later. They were to meet at the California-Nevada boundary, but since both roads had been promised enormous federal subsidies, there was warfare all along the line.

DANCERS DRIVE SPIKES

In the ballet, called "Union Pacific", dancers go through movements of laying rails and driving spikes. The scene shifts to a dance hall tent, where Mexicans, soldiers and miners gather at the bar, and Irish and Chinese laborers fight over a girl.

Then crews of the two roads approach each other and meet, while the capitalist-builders descend from their private cars. A wild finale symbolizes the madness of an entire continent in celebration of the completion of the road.

SPONSORED BY WOMEN

The ballet, to be presented by the Monte Carlo troups, is sponsored by five New York women whose names have not been disclosed. Nabokoff's music is said to be modernistic, but with recognizable song motifs of "Lady Gay," "The Runaway Train," and other Wild West lyrics of the period.

The ballet, one of a few having American settings, will have its premiere in Philadelphia April 6, and then will go to Boston and Chicago before coming here. Albert Johnson, young American stage designer, has done the settings.

Eric, 67-Ton Whale, 'Given' Long Trip

MORECAMBE, England, March 30.—They moved Eric here from Southend-On-Sea, 300 miles away, but it wasn't easy. Special police arrangements were necessary, and the journey took a week. Eric rode in a 100-foot trailer, pulled by a special 180-horsepower truck. Eric is a 67-ton stuffed whale.

WHAT TO COOK, HOW, TOLD BY PRUDENCE

EASTER MENUS SUGGESTED BY PRUDENCE PENNY

Housewives Urged To Plan Holiday Meals Early

A very good morning to you, Milday. I know you are always alert and on the lookout for better ways to do your housekeeping and cooking.

Sometime it is nice a different method of service that will mean nourishment for the family. Smaller servings and more or less course service for hot days, may be the means of tempting those very dainty eaters of your family to consume as much nutritious food as their systems require.

* * *

The appetizer salad or the appetizer cold vegetable or fish plate is meeting increasing popularity.

Use crisp cold marinated lettuce for the foundation preferably. Sliced green pepper, a piece of chilled, canned pimiento, a slice of pineapple or lemon—brushed fresh apple, cheese, or a nest of watercress, make suitable alternative foundations for these first-course dishes.

Serve the regular salad mixtures or a combination of cold vegetables dressed merely with lemon juice and salt or crabmeat, shrimp or lake fish salad. But where you would serve three tablespoons of the mixture for a salad course make it half that amount for the appetizer.

* * *

AN ASSORTMENT of cold cooked or canned vegetables dressed merely with lemon juice or vinegar or a fruit dressing and served on a small chilled plate, makes a refreshing, appetite-tempting first course if vegetables are quite dry and selected for color and flavor combination. The long, round stringless green beans, a slice of tomato and three aspar-

Housewives, Prudence Penny wonders, are worrying over the really laborious task of preparing a holiday dinner menu. Don't be old-fashioned, is her advice to you, and use up all your energy Easter Day in cooking.

Spend an hour now in planning your menu and time schedule for preparation, and you'll see how much easier your work will be. For that matter, you needn't even take off the time for planning, for Prudence Penny has done that for you. Here is her idea of a not too expensive and an easily prepared Easter dinner.

Old Fashioned Spring Cocktail.
Roast Chicken Baked with Whole Orange.
Glazed Onions.
Tomato and Egg Salad.
Champ Potatoes.
Dinner Roll.
Pistachio Ice Cream.
Sponge Drops. Coffee.
Salted Almonds.
Yellow and Green Mints.

The Spring Cocktail is very dressy, yet quite simple and may be prepared tomorrow. Use any combination of fruits, keeping the top of each glass smooth, with a topping of whole strawberries. Garnish with mint leaves and halves of green cherries to represent an old-fashioned bouquet.

As for the champ potatoes, they are mashed potatoes mixed with one-fourth cup of milk and cream, combined, two tablespoons of butter, one small onion, chopped fine, and two tablespoons of chopped parsley. Pistachio ice cream is also an old familiar dish dressed up. Use your favorite vanilla ice cream recipe, adding to it a little green coloring, plus one tablespoon of almond extract.

Whatever your cooking ideas, send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. She daily awards one $5 prize and a number of $1 prizes to the best recipes received. No recipes are returned.

The fact that you happen to like Russian food is no reason you need be accused of revolutionary tendencies. You may serve Russian Borsch and tea from a samovar (if you have a samovar!) and still be loyel to the NRA.

Russian dishes are usually a success at the dinner table, albeit unpronounceable. Here's one called "Piroshki," which you may pronounce as you please, but which your guests will pronounce delicious.

PIROSHKI (Meat Patties)—1 pound veal cutlet, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 3 hard-cooked eggs, 10 crackers, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ½ cup stock, or 1 bouillon cube with hot water.

Fry veal in shortening, season, cool, and chop fine. Lightly fry onions in same fat, add veal with chopped hard-cooked eggs, finely rolled crackers, parsley and stock. Mix and shape into patties, and place in greased pan. Bake for 12 minutes in hot oven (475 degrees F.). 12 patties.

Serve with spinach rolls made as follows: Wrap bundles of spinach in strips of bacon. Skewer and cook, covered, over low flame, adding no water other than what clings to the spinach after washing.

SCHOOL BOARD SPEEDS WORK

Contracts for equipment to cost $1,174.30 were awarded at a special meeting of the Board of Public Education yesterday in order to rush work at city schools now under way as Civil Works Administration projects. The contracts, provided for 23 swinging stage platforms, 15 springlock extension ladders, 104 single and double blocks and 15,600 feet of ¾-inch manila hemp rope.

The board refused to indorse a plea of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board requesting that the State Welfare Board supply funds covering part of the rental payments of unemployed tenants unable to pay rent.

A majority of the members, headed by Dr. A. L. Lewin, objected to the request on the grounds that welfare activities of this nature "are the city's business and not that of the school board, whose duties are limited under the law."

J. Roland Brady, executive secretary of the Real Estate Board, told the board that the realtors' plan had been indorsed by the Pennsylvania Tax Justice League and the Pittsburgh City Council.

Important Mineral Salts Contained in Celery

Increased Production Lowers Cost; Keeps Well and Can Be Used in a Variety of Ways

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York.

When the Pilgrims landed on the shores of the New World they were confronted with the problem of obtaining sufficient food. They searched out all food supplies, yet completely ignored the valuable celery plant which grew in many parts of the country. In Europe, too, the wild celery plant was overlooked as a valuable source of nutrition.

It was not until years later when the wild plant was cultivated, that epicures recognized the fine flavor and unusual taste of the celery. Today, the growing of celery has developed into a large industry. Because of this increased expansion of the crop, the price of celery has been greatly reduced. It is an inexpensive vegetable and within the reach of the most limited budget.

Celery is found in many sections. Great quantities are grown in California, Florida, Ohio, New York and Michigan. The northern states supply the summer demand, and the southern section grows the winter supply. It requires careful cultivation, thriving best in a rich, sandy loam.

"Blanching" celery stalks has developed a mild flavor and fine texture. This process consists of banking the earth along the sides of the plants, or of putting boards alongside them. This treatment requires two or three weeks.

There are two chief varieties of celery, the "green" and the "green golden." Many other kinds of celery are cultivated. "Celeriac" is a variety of celery also known as "knob celery," "turnip celery" or "German celery." Its large, turnip-like root is considered a great delicacy. It may be cooked as a vegetable, boiled and served either hot or cold, or it can be served sliced, with oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. When it is added to soups or meat stews it imparts an excellent flavor to the food.

Celery is a valuable addition to the diet, because it contains important mineral salts, such as lime, phosphorus, iron and potash. Contrary to a popular belief, celery helps combat any tendency of the body towards acidity. Its great contribution to health is founded on its content of vitamins A, B, C and D.

It is an economical vegetable since it keeps well and can be used in a variety of ways. The wise housewife utilizes all parts of this useful plant. She serves the stalk and heart, either plain or stuffed with cheese. The outside stalks can be used in creamed soups and broths. She can give this vegetable to the young child as well as to the adult.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Girl Falls in Love With Her Boy Friend's Best Pal

You're sneaking out with your boy friend's best pal.

Even the boy friend introduced this other fellow to you, and the pal says he isn't comfortable playing this game of deception.

And you are miserable, too . . . But you can't help but think all the day long about the second man . . . Your heart is just all his, and although you and the first fellow have been engaged for ever so long, and would have been married if Old Man Depression had not come along, yet you are hoping for the best, and through underhand methods.

Your story is an old one, Barbara. And it may not be that you are selfish and unpleasant. It may merely be the way with the man and the maid.

There is an old saying that every love affair presents a triangle. There is always someone left out in the cold. So trouble and worry and tears creep in where all should be sunshine.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I need your advice badly. No. 1 is a man I have been keeping company with for a long while and he and I would have been married before this if it had not been for the depression. He is good, a steady worker, nice looking and simply will do anything I ask him. No. 2 is a man No. 1 introduced to me. It is two years ago since I met him and he and I have gone out together without No. 1 knowing of it. He is constantly in my thoughts. My very dreams are of him.

DISAPPROVES SNEAKING

He likes me, but since No. 1 is his best friend he doesn't think it is right to go so much with me. He doesn't approve of sneaking out together, he says.

And yet I simply can't tell No. 1 how I feel. I know he would be terribly hurt. He is just counting the days until we are married.

The funny part is, when I am out with No. 1 I can feel quite sentimental toward him. But when away from him I do not think of him at all.

I have no peace of mind. What shall I do?

BARBARA.

Barbara, you are up against life. You are standing at a crossroads. One way or the other, you will have to go, and soon. Think everything over carefully, and talk it out with No. 2. And if he really is in earnest and you are as important to him as he is to you, then both go to No. 1 and explain everything. If No. 2 really cares, he must face the music along with you.

You are injuring your old beau worse by not telling him the truth, and allowing him to go on with his illusions, than if you would speak out openly to him. No man should be led into marriage with a girl who doesn't love him.

And no girl should marry a man to whom she gives no consideration when she is away from him.

Proximity often makes the soft-hearted sentimental.

But that isn't genuine affection.

SERIOUS MATTER

This is a serious matter, Barbara, for you are likely to break up the friendship between the two men. It will be hard for No. 1 to adjust himself to thinking anything but that he has been double-crossed. He was unselfish when he introduced his friend to you, and trustful. Are you sure you did not encourage the attentions of No. 2? Is your conscience clear in this?

I agree with No. 2 that you and he can go no longer together secretly. You will lose both men through such a performance. There is an ingrained loyalty in many men that would work badly in both directions for you . . .

Also there is a chance of No. 2 thinking that since you played falsely with his friend, you might do the same with him. Of course this may never be true. We cannot govern our loves as we would a business or a profession. Love is an emotion and comes and goes often at will.

"Love me much!" the man says. And the maid answers truthfully, yes. "Love me long!" he adds. And she gambles, if she says "yes" also to that. For time plays many tricks in the workings of the heart.

Right-Wrong Distinction Vital Characteristic—Fay King

By FAY KING

Of all the distinctions in life, only one is important—the distinction between right and wrong.

Some insist that no one can say exactly which is right and which is wrong. That it is only a matter of personal opinion. That nothing is, but thinking makes it so.

But in every case there is a highest principle which is right. Anything less is less right, and, therefore, that very wrong.

Minds incapable of comprehending that highest principle, and those who for selfish purposes prefer to disregard it, are the ones who contribute that "thinking" and "personal opinion" which concedes a wrong to be right.

If every action and decision were motivated by that highest principle only, there would be no injustice in this world.

Contract Bridge

:-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting End-Play

When Bridge players speak of an end-play they refer to a play near the end of the hand in which a chosen opponent is thrown into the lead with his course of action so restricted that he must make a play which will assure the Declarer of an otherwise unmakable or at best a doubtful trick. The term covers all situations where the opponent is forced to lead up to a tenace in the Declarer's or Dummy's hand or to make a lead which will give the Declarer a ruff in one hand and a discard in the other. A third situation, wherein the hand that is thrown in, having been stripped of all other suits, is forced to lead up to an established high card that could not otherwise be cashed, giving the Declarer an otherwise inaccessible discard, is illustrated in the hand below. In this hand, played recently at a New York City club, the partner of the Opening leader was made the victim. The Declarer, East, was Mrs. Michael M. Van Beuren, a daughter of the late John D. Archbold of Standard Oil fame.

West, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 9 7 2 ♡ K 9 7 6 4 ♢ Q J ♣ 9 4 3
♠ K Q 3 ♡ J 10 8 5 3 2 ♢ 4 ♣ A 10 2	North West East South	♠ J 10 6 5 4 ♡ A ♢ 10 8 7 5 ♣ K Q 8
	♠ A 8 ♡ Q ♢ A K 9 6 3 2 ♣ J 7 6 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡ (1)	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♢ (2)
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠ (3)	Pass
6 ♠ (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A slightly shaded Opening but, in addition to a six-card suit, West holds some strength in spades.

2—South's Overcall is quite sound.

3—After West's Opening bid and Raise, East must bid again.

4—The singleton diamond, which should be an added element of strength, was the justification for this bid.

After South opened the diamond King, he at once shifted to the Ace and a small trump, determined to reduce Mrs. Van Beuren's ability to ruff diamonds to one trick. This added to Declarer's difficulties, but she found a method of making the hand by a fine end-play. The second trump trick was won in Dummy and the closed hand entered by the lead of a heart to the Ace. Now a low diamond was led and ruffed with Dummy's last trump. A heart lead from Dummy was ruffed in the closed hand and North's last trump picked up. Three rounds of clubs were then run, the last being won in the Dummy. Now Mrs. Van Beuren threw North in the lead with the Knave of hearts, and, since North was forced to return hearts, won the last two tricks with the high heart in Dummy and her own remaining trump.

How to Keep Well

:-: By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND :-:

'Trichinosis' Cases Rare These Days

It is probable that many of my readers remember the days when food poisoning was a common and dreaded experience. Of all its forms, "trichinosis," or poisoning by diseased pork, was the most feared. Fortunately, federal and state laws now require careful and constant supervision of all meats. As a result of this added protection, trichinosis and other forms of meat poisoning are rarely encountered.

Dr. Copeland

Trichinosis is caused by a tiny worm which infests meat, especially pork. The worm is given a big name, "trichinella spiralis." It can be transmitted to man only by the eating of infected meat.

As a rule the victim of this infection is not stricken with pain until three or four days after eating the pork. At about that time he is seized with nausea, vomiting, intestinal cramps and diarrhea or constipation. Since other symptoms, such as chills, fever and sweating, similar to those found in typhoid fever are present, trichinosis may be confused with typhoid fever.

Tenderness of the eye muscle as well as swelling of the face and eyelids, are other signs of this affliction. The sufferer may think he has some rare eye disease. In consequence he may seek the advice of an oculist. Often, indeed, the diease proves to be a baffling one.

When the attack is mild, it runs its course in a few days and recovery is uneventful. In the more severe form, convalescence may be delayed and the evil effects last for several weeks. Some cases prove serious, requiring expert care and nursing.

In a recent report of trichinosis it was found that city dwellers who obtain their food through channels carefully supervised by health authorities rarely contract this disease. Most of the cases reported in this country can be traced to the eating of improperly cooked and preserved pork.

Fresh pork should be cooked until it is white. Do not eat it if it is red. The center as well as the edges should be white before eating. Dry salt pork, pickled pork and smoked pork that has been previously salted or pickled, are safe if the curing has been thorough.

Hints for the Household

The best way to clean lizard shoes is to make a paste of whiting and water and smear this all over the surface. Brush off when dry. If the shoes are stained or have become yellowish in tint leave the paste on for three or four days.

Windows can be temporarily frosted by painting them with a solution of Epsom salts and water. Use two ounces of salts to a cup of warm water. This "frost" can be removed quite easily by cleaning the windows in the ordinary way.

When whipped cream is required, add the white of an egg to the cream before whipping. It will whip in half the time, the cream will be stiffer and will go twice as far. The egg, being tasteless, makes no difference to the flavor of the cream.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Day or Evening Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me as to what is proper for a lady to wear to a wedding at the Blank Hotel on Sunday afternoon at 5:30? Is a hat necessary? Should gloves be worn while eating? There is to be a dinner after the wedding. D.

A 5:30 wedding is, correctly speaking, a day wedding, and, therefore, you would wear your most formal day clothes with a hat. However, I must admit that sometimes brides-to-be who choose this "in-between" hour for their wedding consider that they have chosen an hour for an evening wedding and expect their guests to dress accordingly to the idea. It's a most inconvenient hour for guests usually, this 5:30 or 6 hour, and usually, like you, the guests invited "wonder" what they are expected to wear. No one but the bride-to-be or her family can inform you whether they expect the wedding to be a day-time wedding or an evening wedding. And so, in the last analysis you must, if you still have doubts, ask them what they expect. Do not wear your gloves while you are eating.

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When entertaining friends in a small home, when the door opens into the living room, is it proper to introduce the new arrivals to the people assembled before removing their wraps, or should they be escorted through the room and be introduced later? MARIE.

You'll find that you can make your introductions more conveniently and leisurely if you have your guests pass through the living room and remove their wraps before you make the introductions. So that there will be no awkward moment for your guests, as they are wondering whether you wish to make the introductions then or later, go forward at once to meet them, and say, "Won't you please leave your wraps in my bedroom?" Then, when the guests come out there will be no break between the making of the introductions and the beginning of the conversation.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Father Face Newest Problems

"At last, my darling!" My father's tones were hushed, reverently joyful, as he finished putting upon my finger the sapphire ring which my mother had left hidden for him after her death.

He bent his gray head and kissed the ring encircling the middle finger of my right hand and there came to me the conviction that those words were not all for me; that to his consciousness, as to mine, had come the eerie but blessed impression that my mother's gentle, phantom presence was very near.

He did not lift his head for several seconds, and I did not speak. Indeed, I tried to hush even my breathing in that sacred moment fraught with the mystery which forever will linger about that other world so near to us and yet so hedged by insuperable barriers.

But the moment, with its eerie spell, finally passed, and when my father's eyes again met mine, I saw that he had bidden goodby to his memories—I thanked God that they were no longer shadowed by the conviction of my mother's bitterness toward him — and was ready again to meet and cope with his problems and mine.

"You will wear the ring until years from now you pass it on to Faith?"

AN EASY PROMISE

These were my father's first words, but there was no tenseness in the query. Indeed, it was more a statement than a question, and I carefully minimized the emotion in my own voice as I answered.

"That is a very easy promise to make, father," I told him, "and one which I shall love to keep. Except when I am washing my hands, the ring shall never leave my fingers until I give it to Faith."

A tender, slightly ironic smile touched the corners of his mouth.

"And as she is only a few months old," he said, "we can postpone speculation as to the time of the next change of ownership of this ring—when Faith's daughter is put into her arms. I, of course, shall not—"

He broke off abruptly; changed to a query: "Are you sure you are comfortable?"

But even as I gave him the assurance that he had asked, my heart cried out a protest against that unfinished sentence, for I knew that he had meant to say he would not live to see Faith receive that ring as her first benediction of motherhood. My reason told me he was right, but I could not bear even to look remotely at that dread possibility.

Yet I must betray no emotion. I held myself rigidly to that promise, and my father's next words showed that he, too, was steeling himself to matter-of-fact consideration of the immediate problems confronting me.

TO WAIT FOR CHILDREN

"You have not changed your mind about staying outside here until Junior and Roderick return?" he asked, with apparent casualness.

"I couldn't wait anywhere else," I told him earnestly. "Forgive me for being so foolish and fussy, father; but I simply cannot help feeling that way."

"Forgive you!" His voice was suddenly eloquent. "You are not more fussy over them than I am. I understand your feeling perfectly, and that is why I am emboldened to ask a boon of you."

"You know that you have only to ask anything in my power to give you, father," I told him.

"I know that, my darling," he said with sudden fervor, then dropped back into the elaborately casual tones with which he was investing his words.

"I am particularly wakeful tonight," he said. "It would be practically impossible for me to get to sleep, for hours; and I want you to let me sit in the living room and read until the children get home. Then you can snatch a nap if you do get sleepy, with the assurance that I shall be on the watch for the children every second."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Joy's Return

Wind-swept lay the garden, and barren,
Of blossoms which summer had known.
The harsh voice of winter had threatened
And linnet and lily had flown.

The roses were stripped of their petals,
Withered leaves lay heaped high on each path,
And grasses were twisted and faded
As they shrank from the wind's icy wrath.

O, bleak was the garden, once lovely,
And bare was each blithe songster's nest.
Yet I knew that the spring and its magic
Would return with life's tides at the crest.

Old sorrow, like winter, is passing,
Gold of gladness will brighten the skies,
Wealth of bloom will come back to life's garden
Song again from hushed lips will arise.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Avoid hats that press tightly at the head. They promote forehead lines, they are sometimes responsible for headaches, and they have a bad effect upon the hair, producing perspiration that depletes the vitality of the scalp.

Don't halt the halter and suspender decollete; it is a nice fashion. A dress of deep violet mossy crepe has halter and suspender decolletage on a very deep back, in self-bands. Long sleeves, attached below the bare shoulders, have little lame turnback points.

Just grand is a new costume for informal dining. A high-necked gown of black satin has a train and is worn with a full three-necked length cape of the satin with a silver fox collar which falls like a cowl in back. A tiny tiara hat of black satin is worn with this outfit.

We carry on fashions that we like season after season. This explains the constant appearance of the shirtwaist frock each year. For Spring there is a grand new frock in pastel crepe that has a small tucked bosom, self color, and a string tie, and mirror glass studs.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Has Your Married Life Grown Dull?

In a rut?

Life growing duller and darker as the days drag by—and you wondering where it's all going to end?

Many a time you've felt like that, haven't you? Perhaps you are feeling like that now. Then this letter will read like the story of your own stalled heart. Dear Miss Elsie:

I read your column so often, and there's something strong and stimulating about it—as if you'd won through yourself. So I'm bringing my problem to you in the hope that you can help me with it.

I have been married for eight years, and my life is so dull that I could scream. Before I was married I had lots of friends, and did not know what it was to crave companionship. But now I am lonely all the time.

My husband is a well-educated man; he holds a good position. We have a nice home and a daughter six years old, but it is a very lonely home for me. I try to be a good wife and mother. I do all the sewing, laundering and housework. I get lots of pleasure out of my child, but naturally I crave grown-up companionship once in a while.

My husband seemed to like my friends before we were married. There was nothing cheap or lowbrow about any of them. But immediately after our marriage he seemed to have no use for them, so I gave them all up, and I have met very few people through him.

IN A RUT

He is the type that leaves for work early in the morning, returns late in the evening, reads the paper with his dinner, and then finds the easy chair and a book for the rest of the evening.

If I didn't do the talking, I don't really believe there would be a word exchanged between us. And many times he never hears me when I speak to him, at that. He doesn't enjoy going out or having people come in.

The only time he hustles around is when there is a stag party. He always manages to go to them.

I sometimes feel that I can't stand this loneliness any longer, but what can I do? I have invited company in numerous times, but considering the nagging I get for doing it, it isn't worth it. So now we never have any company and never go anywhere.

How can I dig myself out of this rut? I feel that eight years is a long time to have been sinking into it, and I dread the years ahead if they are going to be filled with the same monotony. Please help me.

GENEVIEVE.

How can you get out of it?

By making a start, Jenny girl.

You know the cure as well as I. New friends. New interests. New adventures.

SHOULD HAVE COMPANY

Yes, you know the answers. But because they can't be achieved in one day—or one week—you're passing them up as hopeless.

Well, I can't stop you or start you. But I can tell you that if you pass up life, life will pass up you.

Your husband will growl at first! Probably. He's obviously as soured on life as you. He married you because you were an adventure—an adventure in cheerfulness, which his drab nature sadly needed. Then, instead of resisting his grumpiness, you gave in to it—and became a hurt housewife.

So stop sitting like a bump on a log, moaning about injustices and monotony. Invite in some company. If he nags, tell him quietly and tactfully that it is your home as well as his, and you have a right to enjoy it. Get some new clothes. A new hair cut. Join a club or two. Go to a few shows.

Study what's going on in the world. Find something so interesting to talk about that he'll want to talk, too. Flirt with him. Tease him. And will the lover you once knew come back? Here is betting he will!

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Veltman Appears Fixture
Lavagetto Likely to Stay
Still Chance for Blanton

Burlesque Camp Games
Turndown of Petrolle
New Ice Title Bidders

As far as can be judged from this distance, on the strength of the camp reports up to date, the pick of the Pirate rookies, and the ones likely to be retained, are Catcher Art Veltman and Second Baseman Cookie Lavagetto, with Pitcher Cy Blanton still having a chance and certain at least to be carried until the last minute. Even if Blanton is farmed in the end, it probably will be with the privilege of a recall at any time on short notice. He looked good again yesterday in the one inning he pitched against the Cubs, and camp observers are convinced that, whether this year or next, he is going to be a winning hurler for the Rovers.

Art Veltman

The fact that Manager Gibson is keeping Lavagetto right in there appears to indicate a hope that Cookie will be able to fill that second base gap in spite of his limited experience. This youngster, who owns an exceptional pair of hands, is said to cover as much ground both ways as any keystone performer, and if he does not start the season as a regular it will not be surprising if he is kept on the Pittsburgh club for development and to relieve Tommy Thevenow when necessary, pending the arrival of the time when he can take over the position for keeps.

VELTMAN CROWDS OUT FINNEY OR PADDEN

There seems to be no doubt that Veltman has won a job as Earl Grace's co-worker behind the bat, which means that Hal Finney and Tommy Padden will have to fight it out for the third berth on the catching staff. That Veltman has made an excellent impression is to be seen in the fact that Manager Gibson is working him every day. Gibby knows everything that is worth knowing about catching, and if the recruit had not made good in his eyes the youngster would not be getting so much work and attention.

From all indications, Veltman is going to make a fine catcher, all the more so because he adds to his mechanical equipment the spirit of a serious and determined hustler.

The Pirates can make mighty good use of some additional pepper back of the plate, and Veltman promises to supply it. The club may be considered fortunate if, as signs now indicate, it gets as many as three successful recruits, or even if only two, out of the spring crop. That is an unusually high average, against the great number of failures each year in the various camps, and it's a break that, along with the excellent physical condition of all the players at present, makes the Pirate crew look better than it did at this time a year ago.

WASTE TRAINING ON CATCH-PENNY SCHEMES

Spring training trips are supposed to be for the sole purpose of getting the players in shape for the approaching baseball season. The Pittsburgh club and some others never deviate from that policy, always making playing fitness for the pennant race the lone objective, as it should be at all stages of the jaunt. But a few clubs do not hesitate to turn the practice trip into a circus. Training benefits are wasted for the sake of catch-penny schemes designed to lure the curious to joke exhibitions, as witness the fact that during the last week both the A's and the Cardinals put in a girl pitcher, Babe Didrikson, against the Dodgers and the Red Sox.

Babe Didrikson

The opposing clubs that consented to such an arrangement were equally at fault. On the one side, it meant keeping idle, even if for only a short time, regular pitchers who needed all the conditioning work they could get, and on the other side it meant a waste of time for hitters who should have been getting every chance possible to adjust their batting eyes and swings to the kind of hurling they will have to face when the real season opens. It's cheap burlesque or side-show stuff intended to bring some small change into the box office and should have no place in big-time baseball.

PETROLLE DENIED LICENSE AS REFEREE

It appears that a boxer, like a prophet, is not without honor except in his own country. Billy Petrolle, retired battler, while having the respect and good will of the remainder of the Queensberry world, in which he was for the greater part of 10 years one of the game's most prominent and popular figures, has been turned down by his own state of Minnesota. He couldn't even get a license as a referee.

While it is true that Petrolle had to be called to account for stalling in a bout with Tommy Grogan at Greenlee Field here in June, 1932, his career in the main was conspicuously free from questionable operations. He fought everybody who came along, his appearance in any bout of importance was a guarantee that the public would get a run for its money, and he retired with the ranking of the greatest fighter except Sam Langford who never won a championship.

Billy quit the ring in the face of a sellout, and passed up chances for many more profitable matches outside the championship circle. He had enough money to keep him in comfort for the remainder of his days, but he didn't want his name to be dropped out of boxing entirely. To that end, he desired to do some refereeing in his home town of Duluth, but when he asked for a license the Minnesota Boxing Commission rejected his application. The commission may have had its own good reasons for the action, but they certainly are not clear to the average boxing follower.

HOCKEY CUP MAY LAND IN STRANGE HANDS

The prospect that either Detroit or Chicago may be the ultimate winner of the play-off series in the National Hockey League for the Stanley Cup, means not only that the famous trophy, emblematic of the world championship, may remain in this country in spite of the elimination of the New York Rangers, victors a year ago, but also that it may go to a club that never before held it.

Frank Calder

There are only three teams now in Frank Calder's league that have not gained possession of the cup at least once. They are Detroit, Chicago and the New York Americans, and there is a chance that the completion of the present series will find the number reduced to two by a victory for the Red Wings or the Black Hawks. Detroit is in a deadlock with Toronto at two victories apiece and Chicago leads Canadiens by three goals. Six clubs in the circuit captured the championship emblem within the last eight seasons, Les Canadiens and the Rangers each having won it twice. The honors went to the Montreal Maroons in 1926, Ottawa in 1927, Rangers in 1928, Boston in 1929, Les Canadiens in 1930-31, Toronto in 1932, and Rangers in 1933.

The pinmen gave the maples a merry workout during last night's rolling in the annual Pennsylvania and Ohio duckpin tournament on the Forward alleys, Squirrel Hill, with the result that new leaders were established in the doubles, five-men events and the all-events.

In the team competition the Bolds, of Beltzhoover Heights, crashed out a total of 2,648 to wrest the lead from the Emerson No. 1 outfit. Binder and Beet, of the Bolds, took the lead in the doubles with a total of 1,182, a mark that has a fine chance of standing up throughout the tournament.

Binder also stepped to the fore in the all-events standing with a mark of 1,748. Checkers and Masters, of Washington, had a high double game count last night of 421.

The tournament will be continued this evening with doubles getting under way at 6 o'clock. Last night's scores:

Picard Captures North-South Title

PINEHURST, N. C., March 30. (AP.) Henry Picard, young Charleston (S. C.) professional, finally overcame his Pinehurst jinx and won the thirty-second North and South open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 283.

Twice before the slender southerner had been out in front in this annual fixture only to falter in the closing rounds, but yesterday he met the challenge and beat out Horton Smith, Harry Cooper and George T. Dunlap, Jr., in a hot battle down the stretch. They were tied for second at 286.

PIRATES BOW BEFORE CUB ROOKIE, 5-1

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, March 30.—The southpaw bugaboo still hangs over the Pirates with bad signs and portents. A young Cub lefthander, Roy Joiner, who does not seem to have any more zip than Eppa Rixey, threw back the Buccos yesterday as he reeled off nine rounds. The score was 5 to 1. Joiner's full distance trick was the first event of its kind the Pirates have seen this season.

In one of the games of the early series between the Buccos and Bears, the same kid blanked the Pirates through five innings, which means that the Pittsburghers have totaled one tally off the recruit in 14 rounds of action.

FORMER OAKLAND STAR

A graduate of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League, Joiner was acquired by the Cubs, who have been quite desperate to acquire a lefthander. Joiner doesn't seem to have the speed of a Birkofer or French, and it would not be surprising to see him smacked around the lot quite a bit if he stays with the Cubs, but the lad has the advantage of fine control to his credit. Any left-hander who can fling the ball accurately often will stand the Pirates on their heads.

The Cubs have won three of the five games staged to date. The two clubs will continue their diamond warfare this afternoon. Manager Gibson plans to send Ralph Birkofer to the slab with Hal Smith selected as the second pitcher of the day. Pat Malone, who has been working hard to reach his old form, will open for the Chicago outfit.

JOHNSON IMPRESSIVE

Lefthander Floyd Johnson looked impressive as he flipped against the Cubs for five rounds yesterday. Johnson made one too good for Augie Galan in the third inning and the kid infielder smacked the ball out of the lot for the only tally charged against Johnson. Cy Blanton relieved the southpaw in the sixth and was solved for three runs. Dolf Camilli brought the Chicago attack to a close in the seventh when he banged out a homer.

The Buccos scored their lone tally in the eighth. Thevenow singled with one out, went to second on an out and scored on Suhr's hit.

Chillysauce

The Cubs are counting heavily on Pat Malone in the coming campaign. The Altoona fireman was an indifferent, losing pitcher as he hung up a mark of 10 victories and 14 defeats last summer. Pat saw his job slipping, and he felt the pruning knife solidly in the region of the pay envelope, yet he is rated as the hardest worker in the Cubs camp. It is not according to human nature to hustle after the salary has been trimmed, but there are several topliners in the Chicago show who are stepping on the gas after signing at a reduced figure.

Now that Rabbit Maranville is lost to the Braves, the National League will be without one of the greatest double-play combinations in the game. The Rabbit and Bill Urbanski could handle the ball like jugglers and thus were able to work the double shuffle on the fastest sprinters of the league. Jurges and

By JESS CARVER

If the riding is as fast and furious today in Pittsburgh international six-day bike grind as it was yesterday and last night, and the boys do not burn down the track, the field may enter the final day of pedaling tomorrow with as much space separating the first and last place teams as it takes to jot down a period.

Z. St. Laurent

Provided, of course, half the field isn't lugged off to the hospital.

The riding from the 8 o'clock sprints last night up until after 3 o'clock this morning was as thrilling and spectacular enough to have qualified it for the "spot" act of the greatest days of the Coliseum, when the good old Romans were not satisfied unless a troupe of gladiators were carving their initials on one another. As a result, several of the riders are battered and bruised and patched up and the majority of them are nursing painful bumps and bruises.

FRENCHMEN AHEAD

The still scintillatinng Frenchman, Henri LePage, and his sturdy driving partner, Zenon St. Laurent, are tied with two other combinations for the lead in mileage today, but have an edge in points, which, were the race to terminate suddenly, would give the green and gold jerseyed pair the victory. They've traveled 1,690 miles and nine laps, the same distance that has been covered by the Italians, Tom Saetta and Fioravanti Baggio, and the Irish-Jewish team of Louis Cohen and Lew Elder. LePage and St. Laurent have 267 points, however, with the Italian second with 250 and Cohen and Elder sporting a mere 186.

LePage and St. Laurent have been up at or near the top now for more than two days, but they had to pedal their sturdy legs off yesterday to stave off repeated challenges hurled their way by ambitious rivals. For a time, the brilliant pair found themselves ousted from the lead, or even a share of it, but they came back nobly. LePage would dash madly ahead to pilfer a lap and then turn the job of holding the advantage to the more powerful St. Laurent, with a crack that sounded very much like:

"Zenon, remember Verdun! They shall not pass."

The veteran Reggie McNamara and Tony Beckman, who is anxious to cop first honors in this grind and get back to his Secaucus (N. J.) pig farm, and the still formidable German-Swiss pair, Otto Petri and Freddie Zach, are tied for fourth position, a lap behind the leaders. Reggie and Tony are far ahead in points, with 372, and if they can ever establish a lead in laps, the local race will go to the American team.

PEDEN, AUDY SIXTH

Torchy Peden and Jules Audy, the latter riding with his left hand in splints, due to a broken finger suffered in a bad spill after midnight last night, are in sole possession of sixth place, two laps behind. Piet Van Kempen and Frank Bartell, as slick and trim as ever in their nifty white uniforms, have Marcel Boogmans and Savere Van Slambrouck for company in seventh position. The world champions, for all their fine sprinting ability, were unable to make up much ground yesterday.

Stolen Laps

Ray Eberle, popular local fight announcer, is making a runaway race of it for honors as the bike grind's nattiest dresser. Ray's shirt and tie combinations, his doggy suede shoes and tan belted coat have the other boys backed down to a fare-thee-well.

Among the grind's most faithful fans are Cy Comfort, former Tech football star; Judge John P. Egan, Ray Foutts, Ted Yarosz' manager; Alan Trench, the WCAE announcer, and Chappy Couch.

The sympathies of the crowd were with doughty little Rene Boogmans, one of the iron men of the sport, as he suffered a severely bruised shoulder in a bad spill last night. Boogmans rides with a partially paralyzed right arm, which was fractured in three places in a bad smash in Brussels, Belgium, back in 1902.

Two of the trainers, Joe Mussolini, who takes care of Van Kempen, and Eddie Seiffert, who handles affairs for McNamara, staged an impromptu boxing bout for the edification of the late watchers this morning. Pat Brennan, in the capacity of unofficial referee, declared the bout a draw.

Young Bert Smith never was closer to a fractured skull in his life than he was in the spill in which Rene Boogmans and Jules Audy were injured. He was riding high when he bounced into the others and went crashing to the bottom of the track, where he struck his head with a thump heard at Sixth avenue and Grant street. Boogmans was hurled into the repair pit and finished up with his shoulder jammed against the infield fence, and Audy broke one of his fingers as his hand struck the boards.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE RIGHT HANDED TYPIST—William Holzman, of Portland, Ore., overcame the big physical handicap of the loss of one arm by becoming an expert typist. With a deft right hand he operates a typewriter, using the touch system, and averages 62 words a minute. He began typing two years ago and has kept track of the total number of strokes typed, which amounts to 3,172,500. Besides being an expert typist, he is an accountant, bookkeeper and stenographer.

HEARST SHOOT INTEREST MOUNTS

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER

CHICAGO, March 30.—More than 150 teams out of the 500 competing this year in the William Randolph Hearst rifle matches already have completed their firing and the results have been sent to Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, commanding officer of the Sixth Corps Area, U. S. A., and official referee of the competition.

The speed with which the firing is being completed indicates the tremendous interest in the matches in the various cadet corps in high schools, military academies, colleges and Universities throughout the country.

While scores cannot be given out until after the closing date of the match, it is known that they are running higher this year than they did in 1933.

This is the thirteenth year of the matches, and the marksmanship of the R. O. T. C. students steadily has improved since they were inaugurated. The competitive spirit is more in evidence this year than it has been in any previous year, partly because of the inclusion of naval R. O. T. C. units in the shoot.

These units are represented by teams from Yale University, University of California, Harvard University, Georgia School of Technology, University of Washington, and Northwestern University.

All firing must be completed by April 15.

A. aces; Carl Debberthine and Steve Myers, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A.; Dave Olbum and Dr. Phil Lapidus, Y. M. H. A. dependables, and Parker Smith and Frank Koubek, youthful Keystoners.

Three Stars Tie For Cue Lead

CHICAGO, March 30.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, threw the international 18.2 balkline billiards tournament into a three-way tie for first place last night by conquering Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, 400 to 345, in 11 innings.

The defeat was the German star's first in three matches and left him tied with Cochran and Willie Hoppe, of New York, who smothered Ora Morningstar, of San Diego, Cal., 400 to 34, in seven innings, in the afternoon.

Cochran and Hoppe will meet tonight for temporary possession of the lead, and Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, and Morningstar clash in the afternoon match.

WILLIGS WIN OVER JEWELS

The Willigs carried too many guns for the crack Brooklyn Jewels, Eastern professional stars, last night, at McKeesport, the McKeesporters succeeding where the ex-Dukes failed, by beating the Jewels, 43 to 34.

Joe Janosik, former Waynesburg College star, was the high point man of the game as he collected eight field goals and two fouls for 18 points. The Jewels, playing with only five men, outscored the Willigs, 11 to 6, in the final period. The lineup:

SPORT VIGNETTES

Boxing returns to a historic spot with the staging of the Ted Yarosz-Ben Jeby 12-round battle in Duquesne Garden, one week from tonight . . . It was in the Garden ring that the late Harry Greb fought some of his early fights, setting the foundation for his brilliant career . . . Frank Klaus fought the great Stanley Ketchel there, Willie Ritchie and Johnny Griffiths put on one of the fastest six-round bouts ever fought anywhere in the Garden and Buck Crouse and Eddie McGoorty also boxed there, along with a host of other notables . . . Frank Moran, doing a comeback, fought Denver Jack Geyer in the ballroom of the Garden, upstairs . . . There has been little fistic activity in the Garden in recent years, due mainly to the fact that Motor Square Garden has been available for this purpose and Duquesne Garden has been given over to ice skating and hockey . . . Arrangements are being made to seat a crowd of 7,000 for next week's show, which is approximately 2,000 more than can be squeezed into Motor Square with the ban on standing room. . . . A crowd of close to 10,000 saw Harry Greb in one of his fights in the Oakland arena.

Georges Carpentier one night put on an exhibition in Duquesne Garden with a sparring partner, Paul Journee, who later became famous as one of the discoverers of Primo Carnera . . . The show was a distinct flop, the local fans once again demonstrating that they won't turn out for exhibition stuff but want the real thing . . . And Carpentier at the time was very much in the headlines as the French war hero on his way to fighting Jack Dempsey for the world championship.

Memory recalls that Jack Britton and Pete Herman and Andy Chaney also fought in Duquesne Garden . . . Back in the old days, Jimmy Dime, the late Roy Schooley and Gib Marsh were interested in the Garden promotions . . . Later came Red Mason and others . . . That Ritchie-Griffiths bout already referred to was fought under rather unusual circumstances . . . Ritchie was appearing in vaudeville at the old Grand Opera House, now the Warner Theater, downtown, for a week's vaudeville engagement . . . He had just come back from England, where he had dropped the lightweight championship of the world to Freddie Welsh, and he was burning up over what he claimed was a raw decision . . . He got $30,000 for that bout . . . He carried his trainer with him on his stage tour and kept himself in excellent condition . . . The night of the Griffiths fight he had his act at the theater put on early and then hopped out to the Garden to give a blazing exhibition . . . It was a no-decision go, but Ritchie got the newspaper verdicts.

The Klaus-Ketchel bout was a high spot of its time . . . Ketchel apparently was not in the best of shape for the match, and Klaus probably could have won handily if it had not been for repeated injunctions from his corner to be careful and not take any chances, as he had a bout scheduled in Boston a few nights later . . . By the time he realized Ketchel's plight it was too late to capitalize fully upon it.

Johnny Ray, a corking clever local lightweight, was in the Garden ring one night with one Special Delivery Tully, of the South Side, a fair prospect . . . Between rounds of the bout, Tully blew his nose to relieve a stoppage, and, as sometimes happens under such conditions, an air pocket formed under one of his eyes, stretching the skin balloon fashion . . . Ray appealed to the referee to stop the bout, and, when the official refused, Johnny signaled to his opponent to come close and they put their heads together and finished the last two rounds tapping each other lightly to the body . . . It was a fine exhibition of sportsmanship on the part of Ray . . . Shortly afterward, Tully was killed in a bout in Steubenville.

Then there was the night Carl Morris, the White Hope, boxed Tom McMahon, of New Castle, in the Garden, with Joe Choynski, a former great fighter, as the referee . . . Choynski became annoyed when the two big fellows failed to heed his instructions and walked out of the ring on them, telling them to finish the battle themselves in their own way . . . The matter finally was adjusted and the bout resumed . . . Memories . . . Almost forgotten, some of them, but brought vividly to life again by the Yarosz-Jeby revival.—HARRY KECK.

Local Girl Loses In Augusta Play

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30.—(AP.)—Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., the medalist, advanced to the second round of the Augusta women's invitation golf tournament by eliminating Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, N. Y., 5 and 4, here yesterday. Seven others got safely past the first round.

Miss Dorothy Richards, of Weston, Mass., eliminated Miss Betty Abernethy, of Pittsburgh, 2 and 1.

I. K. S. TEAM WINS

The I. K. S. swimming team defeated the Allegheny Y. M. C. A. splashers in a dual meet in the Allegheny pool last night, 44 to 33. It was the fifteenth consecutive victory for the I. K. S. team.

Puzzled?

LET'S SEE WHAT EXPERIENCED SMOKERS ARE BUYING

These men know cigars. And they won't buy any cigar—regardless of price—that doesn't meet their taste demands.

Let's ask dealers what cigar these hard-to-please smokers like best. Let's ask them what cigar most of their customers like best.

Dealers—almost without exception—will answer: Bayuk "PHILLIES". They say—and sales records prove it—that more men smoke Bayuk "Phillies" than any other cigar on the counter.

When you try Bayuk "Phillies"—remember this. It's not a 5c cigar. It's America's former largest-selling 10c brand reduced to 5c. Read Bayuk's Guarantee.

This guaranteed 10c quality makes the vast difference that separates Bayuk "Phillies" from other cigars now selling for 5c. It also accounts for the enjoyment and complete satisfaction you'll get from smoking it.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Domestic and Havana long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

HEIDELBERG ON EDGE

LOCAL ELEVEN AFTER THIRD SOCCER TITLE

By TOM BIRKS

Only two obstacles remain between the Hiedelberg soccer club and its third National Amateur championship. One of these is the Chicago Slobodas. The Windy City aggregation is scheduled to meet the Green and Gold contenders at Greenlee Field Sunday afternoon in the Western final of the tourney. The winner will represent the West against the Eastern winner, probably the German-American Club, of Philadelphia.

Tonight, at Heidelberg, Manager Walter McCabe is holding a pep meeting, with the entire team and the townspeople invited. A meeting of this kind has been held by Heidelberg ever since the amateur competition was started in 1924.

Heidelberg displayed fine form against Moon Run last Sunday afternoon in the semi-final round of the West Penn cup.

Three years of league competition in the Illinois International circuit without defeat make the Chicagoans a worthy foe.

Manager McCabe will not take any chances in Sunday's game. Steve Kuten, the center forward, is working in Cleveland, but he came back to Heidelberg this morning to attend the pep meeting and drill with the club tomorrow. No change will be made in the starting lineup.

Buff Donnelli played against the German-Americans in the test game at Philadelphia and is authority for the statement that the amateur champions are a great club.

The Chicago team is due here today and will be quartered at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Fifteen players make up the squad. Ed Patterson, of Cleveland, has been named to referee the game by John J. McEwan, of Cleveland, the chairman of the National Amateur Cup Committee.

The Curry soccer club has been fined $25 by the West Penn Commission for refusing to comply with the ruling made by the committee in the semi-final game with Gallatin last Sunday. The game has been ordered replayed as part of a double-header on Sunday, April 8. The second contest will be between Houston and Avella, a West Penn Junior Cup final.

Baseball Briefs

By the Associated Press.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Lou Chiozza who came here with the least publicity has the best chance among candidates for infield vacancies in the ranks of the Phillies. It was Chiozza who drove in the winning run against the Boston Red Sox yesterday repeating his performance of their previous encounter.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Danny Mc-Fayden, veteran right hander, finally has turned in a game that makes it appear as though he'll be of considerable use to the New York Yankees this season. Danny pitched the first six innings against the Boston Braves yesterday, granted only four hits and one run. He walked none and fanned three.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Detroit's Tigers beaten by the Athletics again, 5 to 3, came back to Spring training ratings today to meet the Columbus team of the American Association. Although each team got 10 hits yesterday, the Mucks hit when hits meant runs.

BILOXI, Miss.—After two consecutive lickings by the Cleveland Indians, Manager Joe Cronin has put his Washington Senators back into sort of a laboratory workout on baseball fundamentals. For two hours yesterday the kid manager had his charges practicing the fine points of both defensive and offensive play, including a bit of base stealing.

SARASOTA, Fla.—No more traveling for the Red Sox until the break camp for the season next Monday. The Braves route to town today and tomorrow. Hicks will pitch six innings against the Tribesmen. Either Welch or Walters will finish out the game.

ORLANDO, Fla.—The ball may be livelier, but you can't prove it by the New York Giants. They seem to be the same light hitting team that won the world championship last year through super-fine pitching and all-around alertness so far they have compiled a batting average of .281 in 19 games.

ORLANDO, Fla.—If he didn't have worries enough, Casey Stengel, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, now has to the services temporarily of one of his best outfielders. Danny Taylor got his knee in the way of a fast ball tossed by Walter Beck in batting practice and probably will be on the sidelines a week.

Picture Banned, Max Sorry for German Gals

LAKE TAHOE, Cal., March 30.—(AP.)—Max Baer, heavyweight boxing championship contender and self-styled "great lover" of the screen, is sorry for the women and children of Germany, he said, because his moving picture, "The Prizefihter and the Lady," has been banned from German theaters. He said:

"They didn't ban the picture because I have Jewish blood. They banned it because I knocked out Max Schmeling.

"I'm sure sorry for the women and children of Germany. Too bad they won't get a chance to see the world's greatest lover and the world's greatest fighter in action."

TRADE PASSERS HONORED

By JULIUS LEVIN

Members of the Connelley Trade School basketball team, who finished second in the race for the Section I championship of the City League during the past season, were awarded letters at two assemblies held in the school auditorium.

Two members of the team, Frank Evanowski, center, and Eddie Stroloski, forward, were presented gold medals for winning a place on the all-City League quintet, chosen by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The letter winners were:

Ed Sobehart, Ed Stroloski, Frank Evanowski, Charles Placek, John Turkovich, Eneo Panicco, Stanley Michalowicz and William Lyons.

WALSH SPEAKER

C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor of athletics in the department of hygiene, presented the letters, while the writer presented the gold medals, given by the Fintex Corporation. Other speakers were Dr. L. H. Turner, principal; H. A. Ziel and H. R. Roberts.

Charles Horvatich, the "Lonesome Cowboy" of Connelley Trade School, offered three vocal selections. Music was furnished by the Connelley Trade School orchestra.

The South High School basketball team was scheduled to hold its last workout this afternoon for its game with Reading High School in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tomorrow night. The winner will be crowned state scholastic champion.

READING DUE TONIGHT

READING, March 30.—(AP.)—Thousands of persons and hundreds of automobiles paraded last night as a send-off for the Reading High School basketball team as it left for Pittsburgh and the final game for the state championship with South High, of that city, Saturday night.

The team will arrive in Pittsburgh at 6 o'clock tonight and about the same time a special train carrying upward of 500 rooters will leave this city. On the train will be the uniformed high school band of 50 pieces, city and school officials, high school pupils and many enthusiastic adult supporters.

LEFTIES STILL THWART BUCS

Billy Herman, of the Cubs, are a pair of champs at the same trick.

Vince Barnett, son of the one and only Lefty of Pittsburgh, has been entertaining the Travers and other Pirates between movie workouts and ribbing of his dad's brand. Vince at present is making two pictures and is one of the busiest men in Hollywood. His car would cause a big sensation were it to roll down the main drag in dear old Braddock. Regis Toomey is another Pittsburgher here whose hospitality is open to the Buccos.

Manager George Gibson's eye and head condition has improved to such an extent he had decided to dress for yesterday's game with the Cubs. Gibby's players restrained him with the plea that inasmuch as they had won five games in succession he should continue to direct in civilian attire. The trimming the Pirates took at the hands of the Bears should knock some of the foolish superstition out of them. Anyhow, Gibby will be back in battle togs today.

Through many seasons the Cubs were a bad baserunning club aside from Hazen Cuyler and Woodie English, but Lefty Grimm's present array includes a flock of greyhounds. Cuyler, Stainback, Klein, Galan, Jurges and English can all carry the mail.

Leo Hartnett, a tower of strength to the Bruins, is back on the job looking like a champ after recovering from a broken finger. With Gabby available for first string duty and with Warneke, Malone, Bush and Root ready to take their regular turns, the Cubs should prove tough hombres all the way.

Baseball Briefs

PASADENA, Cal.—The Chicago White Sox took their last routine drills of the practice season today. Tommorw and Sunday they will meet the Pasadena Merchants, a semi-professional team, and on Monday will take to the road home. The homeward journey will involve a string of 12 games in 10 cities, all against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

BRADENTON, Fla.—Anxious to get his pitchers ready for the nine-inning route Manager Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals has decided to use two fingers instead of three in exhibition games for the next few days. By early next week Frisch hopes at least part of the staff will be ready for full distance. Jess Haines, dean of the staff, and Bill Walker drew today's assignment against the New York Yankees.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—Inside stuff, especially base sliding, is being stressed by Manager Rogers Hornsby, of the Browns. Hornsby is the first manager of the Browns to introduce the sliding pit for years. Except for the pitchers, each player is required to show his skill or lack thereof at this almost-obsolete form of training.

NEW ORLEANS.—Odell Hale's presence in center field as the Cleveland Indians defeated the New Orleans Pelicans, 6 to 4 yesterday, may have seemed strange, but Manager Walter Johnson says it was just a bit of strategy. Hale's arm was too sore to permit any infield play, so he was moved into the outfield simply to let him get some batting practice.

TAMPA, Fla.—Nearing the regular season with his players rounding well into shape, Manager Bob O'Farrell, of the Cincinnati Reds, today made some predictions on the probable composition of his team. Hafey, Comorosky, Moore and Shiver seem almost sure of outfield berths. Johnny Gill or Pug Bush may get another stellar position. O'Farrell intends that he and Lombardi will do most all the catching.

LOCAL MAN TRAILS

PINEHURST, N. C., March 30.—(AP.)—E. M. Peterson, of Boston, and N. B. Hersloff, of New York, tied for first place in the class A section of the Low Whistler golf event yesterday for non-winners of the season. Each had a net score of 69. J. M. Jamison, of Greensburg, Pa., trailed with a 76.

PITT PASSERS SHOW WARES TO COACHES

ATLANTA, Ga., March 30.—Finding a 20-minute game entirely to their liking, the Pitt basketball players put on an ideal act for the edification of some 50 or 60 of the nation's leading college basketball coaches in the Atlanta Athletic Club gym last night.

While such case-hardened veterans of official baiting as George Keogan, Piggy Lambert, Craig Ruby, Phog Allen, Roy Mundrof, Frank McDermott and Chick Evans sat and looked as though it was all understandable to them, the Panthers put on a series of triangles, five-men whirligigs, spinners, screen plays, blocks and feints that had the speedy DeKalb Teachers' outfit tied in knots.

PANTHERS BRILLIANT

It was all Pitt, and even Dr. Carlson's bitterest rivals were forced to give his boys a hand as the Panthers toyed with the Teachers.

After the crowd watched Illinois Wesleyan outrush and outscore South Carolina in a second 20-minute game that featured everything but an off-tackle play, the latter clubs demonstrated several of the new suggestions that will come before the coaches today.

They played with a black ball for a while; tried a system which saw the centers the only ones to handle the ball after the tip-off and until it had struck the floor; and then dallied with the idea of the fouled player making his charity toss from the spot where he ran into trouble.

There were no loud cheers from the stands at any of the innovations.

PLAY AGAIN TONIGHT

The Panthers are due to take on Illinois Wesleyan tonight, and this afternoon will be taken on a sight-seeing tour along with the DeKalb, South Carolina and Wesleyan.

The score of last night's exhibition was 22 to 13, Skippy Hughes tallied 11 points with four field goals and one foul. The lineup:

Pitt.	G.	F.	Pts.	Dekalb.	G.	F.	Pts.
W. Hughes, f.	4	3	11	Westlake, f.	3	2	8
McCamant, f.	1	0	2	Miller, f.	0	1	1

Personal fouls—C. Hughes 3, Noon, Clark 2, Westlake.

Milwaukee Stars In A. B. C. Spotlight

PEORIA, Ill., March 30.—(AP.)—With Milwaukee, the hotbed of bowling, furnishing the performers for the stellar roles, the American Bowling Congress promises a three-day pin classic starting tonight.

Leading this delegation will be the Veritines, captained by Hank Marino, winner of more than half a hundred medals in his career, and voted the world's greatest bowler last year. Also competing over the week-end is the Schlitz five, which is leading the Classic League in Milwaukee. The Schlitz is led by Frank Benkovic, a member of the two-men team winners for the past two years. Another member of this team is Gil Zunker, who, with Benkovic, set a new all-time record of 1,415 in the doubles last year.

Oklahoma Girls In Tourney Final

WICHITA, Kan., March 30.—(AP.)—The Cardinals, of Oklahoma City University, will try for their third straight women's A. A. U. basketball title tonight against the dangerous challenge of Tulsa Business College in an all-Oklahoma finale of the national tournament.

In the "tomboy" division, played under men's rules, the Spencer Coals, from Chicago, meet the Maplewood (Mo.) Shaw-Stephens Legion Post team for the right to meet the official feminine division champion in a test game Saturday night.

TALOVICH VICTOR

Milan Talovich, of McKeesport, defeated E. D. Andrews, of McKees Rocks, 125 to 114, in a West Penn pocket billiard championship tourney match last night. John Young and J. L. Rumstay tied for the lead meet tonight.

TOURNEY ON TONIGHT

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 30.—The ninth annual Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia independent basketball tournament with 16 cities represented, will get under way here tonight. Thirteen games are on the opening program.

Americans Are Not Asleep

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICANS ARE not asleep. Their minds are functioning. They are thinking, perhaps more than ever before.

Mr. Forbes

One interesting, significant fact: the rank-and-file have no scintilla of hesitation in expressing their views for publication; almost without exception men occupying highly responsible positions shrink from talking for publication.

Never before has the volume of correspondence addressed to this column reached such gigantic proportions.

ONE DEDUCTION drawable from the mass of letters received, as well as from the writer's numerous contacts, is this: NRA and other Washington activities, are far more cordially indorsed and supported by employes than by employers.

LABOR DEVELOPMENTS have stirred white-heat interest. It was to be expected that motor manufacturers, oil producers and other employers would oppose swelling the power of the American Federation of Labor. Rather surprising, however, has been the number of letters received from workers protesting against having the American Federation dominate every industry and exact dues. They ask:

"How do the salaries and other rewards of labor leaders compare with the salaries and bonuses of corporation executives?"

TO AFFORD insight into how the public mind is working at the moment, suppose we peruse extracts from letters received:

William F. Doyle:

"If those high salary and bonus executives were such super-men, why did they let the country slip into such a depression?"

J. FRANK TOTH, toolmaker:

"No amount of unionism can unionize a plant where honesty is unquestionable. But where the management thinks of the laborer as a timecard number, there unionism flourishes. I am a toolmaker, 36 years of age, have worked hard and studied to be a good worker. Most of us like to work where incentive and not seniority counts, and, of course, this is strictly against unionism."

FROM A NEW YORK State Insurance Department man:

"I inclose pages from last year's published report of the superintendent of insurance. In every case of a mortgage guarantee company there is given the total amount of guaranteed mortgages outstanding. These facts were all available to any investors investing in guaranteed mortgages."

FROM A business man who has had experience recently with bureaucrats:

"If you or I ran our business in the way that the government departments with which I have had to deal are run, we would last about six weeks."

Howard V. Mickle:

"I believe I express the feeling of many young people when I say that we want no more of government by business. We want a government for all the people instead of for special classes."

Norman C. Norman:

"Gradually the American people are losing their liberties and we are now threatened with jail, fines and 'crack-downs.' Perhaps the American people do not deserve any freedom or any liberty, if they won't fight or protest to maintain them."

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED.

Bernard F. Gimbel, president of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in connection with the annual statement issued today, pointed out that the corporation was in an improved current financial position with net current assets of $20,896,539 as compared with $19,368,505 a year ago.

The balance sheet shows no bank indebtedness. Cash on hand of $4,287,783 exceeded all current liabilities.

Inventories, which are in much improved condition, and valued on the basis of cost or market, whichever is lower, stood at $11,961,158 as compared with $8,771,458 a year ago.

The total volume of sales for the year showed an increase.

The net loss for the year was $626,487 as compared with a loss of $4,459,058, representing an improvement of $3,832,750. The loss is after providing $1,683,644 for depreciation of plant and equipment, and $1,488,844 interest charges.

The company paid out approximately $1,750,000 in federal, state and local taxes during the year.

The company continued through the year to extend reductions in interest and rent through active negotiations with mortgagees and landlords. Further economies in other phases of the business were likewise initiated or extended so that the company is able to report a further saving in total expense of operations over last year. In conformance with the NRA, there has been a considerable increase in the number of employes in stores.

DANGERS SEEN IN VETERANS LEGISLATION

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics New York University

NEW YORK, March 30.—The action of Congress in passing the bill appropriating $103,000,000 for veterans and $125,000,000 for federal employes, should make us think.

This step means much more than merely defeating Mr. Roosevelt. It is significant as showing the political power of organized minorities. It is significant as showing how there prevails the notion that government credit is boundless, and that the government can "create purchasing power" by giving its credit to its citizens.

And there is involved that widespread tendency to take wealth away from one group for the purpose of giving it to another.

Whether you like it or not, this action by Congress is closely similar to much that the administration has itself been doing. It is directly traceable to the monetary and "reform" policies of the new deal.

The veterans and federal employes say they need the money as much as farmers or silver mine owners. Well, maybe they do. Certainly such phrases as "social justice" and "a more abundant life" do not help answer the question.

Who first put the nation's budget hopelessly out of balance and swelled the public debt to record-breaking size? Who first put the dollar off the gold standard and made a mere paper dollar without any standard but government credit? Who first began distributing the billions among farmers, mine owner, CWA "workers" and financing various reform schemes?

The idea of "creating purchasing power" is very dangerous. It soon leads to the notion that the government is justitfied in giving money to anyone, just to "put money into circulation." A "veteran" will do as well as any other spender.

But where is the "money" to come from? Not from production, but from the boundless government credit! In reality, that means just two possibilities: (1) Either the taxpayers of this or future generations, or (2) inflation, which is a forced levy on all people who have any money or fixed money incomes.

Already the government, by repudiating gold clauses, and "devaluation," has taken over 40 per cent of your money's purchasing power and has written up a paper "profit" of nearly $800,000,000, which it is "spending."

But taking away the purchasing power of people who have, or are earning, money cannot increase the total purchasing power.

And how long can the spending of bonuses or inflated currency last? Only as long as government credit holds up and continues to be poured out.

The only enduring basis for spending is production. The man who produces an earned income (whether by labor or capital or enterprise) can go on spending it indefinitely. Others are receiving a sort of dole, whatever it may be called.

Frankly, I personally agree with the President in this case. But I do not agree with his new deal economics, and I think that if all this government spending is to go on some of it might as well go to veterans and federal employes as to mine owners. To be sure, the "bonus" may be more permanent, but that is hardly a matter of principle.

The bill dangerously increases the public debt, but so does the other new deal spending. It would not bring the debt to the danger point except for RFC, CWA, PWA, TVA and the rest of it.

Of course it tends toward more inflation. But if prices are to be raised "by one means or another," why not by this means?

Does the passage of this bill not raise the question, can we count on inflation being "controlled?"

BRAZIL RULING HITS FOREIGN CONCERNS

Edward Tomlinson, foremost American commentator on South American economic and political conditions, has just completed a tour of South America as special correspondent of Universal Service. In a series of articles, he has written facts as he found them regarding American interests and business conditions in Brazil, the Argentine, Uruguay and Chile.

By EDWARD TOMLINSON

Noted Authority on South American Economics.

United States industrial investors in Brazil have received some severe jolts lately. Drastic regulations and limitations have recently been imposed upon several large foreign-owned concerns.

A growing element in the populous states of San Paulo and Bahia, as well as in the national capital, moreover, openly advocate the curtailing of all foreign enterprise.

The most recent of these regulations affect the giant public utilities, the largest foreign developments in the republic.

A Canadian-controlled company owns and operates the most extensive single group of power companies, as well as the street railways and telephone systems, of the two largest cities, Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

A United States company owns and operates similar enterprises in a number of other cities, among them the capitals of the states of Bahia in the north, Rio Grande do Sul in the south and Minas Geraes in the west.

Throughout the country rates and service charges are being slashed by order of federal, state and city governments. In some sections there are open discussions about forcing the sale of certain of the properties to the states and municipalities.

All of this affects hundreds of thousands of citizens in Canada and the United States who own stock in these companies. Millions of their dollars were brought in and invested in good times. The money has not only rendered a distinct service to the people of Brazil, but contributed to the development of natural resources and the enhancing of national wealth.

The Canadian concessions and contracts, which date back for more than 40 years, provided for the payment of consumers' bills at 50 per cent in milries, the local currency, and 50 per cent in gold, based on the British pound sterling.

In the American contracts there was an exchange clause stipulating that 50 per cent of the bills be paid n mlres at the current rate, and 50 per cent based on a specified number of milreis to the dollar.

This made it possible in good times and bad for the companies to get enough exchange to carry on, and to pay the service on their bonds and other obligations, in the countries which furnished the money in the first place.

These provisions were all canceled on short notce a few weeks ago by a decree of the Ministry of Industry.

Interestingly enough, in abolishing these contractual agreements, notice was taken of the fact "that nearly all of the nations have nullified the gold clause, and any other artificial methods of payment which amount to a rejection of the circulating medium."

Particular emphasis was placed upon the fact that "the United States has declared null any clause which grants to creditors the right to require the payment in gold or a specified type of currency or any amount equivalent to currency of the United States collected on such a basis."

These and other such developments make the lot of the foreign businessman in Brazil a hectic one.

(But there is opposition to regulation of foreign industry —see Mr. Tomlinson's next article.)

Markets Observe Good Friday Holiday

Financial activities throughout the greater part of the western world were suspended today in observance of Good Friday. Banks, stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets in the United States were closed for the day only. Many foreign markets extended the suspension over the weekend. American banks and markets will resume business at the usual hours tomorrow.

RISE IN STEEL PRICES SEEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 30.—(AP.)—On the heels of widespread announcements of a 10 per cent wage increase in the steel industry, company executives declare drastic price increases are imperative.

Nearly a quarter of a million mill workers throughout the country, including those in several subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation, will receive the increase April 1.

Steel company officials point to advances in raw materials and labor costs over the past year, without corresponding increases in quotations for finished steel, as indicative of the need for price adjustments.

During the past year basic wages have increased from 33 to 47 cents an hour, pig iron from $13.56 to $16.90 a ton, and steel scrap from $7.80 to $12.67 a ton on the average. Meanwhile sheet bars, a semi-finished product, stood at $26 a ton.

Trade publications forecast the price advance this week, Steel indicating a wage increase cannot fail to increase costs and prices, and Iron Age stating the volume of mill operations in April and May is not expected to offset the wage increase, with a price rise the "logical sequel."

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXXI.

Pippin sat in her car outside the library. It was 8 o'clock Wednesday night. She felt white, her muscles weak. She was afraid to tell Sherry, afraid of her ability to deal with him, but very determined.

He came swinging along with that light, winged stride that made her think always of a poised Mercury. He looked into her face, his engaging eyes smiling.

"I wonder why you're so good to me, Pippin? I don't quite get it."

He took his place at her side, giving her hand a little squeeze. She said in a tense, thin tone:

"I've got to talk to you, Sherry. Let's drive out in the hills."

They parked. Pippin gave a little nervous laugh and, reaching over, took Sherry's hand in hers.

"I don't know how to begin. I don't know how to tell you this, Sherry. I wish you'd help me."

"You sound awfully serious, Pippin."

"I am, rather. It's about Vivian . . . . Won't you marry her, Sherry?"

Marriage Impossible

"Marry! I haven't a cent in the world. I've got to get through here somehow. How in the name of heaven can I get married? Even if we were still in love with each other, and we're not, I don't see how we could marry."

For a long, wretched two hours they sat there and talked. Pippin felt young and pitifully incompetent. Finally Sherry said:

"What do you think I should do, Pippin? You have some idea."

"I think you should marry Vivian. It could be arranged that you would get money somewhere."

"Pick it off the palms, I suppose."

Pippin said:

"I have a little money, Sherry. I could get my mother to stake you to a start. I'm absolutely certain I could do this."

He turned around and looked at Pippin as though she were a demented person. This, with a slow, furious coldness:

"Could you probably take up a collection here on the campus for us? I'm sorry. I didn't mean that. But you don't face facts. Even if you could get this donation, do you think I could go blithely along letting your mother support me and a wife. That's madness. There's only one thing that any sane person can see—get out of it as decently as possible."

Sherry leaned down and with both hands tore at his bright, thick hair.

Pippin saw the fixity of his purpose. She said, beaten:

She went on ruthless: "I know a man, Sherry, who was once in your position. He loved a girl like Vivian and ran out on her. . . . She made good. The man is done; his whole life in pieces."

Life Gone to Pieces

Sherry caught her hands and shook them. He said, wildly:

"My life has gone to pieces, I'm through—right now! If I marry Vivian, we'll have to starve . . . stay right here and let everyone know of it. If I don't marry her, I'll feel contemptible."

Sherry leaned forward, with an oppressed, desperately weary expression. He sat with one hand pressed against his face.

"Don't you think, Sherry, you and Vivian could be happy together?"

He threw back his head and gave a long, sobbing laugh.

"I think it would be swell, Pippin, for Vivian and me to get married. We haven't a cent. Vivian owes her mother money; my parents are waiting for me to get out and send my young brothers to school. Do you think Vivian and I have a grand chance to get married and be happy?

"Can't you see my side of it, Pippin? Can't you see that the only right thing and the only sane thing to do is to get out of this, and right away?"

Pippin put her hands in front of her face and wept. Finally she said:

"I've got a hundred dollars, Sherry." After a long pause she added: "Come and see Veev, but don't talk of not marrying first. Talk of other things. Make her a little bit glad."

He sat there and nodded—all the swift youth of him, dimmed.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning Sherry came to Vivian.

He entered the living room quickly, locked the door. "Veev, darling," he said and took her in his arms. They were both white, both shaken.

Soon afterward, Sherry broached the critical subject uppermost in their minds.

Needed by Family

"Marriage won't help unless we could suddenly scare up a few thousand dollars. I can't walk out on my family now when I'm within a few months of finishing my course. They've suffered to put me through. I've got to make good."

"There's nothing to do. Nothing to do."

He came and stood beside her, leading her back to the couch.

"Vivian, don't get frantic. That won't help."

Then he kissed her with a pleading:

"Don't get so desperate, Veev. You'll get over it."

She looked up with a little forlorn smile.

* * *

Pippin found her sitting there motionless, a dark fixity in her eyes. She dropped bundles on the table and going over took a place at Vivian's side.

"Did you decide anything?"

Vivian began to laugh . . . She laughed in a hard, mad, reckless way, with the tears streaming down her cheeks. Then the laughing broke into unrestrained sobs. She got up and went into the bedroom and closed the door.

Like Nightmare

When she returned, her face was clear, freshly powdered, her hair combed:

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes.

Now Go On

"Now that's over I feel much better."

Vivian sat motionless, only her hands clenching more tightly. After a while she said, quietly:

"It's all strange. Like a nightmare. You wonder when you're going to wake up. I wish I hadn't told you, Pippin. I hadn't meant to do this."

"You had to tell someone."

Vivian gave a little gesture with her shoulder—gave a little desperate smile.

Pippin said sharply:

"Vivian! What are you planning?"

"I'm not planning at all. I'm only looking at the thing . . . With me—now—oh, well—"

There was a quiet about her—a still finality. The blood went flying from Pippin's heart.

"You've a chemistry class at 1 o'clock, haven't you, Pippin?"

"Yes, but there's plenty of time."

Then Vivian went up and put her arms about Pippin's waist.

"You're worrying about me, Pippin. Please don't do that. Sherry will be here any moment. I think we'll go for a ride. It's a lovely day. I'd like to stand up there on the hill near that tree, Pippin, and have the wind blow in my face.

Pippin loitered until she heard Sherry's step in the hall. Then she went to the bedroom, gathered her books and ran a comb through her hair.

Vivian stood at her side. She said, laughing:

"It's lovely hair, Pippin. It's red in the sunlight."

Appreciates Friendship

Vivian touched it. She let her fingers rest lightly on Pippin's shoulder.

"I'm feeling much better now. I'll get out of it all right."

Pippin rested on the comb. She looked in Vivian's face.

"Others have come out of it, Vivian. They weren't as strong as you are. They weren't as brave."

Said Vivian with a laugh: "And they didn't have a friend like you, Pippin. I'm sorry I've troubled you. I thought I'd manage it all so differently."

She stooped and kissed Pippin. She laid her cheek for a moment against Pippin's face. She said, softly, "Goodby, dear. Don't worry about me."

Pippin's heart widened. She glanced up and saw the stark, tragic quiet in Vivian's eyes. There was not a drop of blood in Vivian's face. Even her lips were drained.

Faint and her senses clouded, Pippin leaned against the bureau. Then she turned and took both Vivian's hands.

"You can't meet it, Vivian. You and I can't meet it. But my mother could. You don't know her, Vivian. Let's go up there now. She'll find some way for you to marry Sherry. . . ."

Vivian said: "Thanks. You're priceless. If I can't get by alone, I'll try that, Pippin."

Pippin said: "I'll be back as soon as my class is finished."

"Don't hurry. Sherry has a car. We'll be gone some time."

She followed Pippin to the back porch and called softly:

"Pippin, goodby!"

In the midst of her chemistry class, Pippin recalled the tragic, frightened, terribly alone look in Vivian's eyes.

Suddenly she remembered that Vivian came out to the porch and called with that unusual gesture:

"Pippin, goodby!"

She was afraid now—desperately afraid. She took off her apron, dropped it absently on the stool, her whole being focussed on one thought:

"I've got to do something. She told me. It's up to me!"

Driven and with the blood dashing in hot spurts to her cheeks, she went down the corridor to the phone.

"You want me to come down for a little supper, tonight? But I can't Pippin, dear. I'm awfully sorry. I'm having guests for dinner."

A cry gushed out from Pippin's desperate fear:

"I need you, mother. I need you. Won't you please come?"

"Do you need me enough to call off ten persons?"

"I think so—"

"I'll be there. I'll come right away."

"No—come at 6—that's better. Oh, mother, darling—thanks."

Pictorial Education Resumes After Easter Vacation

Pictorial Education, a regular feature of this page, will not appear during the schools' Easter vacation. Publication will be resumed with the resumption of the schools' sessions next Tuesday.

JUNIOR PATROL

A lot of fellows seem to like the secret code, fellows!

It's good not only for writing messages but also for sending messages with flags or over wires or by radio. Some fellows we know can send messages from the basement of their home up to the attic by tapping long and short dots and dashes on the water pipes.

Another idea is that you can send a message without saying a word by shaking hands; then by squeezing dots and dashes you can send a short message.

La Rene Myers of R. F. D. 1, Willock, Pa., is a new member today. She says she is going to start a patrol.

Now here is a letter from Buddy Mathot, Allen Williams, Teddy Alderson, William Alderson and Calliste Williams of Houston, Pa. They don't sign any name to their letter and so we don't know which one of them wrote it.

Writing to Junior, they say:

"We are starting a Patrol Club. We have not decided where we are going to hold our meetings. I am trying every day to get new members. We have much scarlet fever around here. I just got over it about a week ago. Is there much sickness around your place? I like to read about you and your friends in the paper. I also like to hear your broadcast over WCAE."

That's swell, fellows. Write again soon and let us know how you get along and how you solve the clubhouse problem. Many of the clubs are building their own clubhouses. We are glad you like the Patrol broadcast. We are sorry you were ill. We have kept pretty healthy so far, fellows. By the way, you need more members to have a real club.

This letter is from another new member, Patricia McCabe, of 229 School street, Greentree, Crafton Branch. She says:

"I would like to have a club out here. We don't really have a place to hold it, though. At school we have a book club, and I am the vice president. I enjoy your comic strip very much."

Perhaps you can start a real Patrol Club, Patricia, with some of your book club members in it.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The make-up box is a blessing to the universal sorority. Neat little compartments for powder, pads, rouge, compacts and lipsticks. Everything right at hand for the face-painting party. Remember the yore days when the powder box resided in the top shelf of the dresser, to be found by the family cherub, its contents sprinkled over gloves and hankies? Funny nobody thought out that make-up container before.

Cheek coloring is being toned down to such an extent that there's a cheerful notion that the painted lady is on her way hence. It has been grossly overdone, and the exaggerated blush never won any beauty laurels. Powder doesn't go as thickly either. The new makeup fashions include light powdering, faint skin tints, a suggestion of eye shadow and lash tint, lips colored a deep, rich red. Hooray!

Only the Words Were Harsh

Last winter's frigid charts were warmed up a trifle by the verbal shindigs between good men and true.

Most famous of all was the telephone and literary tangle between two of our noble lads on the office side of the Potomac.

"I got your letter," said Senator X, "through some mistake it was sent first class matter."

"Senator X is a publicity hound," replied Senator Z in a well-nourished retort. That was a pip. It was like a wild swing in China. So many people there it is bound to land on somebody's chin.

"He called me a publicity hound," micrographed Senator X, "and thereby got his own name in the papers."

This was a hoss from a different vetinerary hospital. The camera men gathered around to snap pictures of the embattled epigramists. In spite of all the fights and changes on Capitol Hill nobody has ever taken it. It is the Verdun of belliscose oratory. Almost jocund.

"I did not call him a limelight lizard," denied Senator Z, "I'm a slow thinker."

That was an apology with a short fuse. But hands were shaken all round, fingers were counted and none missing. The world is getting more honest under the NRA.

The whole thing lasted less than the alloted nine days for wonders.

But it looked like a very neat argument when it started. Explanations are being brought to a boil through the usual military channels and should arrive around 1946.

We thought the lads might have met under the duelling oak at the Tidal Basin. But chivalry seems to have gone West in the covered wagon and it's a long time since the knight in shining armor has used the oil and the polishing rag.

The boys were just chewing the fat.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

Ruined Bank Depositors Should Be Repaid

As a Vital RECOVERY Measure.

Within thirty days the United States Government can:

—Put a thousand million dollars into circulation.

—Increase CREDIT by many times that amount.

—Add ten million buyers to the present buying population.

—Give business the biggest stimulus it has had since the election of President Roosevelt.

—Make jobs for hundreds of thousands, even for millions of men.

The government can do these things, not by attempting any wild, radical experiments, but by an act of simple justice and common sense.

It can pay off every depositor in every closed bank of the Federal Reserve System IN FULL, take over the frozen assets of these banks and dispose of them later at their real value.

In other words, it can act as the financial agent for the depositors in these closed banks until conditions return to normal and the banks' assets can be sold at something like par.

The McLeod bill, now before Congress, authorizes the government to take this action.

The bill is thus explained by its sponsor, Representative Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan:

"It calls for the purchase by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of all remaining assets of closed banks which were members of the Federal Reserve System at the date of closing, including both national and state banks. The purchase price is to be the amount required to pay depositors in full. This money is to be used to pay the depositors the full balance of the amounts due them immediately.

"However, in the cases of banks in conservatorships it will be optional with depositors as to whether they shall receive the money immediately or allow it to be used to have their banks resume operations. The assets so purchased would be liquidated by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation over a ten-year period, taking advantage of the rising markets and values which are bound to come with recovery.

"Liquidation of these assets now will mean a very considerable loss to depositors. Liquidation under my plan would mean full payment to the depositors, full repayment to the government of sums so advanced, and in many instances would result in a balance left over. This would eliminate the sacrifice of good but slow assets on the present depressed markets."

Mr. McLeod also points out that more than a billion dollars of frozen funds would be placed in circulation immediately among millions of depositors, and that this money would do the work of MANY TIMES A BILLION DOLLARS.

President Roosevelt has said, "every dollar hoarded means a destruction of $5 to $10 of credit." It naturally follows that every dollar frozen in closed banks would do the work of $5 to $10 when released.

Justice to depositors demands the repayment of these frozen assets, since the government itself permitted the operation of unsound and insolvent banks. But apart from any question of justice, depositors should be repaid AS A RECOVERY MEASURE.

The government has found and spent thousands of millions of dollars on projects of doubtful value.

Its expenditures in future should be confined to projects of genuine value to RECOVERY—and certainly no project could be of greater value than restoring their property to ten millions of our most responsible, most economical and hardest working citizens.

Unfaithful Police

Stern Punishment Is Due Officers Who Betray the Trust Reposed in Them.

Instances in which city policemen, employed to protect the people from crime, were guilty of criminal conduct themselves, have been far from uncommon in Pittsburgh.

But it is disappointing to learn that the State Police, of whom Pennsylvanians are wont to boast that they are a very high-class body of men, also have their share of rogues.

Four of the troopers who raided the Monaca Club are accused of having appropriated for their personal use property that they found in the club and have been dishonorably discharged from the service.

Criminal prosecution would appear to be also in order.

Stern punishment is due policemen who betray the trust reposed in them.

Injustice Recognized

It Is to Be Hoped It Is Not Too Late to Give Pennsylvania a Square Deal.

There is satisfaction for Pennsylvanians in Public Works Administrator Ickes' belated admission that Pennsylvania, which contributes about one-tenth of the federal government's income, has not received fair treatment in the allocation of the PWA funds.

Allegheny County, with greater population than any of a dozen states, with extensive unemployment in its industries, and with many meritorious projects submitted, has received next to nothing.

With the injustice at last recognized, hope revives that the County Commissioners' program of self-liquidating bridge construction and other public works may yet be carried through. Unfortunately it remains to be seen if additional funds will be available.

Pure Rum Intoxicates, Too

Mayor McNair Is Unfair in Attributing All Drunkenness to Low-Priced Liquors.

Notwithstanding that analyses, including those made by the city's own chemists, have shown the cheap liquor put on sale in the state stores to combat bootlegging to be potable, Mayor W. N. McNair overlooks no opportunity to denounce it as poisonous.

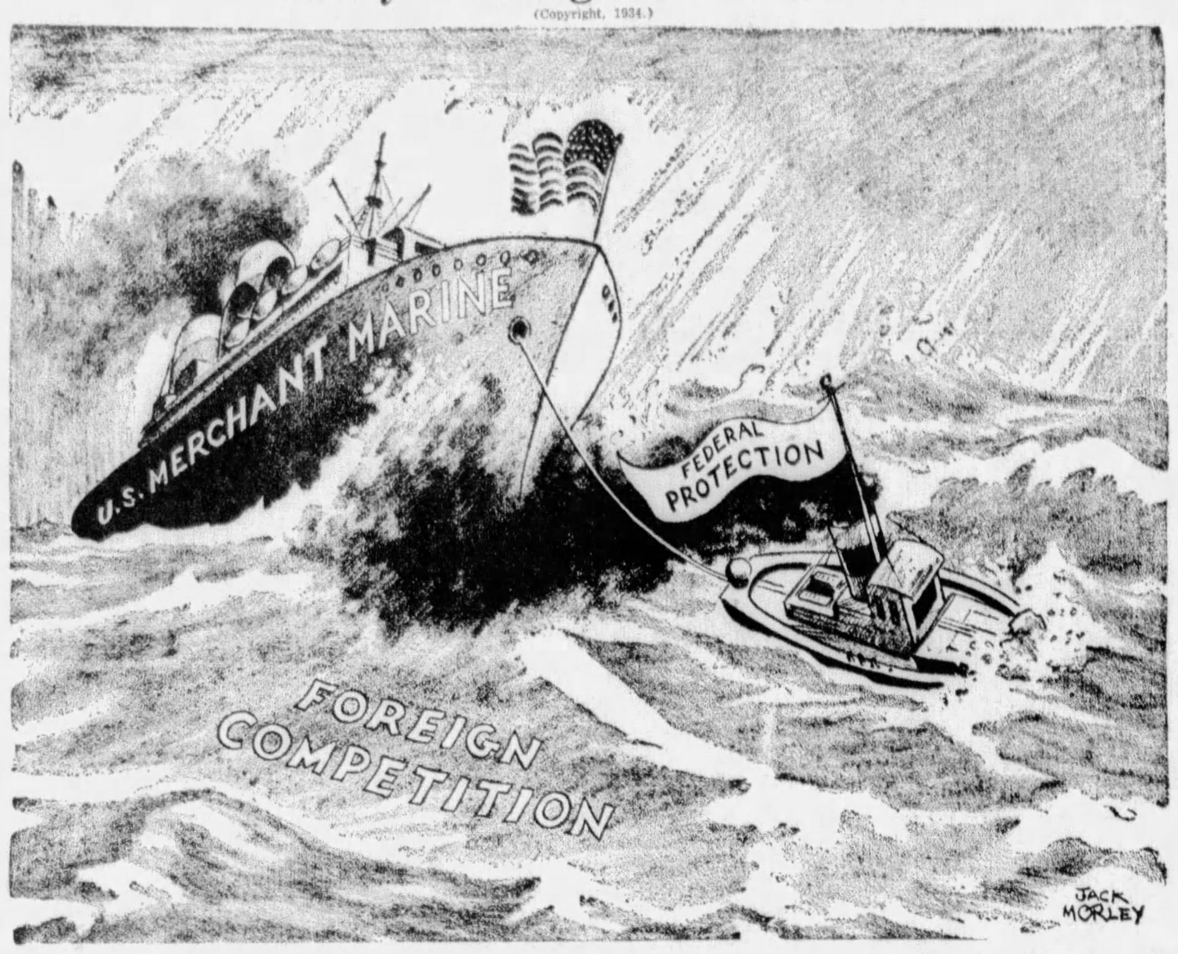
In his speech at the National Safety Council luncheon he called it "wood alcohol with a little coloring in it" and said it was responsible for the increase in automobile accidents.

When he officiates in Police Court he is in the habit of discharging persons charged with drunkenness on the ground that it is the impurity of the liquor that makes them drunk.

While recognizing that Mayor McNair is naive and childlike in many respects, we wonder if he is so guileless as to believe that pure, bonded, high-priced whisky, freely indulged in, is non-intoxicating.

Safely Through the Storms

(Copyright, 1934.)



Congress in its present session has many duties, but none more important than to assure that Federal protection shall not be withdrawn from the American merchant marine.

The Jones-White Shipping Act, under which protection is now vouchsafed, was not a measure hastily enacted.

It was made a part of the national policy because our perilous experiences and our tremendous money losses in the World War, due to our lack of an adequate merchant marine, had awakened the country.

Congress then saw that one national emergency had cost us more money in a few months than the total expense of protecting and having our own merchant marine ready for service would have cost in a century.

That bitter lesson must not be forgotten. The American merchant marine must be fostered and developed under patriotic Federal protection, not abandoned to foreign competion and destruction at the behest of foreign propagandists and of mistaken advocates of unpreparedness.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 30. — Thoughts while strolling: First entire winter I've spent in New York in nine years—and quite pleasantly, too. Gadding is the bunk. The sole fun is anticipation. The rest a nightmare of bum hotels, catching ships or trains and general insolence.

How puny the clientele of those physical culture restaurants. The roaringest name I know—Tex O'Rourke. How secluded Al Smith lately! What became of those two Teddies of the Ziegfeld platoons—Teddy Girard and Teddy Hudson? As Gene Buck used to chirp: "Swell gals" Grand name for a Scottie—Ramsey.

The lure of window displays! An avenue haberdasher tells me a new cravat pattern will sell 200 ties first day. One-word description of Edwin C. Hill—debonair. One of the few reporters, too, to carry a cane. More than any five producers, Max Gordon puffed life into the dying theater.

I like to idle among the catacombs of pert little shops in Radio Center. And it's a six-ring circus with the running-fire comments of Irvin Cobb. Two never-failing daily visitors to the Lambs—Fred Stone and David Warfield. Long time since Bill Hart has been to town.

One of my favorite people—Gilbert Gabriel. Nobody has the trick of handling an impasse in speech like Will Rogers. When he gets stumped, he gives his face an imaginary hand-wash and turns to another subject. Just throws the whole thing away. Others hang on and flounder foolishly.

* * *

There was the doughy diction of a Park Row newspaperman who, in his cups, used to leave an uncompleted sentence dangling in mid-air and go into a semi-stupor. After a while he would come to with a jerk mumbling: "He certainly could!" The phrase eventually got into a revue and became a bit of slang of the Broadway speaks.

One of the he-food places is Billy the Oysterman. Billy has himself been translated to another sphere but his heavy-timbered dining room with red checkered table cloths, off the beaten path, is usually crowded. Outside of oysters, the appeal is in heavy slabs of beef, double chops and other red-blooded ollapodrida for robust appetites. It was a favorite haunt of Clare Briggs and Harrison Fisher. Jack Dempsey used to head for there after his fights in the East. Charlie Chaplin is a dropper-in when he comes to town, and many women celebrities give dinners there. Amelia Earhart, for instance.

* * *

Yet to my mind no meaty tavern of these days reaches the excellence of Jack's. The Irish bacon with eggs and French fried potatoes—a single order filled an enormous blue platter—was only for the rugged. It was a gastronomic joy to see Diamond Jim Brady, napkin in his collar, tearing into one of these around 3 a. m. Addison Mizner was a runner up for Brady in stowing away food and I once chanced on them paired at the same table at Jack's. Although hungry myself, my efforts by comparison seemed the languid peckings of an invalid canary.

There is an embering glow, too, in watching freight handlers along West street docks line up at one of those stool-counter joints after a ship sailing. Most of the places have parrots, pawned by seamen, jabbering the jargon of the fo'castle. The strong scents of onions and garlic almost plait your eyebrows and the soup-stained coats of the countermen are exhibits for the Board of Health—but nowhere in town is there such eating. Or rather stuffing.

Ona Munson exploits some colorful creations when she attends an opening night at the theater. But Mrs. Harrison Williams, so extravagantly publicized lately, provides a monotone in more sedate offerings. As does Mrs. Robert Rubin. Fannie Hurst, sheathed in flaming red, is only an attender of the more auspicious premieres, as is the well dressed Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett. Then there is the perennial regular, a Mrs. Katzenborn, blonde and ermined, who will always be found in LA 2 beside her portly husband. I've never as yet noted her absence. And I usually look.

I stopped into a book bindery last evening to have a set of my own trifling volumes especially bound for a friend. I don't know whether the man who waited on me was a kindly and blundering simpleton or shrewd appraiser of his kind. Anyway he suggested a binding of antique yap!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Are Women Jurors Fair?

If you were in a legal jam, would you like to have your case decided by women jurors?

Mary Borden would. Mary Borden writes columns and knows her American world, and she believes that world is both insulting and unfair in its attitude toward women jurors.

"It came to me with something of a shock," says Miss Borden, "that in many of our states women are not permitted to serve on juries. And what, I ask myself, does that mean?

"It means for one thing, that in spite of all appearances to the contrary, we are not so very progressive and democratic a nation. It strikes me we're pretty much of a backward, old-fashioned, autocratic country.

"And it means, I am afraid, that many men of America have a deep-rooted contempt for women as citizens, combined if you like, in some cases with an old-fashioned feeling of sentimental chivalry that is after all akin to contempt."

Then she proceeds to explain the two outstanding male attitudes toward women jurors. First there's the "sentimental lover of women" who says,

"Being on a jury is a beastly job. Why should my wife or any other nice woman be called on to go into court and decide about the guilt or innocence of an alleged murderer? She'd hate it, and I won't stand for it. She'd be a nervous wreck, I tell you, at the end of it.

"Weigh the evidence? Listen to the arguments for and against? Bless her heart, she can't follow an argument for two minutes to save her life! And who wants her to? I don't. No, if anybody in this family has got to serve on a jury, I'll do it. My wife can stay at home and look after the kids. She's got quite enough to do weighing the evidence of their devilment."

Then there's the man who doesn't think as well of the ladies. His attitude is:

"Women aren't fair. They've got no sense of justice. They're not made that way. They're too emotional, get too excited. If you take 'em the right way, they'll cry their eyes out over the most awful blackguard, or send a man up though he didn't steal the money, but did stay out all night."

Well—is or isn't the second gentleman right? Mary Borden thinks he isn't. I think he is. I, too, write columns, go into courts, work with and for women continually.

But I wouldn't like to have a woman juror sitting on any case of mine!

Don't I believe that women "have as good minds as men?"

I certainly do. Haven't they as high standards of morality? They certainly have. Aren't they as conscientious as men in the performance of duty? They are. Then why shouldn't they be jurors?

Because it takes much more than brains, moral standards and conscientiousness to make a good juror.

It takes a broad knowledge of human life, a wide contact with human problems.

Mary Borden says that jury work is simply the responsibility of any citizen, and women, being citizens, should assume that responsibility as naturally as men.

But it's one thing to be a citizen and quite another to assume all the responsibilities of that position. It has taken men many thousands of years of working contact to even roughly qualify for such responsibilities—and, at that, they make a mighty poor showing. Women have had a scant score years of suffrage; little more than that of industrial experience.

Women are legally citizens. But the average woman doesn't argue legal squabbles as a citizen. She considers them as an individual, as a sweetheart, wife, mother or female neighbor. And she brings into the jury box all the ancient and accumulated feminine taboos, prejudices, peeves, suspicions and sex antagonisms.

I'm a woman. I'm strong for my sex. But Heaven preserve me from ever having to appear before a jury of Us Girls. And that's why I feel that way.

Now it's YOUR turn.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Poor, Weak Man!

Are men the weaker sex?

According to Dr. E. V. Allen and the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, they ARE. They may be better at pole-vaulting and prize fighting than women are; but it's the women who live to collect the life insurance, long after the average man's lungs, kidneys, brain or digestive organs have given up the struggle.

Naturally! Why shouldn't men be victims of diseases of these organs? Once you have watched a normal, healthy man ploughing his way through an average meal, you are not in the least surprised that his digestive tract should go on strike.

* * *

While a woman is counting her calories and keeping strictly to her slenderizing diet or her doctor's regime, a man is stuffing everything down his throat that appeals to his palate from hot waffles or a lobster cocktail, to red beef, broiled mushrooms and beer.

I have often expected to see the man dining opposite me—any man—topple over into his plate, while I watched with morbid fascination, the quantity and mixture of rich food he was placidly putting away.

* * *

A man's digestion is like his wife or his teeth—something he never thinks about until it is gone!

* * *

As to BRAIN maladies, men may once have been more subject to these than was woman. But not since woman got her "economic freedom!" Now that so many women work in offices, manage big plants, run shops and tearooms, support families and MUST have the rent-money by Monday morning, neurosis, brain-fag and other kinds of delirium are rapidly becoming just as common among the high-heeled sex as among the males of the species.

* * *

Woman has always had her worries. She worried over babies, servant problems, erring husbands, budgets, other women and what to do about the color of her hair, ever since the world began.

* * *

But she is discovering, at last, that there is nothing in a nursery, a kitchen, a beauty parlor or a heartache, which can knock you for a goal, like receiving a blue dismissal envelope! And that there is nothing else which can frazzle your nerves to tatters and leave you squashed at the end of the day, like running a business or holding down a job.

Men MAY be weaker than women—but we'll have to wait until women begin over-loading their stomachs, and husbands stop keeping up the payments on the mortgage, the car and the insurance, before we can prove that they are BORN weaker.

* * *

Besides, THIS is no time of year to tell a man that he's "weak!" It's not fair to give him that break, just as his wife is planning to make him move the piano, put up the porch-swing, plant the gladioli bulbs and get a few more rocks for the rock-garden.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

ISN'T IT SO?

Give but little advice and applaud freely if you would be popular.

Some girls imagine that they are as pretty as pictures because they are painted.

Many a young man visits the pawn shop merchant merely to pass the time away.

When a man says that all women are alike he has had an experience with one that is no credit to him.

Perhaps same people do not know that the sphinx got its reputation for being wise by keeping its mouth shut for 3,000 years.

Text for Today

Philippine 'Freedom' Act Full of Jokers

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Things are not always what they seem; first appearances deceive many.—Phaedrus.

MANY Americans have been led to believe that Philippine independence is just around the corner, now that the Tydings-McDuffie Philippine act has become law.

This belief is based upon misleading propaganda, as an examination of this legislation will show. In fact, it does not even guarantee to the Philippine people national independence at any fixed date in the future. They may get it 12 or 13 years hence or they may not get it until many years later.

This uncertainty regarding the date when the American flag is to be hauled down throughout the Philippine archipelago, and its inhabitants abandoned to their fate, is only one of many trick provisions in this monstrosity which the lobbyists for sugar properties and other special interests have finally succeeded in passing through Congress for the second time in less than a year and a half.

* * *

Procedure Prescribed By Act

UNDER the Tydings-McDuffie act, the following procedure towards independence at some indefinite date in the future is prescribed:

The Philippine Legislature must first accept this act.

Having accepted it, the Legislature must then provide for the calling of a constitutional convention within a year.

This convention must then formulate and draft a constitution for the government of the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands. This constitution must conform to certain conditions prescribed in the act. It must include a series of provisions required to be incorporated in the constitutttion. These must remain in effect until the United States finally abandons the islands to their fate.

Having agreed upon a constitution, the convention that drafts it must then submit it to the President of the United States, with whom is left the final determination as to whether it conforms to the provisions of the Tydings-McDuffie act. If the President so finds, he must then so certify.

If the constitution does not receive the President's approval, he must then return it to Manila for revision.

If the President of the United States and the Philippine constitutional convention find it difficult to agree upon the terms of the proposed constitution, the exchanges on this subject can be continued for years and years between Washington and Manila.

In fact, there is no limit whatever on the time that may elapse, under the terms of this involved and perplexing legislation between the date of its enactment and the setting up of the government of the commonwealth of the Philippine islands for which it provides.

* * *

Time Limit Cannot Be Fixed

FURTHERMORE, the date for the setting up of the independent government of the Philippines, which is to follow the government of the commonwealth of the Philippines, depends upon the date when the commonwealth government begins.

It is obvious, therefore, that it is not within the power of the American people, or their Senators and representatives in Congress, or their President in the White House, to fix a limit upon the time that will elapse between the enactment of the Tydings-McDuffie act and the time that the independent government of the Philippines will come into existence.

No such uncertainty, however, exists regarding the predicament in which the United States will be placed from the day that the Philippine legislature accepts the Tydings-McDuffie act and the day that the independent government of the Philippines comes into being.

Throughout that indefinite time, and regardless of the wars and rumors of wars that sweep through the Far East, the government and people of the United States will be exclusively responsible for the government and protection of the Philippine Islands.

They will be deprived, however, of the authority commensurate with that responsibility, because that authority is seriously impaired by many of the provisions in the new Philippine act which a super-lobby of special interests has forced upon the statute books of the United States.

Human Side of the News

Colombia's Emerald Fields Where the Chickens' Gizzards Belong, By Law, to the Government

By Edwin C. Hill

WORD comes from the jungles of the Colombian Andes that the government of Colombia has just closed one of the most interesting transactions imaginable. It has sold a pound of emeralds for one million dollars. Colombia, you know, is one of the few places in the world where superior emeralds are found, and ever since the days of the Spanish Conquistadores it has been famous for the green stones with the hidden fire. In one of the wildest and most inaccessible valleys of the Andes crouches the village of Muzo, like an unclean beast. A dirty, sordid village, but the emerald capital of the world, the site of the most valuable emerald mines that the world knows about.

A great fence, of the toughest barbed wire, surrounds the tract of ground where the emeralds are mined, and wherever you go, you see armed soldiers on the job, little brown Colombians in blue drill uniforms, but with very efficient rifles which they know how to use. The heat is stifling, thick damp heat, like a Turkish bath. Scores of Indians — "Indios" — slouch about the compound in their ponchos, or squat by the guardhouse watching the hundreds of chicks that are pecking at the gravel. There's a story in those chickens, for one doesn't find chickens around an emerald mine without a pretty good reason.

Many years ago, the mine was so amazingly rich that only the largest stones of the finest water were kept. The little ones and the chips were thrown away. For a good many years, therefore, the chickens of Muzo have been tucking emeralds into their gizzards to assist the processes of nature. Now, that large and perfect stones are rare, a careful eye is kept on the chickens, and the government, by law, owns the gizzards. The rest of the fowl is at the disposal of the individual owner, but not the gizzard. There might be a good emerald in it, worth at least several hundred dollars.

No women are permitted in, or about, the mines because of an old Indian superstition which says that when a woman comes near, the emeralds hide deeply underground and cannot be found. It's killing work, and the emerald mines of Muzo come pretty close to being a first class hell for the miserable ones drafted to the labor.

The Indios, weakened by their incessant chewing of green cocoa leaves, can't stand it, and only the strongest Negroes can. A pound of emeralds may cost a million dollars, but it is said to cost about sixty lives as well. But the mines of Muzo are not the incredible rich mines that the Spaniards knew in their golden and fabulous days when Pizarro was looting Peru. These great mines have been lost for more than three centuries. Tradition says that some day they will be found again.

Ambergris Found On California Coast

AN eighteen-year-old high school boy, strolling along the beach at Bolinas, Cal., near San Francisco, stumbles upon a mass of cellular, evil smelling matter, grayish in color and mottled with darker streaks. There are 55 pounds of the substance, and excitedly he summons two ranchers, who discover another 20 pounds. "Ambergris!" they exclaimed, pretty much as old Sutter must have cried "Gold" in the same California, 90 years ago. And off they rushed with samples to the laboratory of the University of California with prospects of converting their find into $38,000 in real money.

For even today, with gold at the highest price in its history, an ounce of ambergris will bring pretty near as much as an ounce of the yellow mineral. Our three Californians come into this windfall, all because a sperm whale, somewhere out in the Pacific had a stomachache. He rolled around sick, in the ocean, and either from his stomach, or intestines, disgorged these 75 pounds of substance, along with the beaks of the cuttle fish upon which he had been feeding. Most likely he had come in close to shore Perhaps he had died from eating too much bone, and after his carcass had disintegrated and had been washed out to sea again, the ambergris remained and floated back to the beach for the boy to stumble upon it. That's where the ambergris came from.

And the reason that it is worth so much is that it is an ingredient absolutely essential in the manufacture of high-grade perfumes. Young swains and husbands, who are inclined to rebel at the price of $10, or more, an ounce for their lady's perfume, can read the answer to the high cost in the fact that the high class product, which has a permanent aroma, is dependent solely on sick whales, and these are not to be found just around the corner.

* * *

Best Known Base For Perfume

AMBERGRIS buying is a trade in itself, and one of the best known brokers was the late Capt. David C. Stull, who maintained his agency for a Paris house in a small wooden building on the wharf, at Provincetown, Mass. Capt. Dave paid as high as $35,000 for one lump of ambergris, back in the days when gold was only $20 an ounce, and ambergris was worth twice as much.

Ambergris is the best base known for perfume. It is melted in boiling alcohol and it holds in solution all the various oils and essences. Six ounces to a gallon is about the proportion for the higest grades of perfume. Most manufacturers use four ounces, some two, and the proportion is cut down to the point where the inexpensive products contain none at all.

Three small finds have been reported from Oregon in the last five years, and the richest, most recent one, was that of a 53-pound lump landed at a whaling station in Scotland and sold in London for $42,750. The largest lot on record was taken off the Bahamas, in 1858, by a Nantucket whaler, and the 600 pounds sold for $10,000.

While it was used once in flavoring foods, and while it is supposed to have some mysterious medicinal values, ambergris is now used exclusively in the making of perfumes.

SOOT FIGURES IN BEAUTY PROBLEMS

By HELEN FOLLETT

When something is done to clear the atmosphere of soot and smoke, some complexion problems will be solved. Dust filled pores are a common trouble, and lead to acne which is one beauty grief that just isn't in the victim's eye. It is real. It is a source of sorrow.

Here is a simple treatment that helps; wash the face with a good rich lather and use a complexion brush. No need of scouring, but be thorough. Rinse with warm water to remove the soap, dry gently, lave with a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda—one teaspoon dissolved in a cup of water. Soda combines chemically with the greasy deposits in the pores, digs out blackheads.

Follow with light massage with a thin cream or cosmetic oil. If pimples are present, don't massage at all, because there is danger of spreading infection. Give this treatment every night.

* * *

FOOT COMFORT

The more ventilation provided by the shoe, the better the chances of foot comfort. There were more foot ills when high shoes were worn than now, and even now there are plenty.

Bathing the feet with a weak soda solution, drying, massaging with coconut oil, shaking a foot powder into shoes will comfort poor little "dogs" that have trotted for long hours over floors and pavements.

* * *

HINTS FOR JOB-SEEKERS

When a girl goes job hunting, she should look efficient. She won't if she uses too much make-up, doesn't array herself in plain business life clothes. The prospective boss sizes her up with a keen eye. If she looks like a fluffy girl she won't be a credit to the office. And he will suspect that she belongs to the cult that spends too much time dolling up, consulting the mirror, laying on the commercial blushes.

* * *

OVERBLEACHED HAIR

When hair is overbleached it is about as easy to wash as feathers. The suds goes swimming over the surface, doesn't do anything.

Resort then to the egg champoo. Rinse the hair, rub in three eggs that have been slightly beaten, friction to a crackling froth, rinse, use three more eggs, rinse again. When locks are thick and fairly long, eight eggs may be necessary.

ONION SOUP AID TO MENUS

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

For the emergency guest or for the big dinner party, planned long in advance, onion soup is always a favorite. Onion soup is grand for an impromptu, after-the-theater supper party or for Sunday night supper. For instance, you could serve hot onion soup with toast rounds and cheese; cold cuts with mustard sauce, frozen cheese, shredded lettuce salad, strawberry tarts and coffee with assorted cookies. Or perhaps clam juice cocktail followed by omelet soubise, and then tiny sausages in bread containers, then chilled cucumber salad, and for dessert, raspberry sherbet and petits fours, with tea or coffee.

If you want to prepare an after-theater supper in advance, except for heating the soup, making the toast rounds and toasting rolls, then you might try the hot onion soup with toast rounds and cheese, followed by chicken mousse with split toasted and buttered rolls and stuffed olives, serving ice cream for dessert.

FROZEN CHEESE

For frozen cheese, mash six small cream cheeses with cream until about the consistency of cottage cheese. Mix in chopped chives and salt to taste. Place in melon or other mold and place in automatic refrigerator. When ready to serve turn out on platter as you would a mousse. Many variations are possible, using other types of cheese and different seasonings.

OMELET SOUBISE

For omelet soubise make a six-egg omelet in the usual way. When top is firm to touch, cut half-inch incisions on opposite sides of pan. Meanwhile, heat onion soup and drain off the broth. Spread the onions over the omelet, fold over and turn out on warm platter. The broth which is drained off the onion soup may be used later as a clear soup. Garnish with croutons cut in fancy shapes or with a sprinkling of cheese.

CHICKEN MOUSSE

To make chicken mousse, soak one tablespoon gelatine in half cup water. Heat half cup milk, add two cups soft bread crumbs, one teaspoon salt and an eighth of a teaspoon each of paprika and nutmeg, and cook till smooth, stirring constantly. Add gelatine and stir till dissolved. Add two cups cold minced chicken and cool. Whip half cup cream and fold into cooled mixture. Turn into mold and place in refrigerator to set. Turn out, garnish and serve. Makes six portions.

Camera Takes 2,000 Pictures a Second

A new high-speed film camera takes 2,000 pictures a second (7,200,000 an hour), on top of which it automatically records the time. At this rate a splinter from a cracked electric light bulb is seen falling like a snowflake, while the effect of a flashlight resembles a slowly darkening stage.

Musical Beach On Eigg Island

A musical beach is to be found on the little island of Eigg, in the Hebrides. It gives out a shrill, sonorous note, causing a tingling sensation in the wayfarer's feet.

BACHELOR TOLD HOW TO STUDY FAIR SEX

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Donald is a young professional man. He writes that he's becoming more hard-boiled every year, and he sees nothing ahead but the life of a bachelor, eternally grateful when some married friend invites him to dinner and the children of the house dutifully call him "Uncle."

Donald has been engaged twice, but, as he says, "managed to sidestep the wedding march." The first girl, Kitty, was lovely to look upon, but had an explosive temperament; was given to typhoons of tears when anything went wrong and to sunbursts of smiles when she got her way. These similes are Donald's, not mine.

'GLIMPSES OF HEAVEN'

When she'd put her head on Donald's shoulder and promise to be good, and not throw tantrums and cry when she didn't have her own way, Donald thought he had his glimpse of Heaven. But the next minute she'd open the gates of the other place, when she demanded a house 65 miles from his office, and with poor railroad connections at that.

She wanted a house in that particular town because most of the members of her bridge club lived there. In consequence of this, no wedding march was played for Donald and Kitty. But let him tell of his affair with Harriett, the next girl, in his own words:

"After Kitty and I broke up, I believe I would have fallen for a lady cannibal—nose-ring, hair fuzzed up with thigh bones and all—I was so lonesome and unhappy. Then along came Harriet, as up-to-date as tomorrow's newspaper.

"At first it was wonderful to have found a tearless, tantrumless girl, one who took everything 'on the chin' and who had the most advanced views. Her feelings were hurt-proof. She never claimed to be misunderstood. Nothing made her cry. She just wasn't that kind.

GETS ON HIS NERVES

"Well, after a while all this hard, brittle surface began to get on my nerves, and I wondered how she would feel about children, so I put the question to her. She said: 'Children are delightful—other people's children, I mean. I'd never consider having any of my own; they put too much of a crimp in one's freedom. Suppose I should want to quit you—well, there might be the question of pesky kids.

"I thought maybe she was joking, and I said, 'If you feel like that, perhaps we'd better quit now.'

"Quite all right with me, my dear.' And she slipped off my ring as unconcernedly as if it had been a pair of goloshes.

"Since the Harriet episode I've been going to friends' houses and playing 'uncle' to the kids. But really, Miss Fairfax, I'm not the uncle type. I want a human girl for my wife, a bungalow with a garden, and kids who'll call me something besides 'uncle.'"

BACKGROUND IMPORTANT

Please let me remind you that as one swallow doesn't make a summer, two girls—one a "flit-thrower" and the other hard-boiled as a picnic egg—do not comprise the entire sex.

The trouble with you men who write me letters like Donald's—and I get a-plenty—is that you don't look in the right places for the right girls—and you don't look long enough.

You go to a party, or set out for a blind date, and become fascinated by the first pretty girl with an attractive and amusing line of chatter.

Take observation of a girl from her background. How does she live? Who are her friends. What are her tastes. How does she spend her money? But did any man, whose emotions were touched, ever think wisely about a woman?

FASHION FLASHES

By ALICE ALDEN

PLENTY OF INVITATIONS won't faze you, if your wardrobe contains a black net dinner dress or a frock in any sheer fabric. A new gown is of black marquisette posed over a black taffeta slip with a heart-shaped front decolletage. The long sleeves are full at the elbow and the skirt has frilled flounces at the hemline.

* * *

A PERFECT PICTURE of a frock is a model in silver net with floating "angel" sleeves and a deep decolletage, both front and back. The trailing skirt is pleated in twisted, green-satin ribbons, similar green-satin being used for gloves and shoes.

* * *

MYSTERIOUS SHADOWS cast by broad hat brims will make Spring faces look nicer than ever. A smart hat with a shallow crown has a wide mushroom brim. The hat is of brown straw and the crown is banded with white, brown, dusty pink and pale blue suede petals. Pink and blue pipings of satin, trim the under brim.

* * *

JUST A FLASH of redisnoted with many white and black frocks. A white crepe frock has a cape made of rows of crimson ostrich plumes, while a black net frock has red poppies at the neck.

* * *

TAFFETA RUSTLES into the blouse mode. A new model is of striped and checked taffeta in navy, red and gold. It has a wide, butterfly jabot at the base of the deep V neckline. The puffed sleeves are quite short.

Rouged Ear Tips Whim in Belgrade

Red ears are the latest whim of the smart set in Belgrade, the women wearing their hats at rakish angles in order to display their rouged ear tips.

ASSIST CHILD SELECTING CAREER

By LIZA GRENELLE

While the old saying, "You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear," is often quoted, nothing is said about the obvious fact that a much more durable article might be made out of it, albeit not so fine.

Indeed men are not all created equal, or alike, but there is in even the meanest some promise which, if skillfully nurtured, will bear useful fruit. Each child has different traits and each has some capability which, if found, encouraged and trained, should enable him to take his proper place in the sun, acquire his small or pretentious portion of success and be self-supporting and reasonably content.

You cannot make an artist out of Jimmie if he has no eye for color and no interest in line, but he is not doomed to failure because of this unless you doom him—unless you sell him the idea that because he can't learn to paint he is no good.

ROUND PEG, SQUARE HOLE

Nor can you ever make a neat job of fitting a round peg into a square hole, yet that is exactly the mistake many parents make. They think that because they were round pegs, fitting round holes, their children should be forced into similar round holes.

It is the most difficult thing in the world to convince a father that his son is not fitted for the calling that he and his father before him have followed successfully, and the son's obvious dislike of it impresses the father as just a childish notion. When he is older, he thinks, he will change his mind. Perhaps the boy will change his mind, but he seldom does. And if he yields to his father, he is likely to become an inefficient and rebellious follower of his father's vocation, when he might have achieved success, fame and happiness by following his own bent.

It is hard, indeed it may be a tragedy, when a father realizes that his son does not wish to continue the business he has spent his life building up. But it is a far greater tragedy to force a child into a vocation for which he is unfitted by capability and inclination.

FOLLOW OWN INCLINATIONS

"To see ourselves as others see us" seems to be impossible for most of us, and to see our children as they are, and not as we wish them to be, is almost equally difficult.

We all want to be proud of our children—want and even expect them to fulfill our dreams; to succeed where we failed; to be what we hoped to be, but were not. And it is hard for the father to realize how much more certainly he could be proud of that same son if he would not only let him, but help him follow his own inclinations; help him cultivate the capabilities that he has, not the ones his father would like to imagine him possessing.

Be frank with yourself concerning your children, and be fair to them. Help them to choose their own direction. Don't insist that they climb too high, to satisfy your pride, lest they fall lower than they need.

Costa Ricans Like Creaking Wheels

Costa Ricans will not buy a cart unless the wheels of it creak and groan. The noise, they say, is "company" on long, lonely country roads.
